At the store of P. R. Quinlan well grown poinsettias in pans with ferns were all sold. In blooming plants, poinsettias and azaleas were the best sellers. A fine, large cut of Richmond roses from the Quinlan greenhouses went well. Business, in brief, was fine.

The store of Henry Morris was filled with pot plants. His dwarf poinsettias and table ferns made up in pans sold well.

W. E. Day & Co. carried a big stock of pot plants; only a few were left December 25. Ardisias and large cyclamens were the best sellers, with poinsettias and azaleas following in order. In cut flowers roses were the most popular. The force worked all night December 24 putting up cut flower orders. The firm reports business thirty per cent better than last year.

Warner Bultmann made a specialty of azaleas and sold them all. He says business was better than ever.

Robert Bard says his Christmas business was fine, besides which he had a lot of funeral work, December 23.

Gus Bartholme, on Manlius street, had a fine lot of cyclamens for Christmas. He is cutting some excellent carnation blooms.

The Syracuse Florists' Club will meet January 3 at Warner Bultmann's store. H. F. B.

Phillipsburg, N. J.—Owing to a rapidly growing trade, W. B. Brotzman has been obliged to enlarge his range, which is known as the Lily-White Greenhouses.

WINNING OUT AGAINST THE ROSE MIDGE

In this article one of the most successful of the younger generation of rose growers tells how he applied the copy-book motto, "Cleanliness Is Next to Godliness," to the problem in hand and fought a winning fight against that hitherto invincible foe, the Rose Midge.

OUR

TREATMENT of a plant, I have observed, will depend altogether on your estimate or appreciation of its nature and character. By observation, I have learned that in many respects a plant is much like an infant of tender age, only those characteristics that are usually considered as peculiar to the infant are even more accentuated in the plant. The advantage lies with the infant. It can apprise you of its sufferings by means of its cries. The plant must suffer until you recognize its condition, which may be too late. No one in this enlightened age expects to rear healthy children in unsanitary surroundings. This is the era of hygienics. Clean houses, clean yards, clean streets—pure food, pure water and pure air—these we demand for ourselves and our children. How about our rose plants? If we permit our homes to become unsanitary, what will follow? Disease and death! If we permit our greenhouses to become unsanitary, what will follow? Just as surely as in the first case—disease and death. The result is inevitable.

Beating the "Bug."

I have been asked times without number to tell how I have been successful in combating a certain pest, known in the trade as the Reinberg bug—a pest that has swept like a plague through innumerable rose houses, causing a loss as great as $10,000 in a single year in some ranges. So at last I have decided to tell, through the pages of The Review, my method of eradicating every trace of this insect from the Reinberg ranges.

The bug, or, more correctly speaking, the worm, so small as to be scarcely recognized by the naked eye, is hatched from an egg deposited by a fly under the sepals of the blossom buds and, in their absence, and then only, in the unfolding leaf buds. The fly, which is the author of all the trouble, makes its appearance as early as the middle of February and does not lay off work until as late as November 1. One marked peculiarity of this fly, that attracted my attention early in my acquaintance with it, is that it first attacks the buds nearest the glass.

Entomologists' Remedies.

The worms, as soon as hatched, cut into the pith or heart of the blossom or leaf bud, completely blasting it. And, although the general growth of the plant is not impeded, the blossom buds, and in their absence the leaf buds, droop to one side, turn black and in time fall off. So sweeping is the devastation wrought by this microscopic insect that in my own field of observation one man has been able to carry to the market on a street car a day's cutting from one of the largest rose ranges in the country.

There have appeared at various times in different publications quite learned articles on the best methods of eradicating this so-called bug. One of these is known as the rotation method. It is assumed in the discussion of this method that the rose is the only plant subject to the attacks of this particular insect. Arguing from this premise it is easy to convince oneself that the way to get rid of the trouble is to throw the rose plants, root and branch, out of the infested houses, clear the benches of all soil, whitewash them and plant them to carnations or some crop other than roses for the period of a year. It must be understood that during this period no rose plant is to be brought into this house, much less grown there. At the end of a year the house may again be planted to roses, supposedly without danger.

A second method consists in giving the houses a thorough renovation in midwinter. Both soil and plants must be removed from the benches and hauled to a distance, the benches sprayed with a strong insecticide and new rose plants and fresh soil placed in them. Another method, not so strongly advocated, however, is fumigating with hydrocyanic acid gas. The objection to this treatment is that to do efficient work in exterminating the insects, the gas must be strong enough to injure the plants.

I tried all of these methods and not one of them proved practical. And right here I began to think for myself.

A Practical Plan.

My thinking resulted in the conclusion that the need of the plant for sanitary surroundings is as great as that of a human being. I did not rotate, nor did I throw out any plants. The first step was to order a rake and a broom for every man in the section. Armed with these tools, it was the work of only a few hours for them to have every particle of trash cleared from under the benches—it is remarkable what a variety of things will find their way under a bench—and the walks swept as clean as a parlor. The surface of the ground was scratched over to let in the air.

The next thing in the campaign for sanitation was to get a quantity of air-slaked lime. If that is not to be had, get the unslaked lime and make it into a bed from six to seven inches deep and pour enough water on it to slake it. When it has become thoroughly slaked and is in a mealy condition, say next day, throw it under the benches and on the soil on the benches until everything looks white. You need have no fear of injuring the plants.

We were now ready for the final step in extermination. In a house 285 feet long, I made four small piles of tobacco stems. On each pile I placed a tablespoonful of red pepper and half a teaspoonful of powdered arsenic. If, however, your plants are soft and young, the proportion of arsenic and pepper will have to be slightly reduced. In instances where the plants are badly infested, it may be necessary to make it stronger. The smudge created by burning these piles quite effectually killed the fly.

The final step in my method was to spray everything with a strong solution of nicotine. This spraying destroyed the worms or bugs on the infested plants. This treatment and this alone will completely eradicate this pest.

Success Is Lasting.

The rose range of which I am superintendent was, I believe, the worst infested in the country a few years ago, but during the last four years there has been no slightest indication of the return of the pest. This fact I am bound to attribute to my treatment as described in this article and to its repetition semiannually since then. It is necessary, however, to add a few cautions. Be on your guard during rainy or cloudy weather. This is the time when the pest is most likely to manifest itself. Apply the treatment then. It is a preventive as well as a remedy. On light, clear days, spray freely with water. Another point of importance to remember is this: The use of the rake and the broom should not be restricted to any certain time or season. They should be used as regularly as the broom and dust cloth in a well regulated house.

If you would grow good, strong rose plants, if you would have sure crops, if you would have your plants free from pests—then first, last and always keep your houses clean. Emil Reichling.

The rose midge, of which Mr. Reich-ling writes so interestingly and forcibly, has been named by the scientists Neocerata rhodophaga, and these same scientists have declared that "it is without doubt, when present, the worst pest with which the rose grower has to deal." In America its ravages were first observed in 1886, in the eastern states. Eleven years later it had traveled to Chicago, probably on rose stock shipped from the east.

As its common name, midge, implies, it is almost microscopically small. The adult insect, or fly, is only about one-twentieth of an inch long. The egg, shown in the upper right-hand corner of the illustration on the preceding page, and designated by the letter b, is about one-seventy-fifth inch long. In the upper left-hand corner of the picture, and marked c, is the newly hatched larva; below it is the fully grown larva, d; then, to the right, is the immature pupa in the cocoon, e. The length of the full-grown larva is about one-twelfth inch. The eggs, the larvae and the bodies of the flies are all of a yellowish color.

John J. Davis, in a bulletin which originally formed a part of "The Twenty-seventh Report of the State Entomologist of Illinois," gives the life history of the rose midge as follows: "The female fly deposits its eggs beneath the sepals of the flower buds or between the folded leaves of the leaf buds, and for this purpose is provided with a long, hairlike ovipositor. The egg period is only two days, and the young maggots, as soon as hatched, begin their destructive attack upon the buds. They grow rapidly, reaching maturity in five to seven days, at the end of which time they drop to the soil, pupating there about two days later within an almost transparent cocoon. The adult fly emerges about six days after pupation occurs, and eggs are deposited for another generation of maggots. The total life cycle in summer is therefore about two weeks."

Mr. Reichling states that treatment with hydrocyanic gas has failed because, "to do efficient work in exterminating the insects, the gas must be strong enough to injure the plants." A similar opinion is expressed in the bulletin just quoted, but the bulletin adds: "Notwithstanding the small benefit so far realized from the use of hydrocyanic acid gas for this insect, it may prove to be effective if used from the first to the middle of March, or just as the first generation of flies is appearing, and while the growth of the maggot is slow. Any grower undertaking this March treatment should make continual close observations to determine just when the flies begin to emerge, at which time the gas should be used without delay, and twice a week for two weeks thereafter, and once a week for the two weeks following. As a rule the flies will begin to emerge about a week and a half after the maggots are first found. In addition to the fumigation, the plants should be gone over carefully every day and the infested buds cut off and burned."

HAS HAD PLENTY OF GRIEF.

The holiday season was not one of unalloyed joy at the Central Park Greenhouses, Tilton, Ill., for the fall of snow proved too heavy for one of the houses to bear. The illustration shows the result. The collapse occurred during the evening of December 30; the photograph was made next morning. "The greenhouses were of the King truss roof type," writes the concern, "and that is what caused such a complete collapse, as the north house was pulled down by the one next to it. We have had damage by fire, by wind and by hail; now we have suffered everything but a boiler explosion. While our insurance does not cover a case like this, we intend to save what we can and put up a smaller temporary house for spring business."

DELIVERY UNDER DIFFICULTY.

The old-fashioned white Christmas may be a fine thing to put the holiday spirit into the buyers, but it adds immeasurably to the difficulty of delivery, especially for florists whose every-day needs do not call for the maintenance of an automobile. When Wm. Terrell & Son tackled their deliveries on Christmas distribution of purchases, the heaviest on record, they found Warsaw, Ind., under a blanket of "the beautiful" at least six inches thick. The deliveries are the task of George E. Terrell and the illustration at the bottom of page 14 shows him on his holiday rounds.

GOLDEN GLEAM.

Although few concerns have introduced a greater number of novelties than has A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., it is not often that the Pierson novelties are of Pierson raising; usually they are good things picked out by the discriminating eye of Wallace R. Pierson on his travels. But Golden Gleam is a new mum that originated as a seedling raised in the Cromwell greenhouses. It is a fine yellow in color, of excellent form and substance, coming in season during the last ten days of October, second crown buds being used. The growth is only medium in height and the flowers can be grown two to a plant, which is an important consideration with the average market grower.

HOOSIERS TO MEET.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held in Indianapolis Tuesday, January 11, at the Chamber of Commerce, or old Commercial Club rooms, 28 South Meridian street. Members will assemble at 2:30 p. m. on the seventh floor.

Following are the rules that will govern the competition for the Indiana rose trophy, which must be staged by 2:30 p. m. Albert Pettit will be in charge:

Competition shall be open to the members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana only.

Twenty-five blooms, in three or more varieties, shall be shown in one vase. Blooms must be the exhibitor's own production.

The quality of the stock shown shall be the only consideration in making the award.

Only disseminated varieties shall be used.

Judging shall be done according to the American Rose Society's scale of points.

The trophy shall be competed for annually, at the January meeting.

The winner's name shall be engraved on the trophy, and he shall have it in his custody until the next following annual meeting.

Entries must be in the hands of the secretary two days before the meeting.

The rules for the carnation trophy are similar, except that fifty blooms, in four or more varieties, shall be shown in one vase, the judging to be done according to the American Carnation Society's scale of points.

The usual 6 o'clock dinner will be served. The committee, which consists of O. E. Steinkamp, H. L. Wiegand and Clarence C. Thomas, has arranged a theater party at Keith's, free to out-of-Marion-county members, through the courtesy of Indianapolis members.

Those who will attend are urged to bring a plant or cut flowers, either standard varieties or novelties, to add to the exhibition. The committee has written the several disseminators of novelties to send sample blooms for this meeting.

THE GARDENERS' OFFICERS.

The secretary of the National Association of Gardeners announces the following appointments by President William N. Craig:

Directors for three years—John W. Everitt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; Thomas W. Logan, Jenkintown, Pa.; Robert Cameron, Cambridge, Mass.; James MacMachan, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; A. Bauer, Deal Beach, N. J.; David Fraser, Pittsburgh, Pa.; George W. Hess, Washington, D. C.

Committee on meritorious exhibits—William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; Alexander Mackenzie, Highland Falls, N. Y.; William Hertrich, San Gabriel, Cal.; Duncan Finlayson, Brookline, Mass.; Albin Martini, Lake Geneva, Wis.

Committee on bird preservation and propagation—L. P. Jensen, St. Louis, Mo.; Robert Williamson, New Canaan, Conn.; C. N. Fohn, Colorado Springs, Colo.; William Rennie, San Rafael, Cal.; William Reid, Orange, N. J.; A. J. Lovell, Lenox, Mass.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

PREPARING FOR SPRING.

Now that the holidays are over, southern growers have a busy after-math in cleaning and straightening up the houses in preparation for the plants intended for Easter. Clean the tables lately occupied by the Christmas flowering plants and put on a layer of finely sifted ashes. Left-over plants of cyclamens, primulas and begonias can be rearranged, giving them room to develop properly. Stock plants of poinsettias can be laid on their sides underneath a table in a carnation house, and they will need no more attention until time to start them up again in the spring. Small plants of these, however, in 3-inch or 4-inch pots, will need a little water occasionally; otherwise

PREPARING FOR SPRING.

Now that the holidays are over, southern growers have a busy after-math in cleaning and straightening up the houses in preparation for the plants intended for Easter. Clean the tables lately occupied by the Christmas flowering plants and put on a layer of finely sifted ashes. Left-over plants of cyclamens, primulas and begonias can be rearranged, giving them room to develop properly. Small plants of these, however, in 3-inch or 4-inch pots, will need a little water occasionally; otherwise they are liable to rot. Any plants that were grown on tables for the cut bracts can be dried off, lifted and put in boxes or potted and placed under the bench. Any unsold azaleas, which are through flowering, may as well be thrown away, as they do not carry over the summer well enough to be worth the work. L.

ROSES IN THE SOUTH.

The holiday crop is past, or nearly so, and the beds want a good overhauling. Remove any dead leaves from the surface and leaves showing the first potting should be leaf-mold and soil screened fine, the former predominating, with a little clean sand added. L.

GIGANTEUMS FOR EASTER.

In the northern sections giganteum lilies should now be brought from under the benches and placed on top. They will require a temperature of not over 60 degrees at night for a week or two. It is a nice point to make here in the south, the timing of these plants for Easter. We are almost sure to have pretty warm weather in April and right, some having to be hurried and some held back, so that houses with different temperatures are needed to handle them properly, especially towards the finish. When they need to be retarded, do not lower the temperature too suddenly, as a change of 10 degrees is liable to check their growth and, when this happens, they are rather difficult to start off again. Rather drop by degrees for a few nights until the desired temperature is reached. Of course, when the buds are just ready to crack open a big drop will not affect them much. In the southern sections of the south an ordinary rose temperature of 56 to 58 degrees will be about right. They may require a little manipulation towards the finish, but this is more than likely to be on the holding back end. The plants at first will not take much water at the roots, especially if the pots are set close together, but when the buds are formed they will drink it up freely. Spray freely, especially in the higher temperatures, and do not let the aphids get a start. The plants now run from three to eight inches in height. L.

CYCLAMENS DYING OFF.

I would like to find out why my cyclamens are dying off in such a queer fashion. On some of the plants part of the leaves get limp and soft, droop and gradually die. One plant I have has only the flowers left, but they still are standing up stiff and straight. Some plants seem to lose only a few leaves at a time and on others one-half of the plant, including leaves, flowers and buds, wilts down at one time. The trouble did not show until the plants were in the final pots, a 5-inch size. They are being grown in a carnation temperature, the same as I have always used. The soil was composed of about two-thirds loam, mixed with well decayed cow manure and sand, and one-third leaf-mold, also well decayed. I have never had this trouble before and always used the same proportion, with possibly a little more leaf-mold in the compost this year than in former years.

black spot from the plants. Any lumps of manure that has been used for mulching can be broken up and the whole surface worked over, using only the palm of the hand for this operation. Use some care not to over-water. When the plants begin to break freely, another mulch of good cow manure can be applied. Place this in ridges between the rows, rather than spreading it evenly all over. Keep a careful watch on the ventilation, as each fluctuation in the weather must be met with a change in the ventilating machinery. Keep the plants tied up neatly, but avoid crowding the foliage. L.

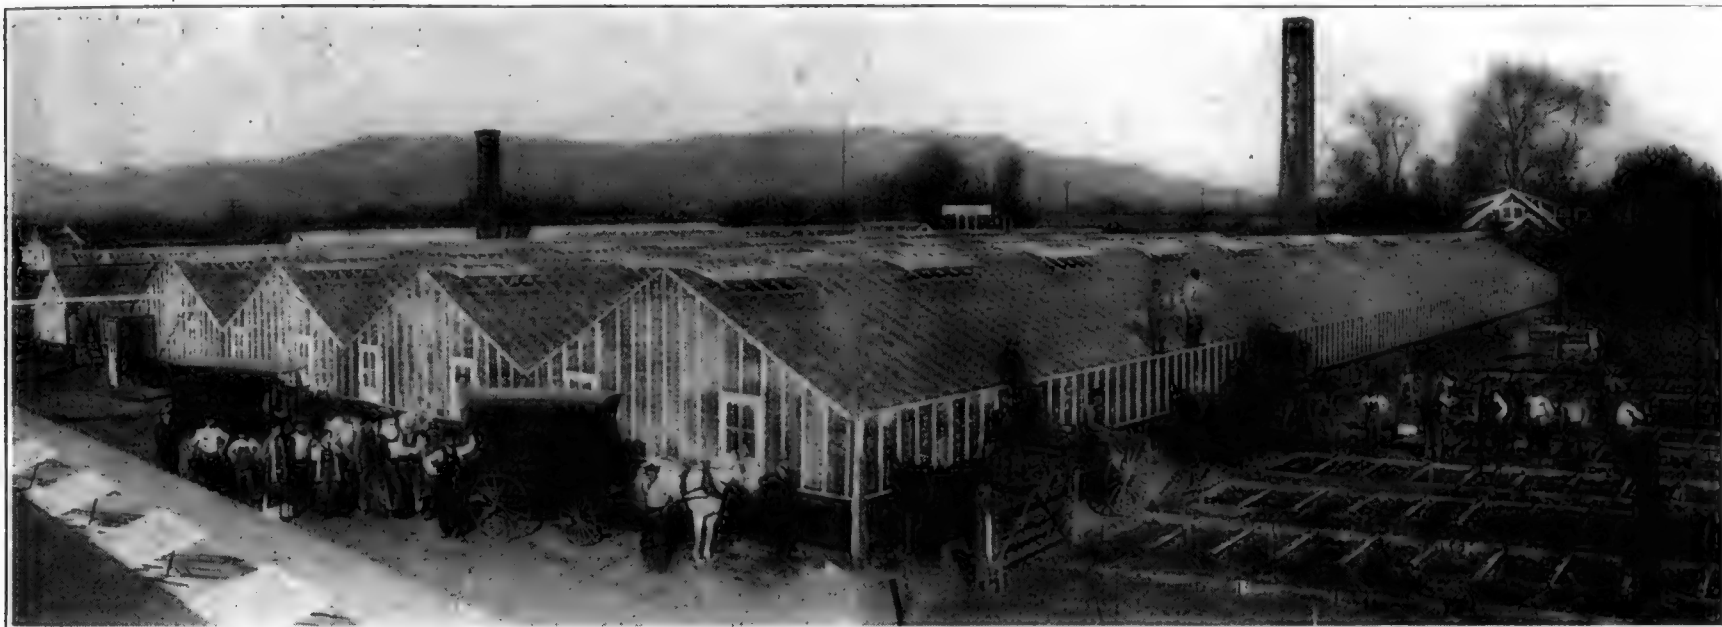

PROPAGATING BEGONIAS.

Leaf cuttings of Lorraine and Glory of Cincinnati begonias should be inserted in the sand without delay. Select the healthy, medium-sized leaves for this purpose. Any other kind will probably root readily enough, but are almost certain to die before the suckers appear from the bottom. I have tried splitting the big leaves of Cincinnati down the middle of the stem and also cutting them like a Rex begonia and, while I have had fair success with both plans, I do not recommend either, as the results are too uncertain. They root readily in a temperature of 60 degrees or a little over, in twenty to twenty-five days. The suckers do not appear for a long time after. Some growers allow the cuttings to remain in the sand until the suckers appear and others pot them in 2¼-inch pots as soon as well rooted. I prefer the latter method. The mixture for if the plants are too far advanced it is almost impossible to hold them. I prefer always to have to push them towards the finish. If the buds can be seen five weeks before Easter they can be forced on time, with a week to harden off, in a night temperature of 68 to 70 degrees, with a good rise during the day. They may require some handling to get them all just

Examine the soil in one or two pots. Note if there are any grubs there. These are often the cause of the trouble you refer to, eating off practically all the roots. These grubs come in cow manure, which it is always safer to sterilize before using, and are the larvæ of the May beetle. Your compost and treatment appear to have been all that they should be, so I think the grubs are the cause of the injury.

NEAR THE WORLD'S TOP.

The accompanying general view of the greenhouses of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., of Colorado Springs, Colo., was taken since the damage to them last summer by a hail storm had been repaired. As the head of one of the largest concerns west of Chicago, President William H. Evans needs no introduction to readers of The Review.

Another accompanying illustration will give some idea of the excellent facilities of this company's greenhouse packing room.

The third and last of the illustrations herewith depicts the interior of the retail store. One cannot imagine a customer going dissatisfied from a shop so well appointed as is this one.

TO ROOT BOXWOOD.

Can you give me any idea of what it is worth to root boxwood per thousand, and the easiest way to do it? Any information in regard to this will be appreciated.

T. H.—Mich.

I presume you refer to the dwarf boxwood used for hedges. Cuttings four to six inches long can be taken in the autumn and rooted in flats of sandy soil in a cold greenhouse. They can also be inserted in coldframes, where a good mulch of dry leaves in winter is necessary, sashes being used to keep these dry, to exclude frost and prevent the soil from heaving.

In April or the first half of May old hedges may be pulled to pieces and the divided portions planted in rows, burying the stems well and not leaving over one-fourth of the shoots above ground. Soak well and tramp firmly.

If dry weather comes, an occasional watering will be of benefit. Far the largest part of the shoots will root if they receive any sort of attention, but it is hard to fix a price on rooting them. So much must depend on who is doing the work and the quantity inserted. A small number will cost, of course, proportionately more than a large number. Even in the eastern states it is quite feasible to tear old hedges apart, replant them and get a good catch, always provided that the stems are well buried, watered and firmly tramped. The firming is important.

MR. KUNDERD'S SUCCESSES.

Noticing in a recent copy of The Review an article stating that A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., had sold his stock of Gladiolus Myrtle at a high price, reminded me of the wonderful success this specialist has achieved during the last few years. The originator of a new ruffled type of which Glory was the forerunner, he has also advanced to the front rank of hybridists, with a larger amount of commercially successful productions than any other American grower.

Among the best known of his seedlings are the beautiful Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Ruffled Glory, Chicago White, the earliest white to date; Myrtle, soft pink; Rajah, deep red; Mongolian, yellow; Ida Van, cerise scarlet, and Red Amaryllis, all awarded highest honors in such shows as those of the American Gladiolus Society, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the National Gladiolus Society of England and the National Society of Horticulture, Paris.

The culture and selection of seedling gladioli has been taken up so extensively of late that a new introduction must possess extraordinary merit in order to create much of a sensation among the many highly improved sorts that have already made their mark in the gladiolus world.

The Kunderd introductions, owing to the fact that they are distinctively American, should be fully appreciated by the American public, as until comparatively recently practically all the leading named varieties, with few exceptions, were originated by foreign growers.

Referring to an article published in The Review of September 4, 1913, the writer describes a visit to the gladiolus gardens of Chamberlain & Gage, part of which reads as follows:

"A new variety of Kunderd's, of which Mr. Gage informed me he had purchased the entire stock, will create a sensation in the trade when introduced, as it is a superb florists' variety, color a delicate cream-pink, with creamy yellow throat and six enormous blooms open at once on a tall, straight stem."

This prophecy bids fair to be fulfilled, as the variety mentioned, shown by L. Merton Gage at the show of the American Gladiolus Society at Newport, R. I., last August, and named by him Mrs. Dr. Norton, won first award as best seedling never before exhibited. This variety and a large flowering lavender seedling named Julia T. Fairbanks, also a Kunderd production, were surrounded by admirers throughout the show.

Mr. Gage, himself a hybridist of note, is to be credited with a large amount of business acumen and far-sightedness in securing the stock of what promises to be one of the best selling varieties ever disseminated. It is understood it will be distributed not earlier than 1917.

ROSES

TO KEEP BRUNNER IN BLOOM.

Please inform us, at your earliest convenience, how to treat Cecile Brunner roses. This is the first year we have had them. At first they were fine and bloomed by the hundred every day. Now, however, there are only a few flowers, though they are still of good quality.

J. A. C.—Mich.

J. A. C. does not state how his Cecile Brunner roses were treated, but, judging from my own experience, I would advise him to grow them in a temperature of 62 to 64 degrees at night. They cannot be grown successfully in a Killarney temperature; we have found the heat insufficient. In a warmer atmosphere they carry through the short days satisfactorily. In other respects their treatment should be about the same as for Killarneys.

A "PEEK-IN" ON RICHMOND.

A good sight for sore eyes are the interiors—and especially have they been so the last month—of the rose houses of George A. Kuhl, of Pekin, Ill. All told, there are 1,800 Richmond plants in the house the radiant interior of which is represented in the illustration.

Mr. Kuhl says the daily cut for December from this one house, which is 172 feet long, has run from 300 to 500. In the illustration, Mr. Johnson, the grower, is to be seen standing in the center of the house. He has been successful with Richmond for Mr. Kuhl for the last three years, bringing them in just right for Christmas trade.

SOME OF LEAVES ARE BLACK.

We are sending you a few leaves from Richmond rose plants. Some of the leaves are black, while other leaves on the same plant have a good green color. Kindly tell us what is the cause of this, if you can.

J. B.—Ill.

It is difficult to form an opinion as to the trouble with a lot of plants by simply examining a few wilted leaves. Hence any opinion given in this case must be guesswork to a great extent. If roses are planted fairly close together and have made good growth, so that the foliage is pretty heavy, and if they are given a mulching of fresh manure or a commercial fertilizer containing a large percentage of ammonia, the lower leaves are almost sure to turn black from the free ammonia arising from the ground, while the upper leaves will not show any bad effect. This will be the more noticeable if the soil was on the dry side at the time the feed was applied. Heavy sulphuring will sometimes have this effect, but in that case the leaves on the outside of the benches will show the discoloration most, while those nearer the center of the bench, being more protected, will show little bad effect.

W. J. K.

ANGLEWORMS A BLESSING.

We are enclosing samples of a worm that got into the soil of our roses. This worm was in the manure that we put on the benches. We have taken off all the manure, but a number of the worms still are in the soil. We put on a good application of air-slaked lime, but that has failed to kill them all. Kindly advise if these worms will damage the plants and how we can get rid of them. They are all through the soil in places.

G. F. F. C.—Mont.

The soil was as dry as a brick on arrival and so were the worms, but from the appearance of what was left of them they were the common angleworm, which is considered indispensable in successful rose culture. These worms will take the manure down into the soil and digest it, making it immediately available to the plant; besides, through working in the soil, they keep the pores open and thereby prevent the soil from becoming sour. We always have found that roses make strong and vigorous growth when there are plenty of these worms in the soil. We encourage them by applications of manure. If they should grow too plentiful it would be an easy matter to reduce their number by an application of air-slaked lime. As the worms die in the soil, they will act as a fertilizer to the plants. Taking it all in all, we consider this worm a great blessing to the rose grower.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Carthage, Mo.—The T. R. Johnson greenhouses, formerly known as the Finn greenhouses, were sold at a trustee's sale December 22 to satisfy a $3,000 mortgage held by Oscar De Graff, of Joplin, who sold the property to Mr. Johnson. Mr. De Graff obtained the houses on a $2,500 bid. Mr. Johnson paid $8,000 for the place some three or four years ago, paying $5,000 down and giving his note, secured by the property, for the deferred payment of $3,000.

San Francisco, Cal.—Under the heading of "Burbank in Money Fight; Asks $9,775," the San Francisco Examiner of December 30 printed the following news concerning the finances of the Luther Burbank Co: "Luther Burbank, through his attorney, Otto Irving Wise, has filed a suit in the San Francisco Superior court against the Luther Burbank Co. for the collection of $9,775 in two notes given him by the company. Last Monday Mr. Burbank notified the company of the cancellation of the contract by which the company had the exclusive right to sell all his products. He prohibited further use of his name in connection with the company. The company has been doing business in seeds from Maine to California. The main offices are at 301 Market street. Attorney Wise stated that 'the men who secured the contract from Mr. Burbank and who promoted the company were R. J. Hough and W. Garner Smith. Company stock to the amount of $375,000 has been sold to the public at par. The company agreed to pay Mr. Burbank $300,000, in terms of $30,000 cash and $15,000 a year.

They were to have exclusive rights to sell all his products. They paid him the $30,000, sold company stock like hot cakes and never paid him another dollar. Mr. Burbank has now canceled the contract, forbidden use of his name and has brought suit for $10,000. Another suit will be brought for $15,000. These suits are for arrearages. The assets of the company include a large stock of spring seeds on hand and valuable farms at Sebastopol, Livermore and Dixon."

PENN'S STORE PICTORIALY.

An interesting account of the appearance of the new store of Penn the Florist, at 124 Tremont street, Boston, appeared in The Review for December 16—but there were no pictures of it. Here are two.

One of the views is of the spacious front on Tremont street, and was taken December 18, 1915, the opening day. The all-glass windows afford a clear view into the shop. From this broad entrance one enters the main business lobby, the walls of which are entirely of glass, plain and mirrored. On either side of this space are the great display refrigerators, electrically lighted by concealed bulbs.

The other view is that of the Italian fountain court, the store's main feature. To quote from a Boston newspaper, this court "is set off from the rest of the shop by eight marble shafts, supporting a frieze picked out in delicate relief in keeping with the spirit and design of the court, and a decorative glass ceiling through which daylight enters. At night exterior lights flood the court with brilliancy.

"In the center of the tiled floor, done in pattern of three colors, is a delicate dolphin fountain, more than five feet high, from which streams of water play continuously. Flanking the fountain, in the four corners of the apartment, are lamps of rare beauty, done in black and gold.

"The walls of the court are of Caen stone finish on three sides. The Hamilton place side is entirely of transparent glass, allowing a splendid view from the street."

The color scheme of the store in general is designed to show off the stock to advantage and to enable customers to make selections with a minimum of difficulty, thereby helping to achieve rapid and careful service.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Julius Eger, of Schenectady, N. Y., reports a satisfactory holiday business, both the Christmas and the New Year's trade being above the average. He has the decoration for the Elks' ball, which is expected to be the best yet attempted.

J. G. Hatcher, of Schenectady, experienced a big call for plants both at the Schenectady and Amsterdam stores.

M. P. Champlin, of Schenectady, had a good holiday trade, although many of his patrons are students, who were away for the holidays. Many orders through the F. T. D. kept him busy.

The Sunnyside Greenhouses, of Schenectady, experienced a phenomenal sale on pot plants, especially in ferns. The general shortage in carnations in this section strengthened the price and helped the sale on flowering and foliage plants.

W. W. Grupe, of Schenectady, said that the amount of business done was the largest in his experience.

The Rosendale Flower Shop, of Schenectady, enjoyed a large share of the holiday business. The nursery department is a valuable adjunct to the cut flower section.

W. C. Eger, of Schenectady, had a fine display of Dutch and Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi in bloom in pots, which met with ready sale.

Barney's department store, of Schenectady, made a fine showing of blooming plants and cut flowers, with the season's greetings conspicuously displayed.

E. V. B. Felthousen, of Schenectady, predicts a banner call for geraniums in season and is preparing for it.

The Schenectady Seed Co., of Schenectady, cleaned out completely in holiday greens and is preparing for the seed season. This company is one of the Burpee agents for this neighborhood.

Fred Goldring, of Slingerlands, N. Y., said that the new year finds him prepared and waiting for a share of the good things the craft is promised—big sales, prompt payments, small profits and quick returns. His experience of last year makes him optimistic.

Alfred Goldring, of Cobleskill, N. Y., reports an excellent holiday business, with no salable stock left over. "And now," says he, "prepare for the spring rush."

The Yuess Gardens Co., of Newburgh, N. Y., reports a banner holiday trade. While the recent storm was at its height, a chimney took a tumble, but, fortunately, little damage was done.

Valentine Burgevin's Sons, Kingston, N. Y., made their usual attractive holiday display, both in the handsome store and at the houses, with most satisfactory results.

Henry Hansen, of Catskill, N. Y., had his usual satisfactory run of holiday business. There was a steady call for well grown stock.

F. A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y., had one of the finest holiday windows in the city and had the stock at the houses to suit all classes of patrons.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

"Clean as a hound's tooth" fits the local market to a nicety right now. There is some stock to be had, but one must be up early in the morning to get it. Anything that looks like a flower sells on sight. Funeral work is heavy. Carnations are being sold at $5 to $6 per hundred; Paper Whites at $4; lilies at $12.50; roses at $5 to $15 per hundred. A few freesias sell at $6 per hundred. Short tulips are scarce. There is no large supply of any cut flower promised for January. The present condition doubtlessly will continue for several weeks.

Club Doings.

The Cleveland Florists' Club will hold a banquet at the Hollenden hotel, January 12. A report was read at the December meeting which showed the wonderful success made, both horticulturally and financially, by the 1915 fall flower show. The members then decided to celebrate by holding a get-together jubilee banquet. All florists throughout the city, with their wives and sweethearts, are invited to attend.

The committee in charge of the banquet promises to have something out of the ordinary by way of entertainment—not just like the flower show smoker, but good, high-class entertainment.

Checks for the flower show guarantors will be given out at the banquet. The final accounting has been made and Mr. Vinson is ready with his final report. F. A. F.

DAYTON, O.

The Holiday Business.

Business during the holidays, especially at Christmas, was good. Everybody seemed satisfied, and practically everything in cut flowers and blooming plants was sold. Carnations took the lead over roses in demand, and I hear some fancy prices were obtained. Roses, because of the cloudy weather, were off color. Good poinsettias, both cut and in pots, were offered; also azaleas, which found a ready sale. Cyclamens, begonias and primroses moved well. The cloudy weather which has prevailed for some time has shortened the supply of roses and carnations. Lilium giganteum seems to have disappeared all at once. A few weeks ago one could buy at one's own price; now none are to be had. Last week kept the florists busy getting stock enough to fill orders, as the high death rate has resulted in much funeral work. New Year's trade was not up to expectations.

Various Notes.

J. W. Rodgers, manager of the Miami Floral Co., is suffering from an attack of grip, which disease has stormed Dayton in full force. Mrs. George W.

Bartholomew and daughter, Elsie, also have succumbed to the pestiferous grip. E. M. Schaefer, of the Advance Floral Co., has been confined to his home with tonsillitis. G. W. B.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The New Year's trade was brisk. Owing to cloudiness, flowers were not so plentiful as had been hoped and many of the consignments were several hours late. Two or three large consignments of orchids from Canada arrived in a frozen condition. Consequently orchids were obtainable for New Year's only from a few local growers. In fact, most of the stock of flowers was cleaned up New Year's eve. Several balls and parties have called for large numbers of corsages, and this has kept the trade busy. Funeral work has been heavy and the market has been cleaned up every day. Prices were a little advanced, but are resuming their normal range.

Roses have been plentiful and of good quality. Reds have received the biggest call, but other colors of all grades have sold well. American Beauties have been of splendid color and quality. Lilies are slowing up. Valley was plentiful and moved actively during the holidays. Bouvardia, in pink and white, sells well. Stevia also is found useful. Paper Whites sell to advantage. Carnations, pink and white, are not over-plentiful, but the darker shades of pink drag a little. Violets are good and meet with a fair demand. Mignonette, daisies and snapdragons are on the market, but the supply is limited.

Good business has been done in potted plants. Some excellent Dutch hyacinths, jonquils, azaleas and primulas have been disposed of. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Bates were in Philadelphia Christmas.

James Vick's Sons report business as good indeed. They have been fortu-

It Points the Way

No man concerned with the publication of The Review is so foolish as to believe it impossible for a florist to do a wholesale business without the use of this paper's advertising columns.

But this much is certain: The man who sells his stock by other means chooses a more costly way of getting business. And the extra cost he takes either from his profits or from his customers.

There lies ahead of the craft a wonderful opportunity for the development of the wholesale plant trade. Thousands of florists have large facilities for selling to the public and few facilities for producing what they sell. They must buy. For the man who can grow the stock the retailers need there is no limit to the business that can be done.

Location counts for little. It is as easily possible for the florist in the small town to do a business that covers a dozen states—or the whole country—as it is for the one who is located in a big city. Indeed, in many respects the small town florist has the advantage. It isn't a question of situation—it depends only on ambition and the ability to grow good stock.

But to realize the necessary profit the most effective selling means must be employed.

HANOVER GREENHOUSES

Growers of PLANTS AND FLOWERS

Hanover, Mass., Dec. 12, 1915.

The Florists' Review,
508 So. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—Enclosed find $1.00 in payment of next year's subscription.

In this connection I wish to say I have been more than pleased with The Review and especially with the way the advertising department is conducted.

Yours very truly,

A. SORENSEN,
Mgr. Hanover Greenhouses.

nate in being able to fill all aster orders for the coming season. Considering the bad season, with such quantities of rain, the fall produced good crops. They are planning a still more extensive acreage the coming spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Dildine have been the guests of his brother in Hightstown, N. J.

The Lord & Burnham Co. is doing an active business at its local office. Mr. Bates, of this concern, has returned from a successful business trip to western Pennsylvania, where he received many good inquiries for bigger and better houses of more permanence. There appears to be more ready money in hand, he says.

W. C. Langbridge, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., of Cambridge, N. Y., was here recently.

Martin O. Stone, for twenty years secretary of the board of park commissioners and well known among the florists, died at Charlotte, December 28.

The large and modern icebox, fifteen feet long, manufactured by the Mc-Cray Refrigerator Co., of Kendallville, Ind., has just been installed in the store of George T. Boucher. It meets every requirement and is about the only one of its kind here. The woodwork is attractively finished in white enamel.

The window display of the Rochester Floral Co. last week was called "The Steps of Time." Twelve steps represented the twelve months, on which flowers in various forms were placed.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The end of 1915 saw a most satisfactory condition of the market, and if it is a criterion of what is in store for us in 1916 we surely have a tremendous year to look forward to. Prices did not take the customary drop right after Christmas, but held firm. All stock remains quite scarce and it is extremely difficult to fill regular orders satisfactorily. The present shortage has existed longer than is usually the case and there will have to be a radical change in the cut before present market conditions are influenced to any extent. All stock is of good quality and there are no hold-overs from day to day.

The demand for corsages seemed to be stronger than that of previous years and the prices were high. Added to this was a large quantity of funeral work. Although there was a general clean-up on plants before Christmas, quite a few orders were received after that time. One big advantage of a shortage, such as existed at Christmas, is that the usual complaints are conspicuous by their absence. The stock last year was exceptionally fine, and as it was necessary to bring stock into the market every day there was little or no pickled stock. Some of the stock did not reach its destination in good shape, but this was mostly the fault of transportation.

Mr. Lubliner Weds.

William Lubliner, who conducts flower stores at 123 and 225 Grand avenue, took unto himself a wife January 2. Inasmuch as the engagement was made public some time ago, there is no chance for the assumption that it was a leap-year proposal. The lady was Miss Evelyn Blumenfeld, of 782 Cramer street. The nuptials were solemnized in the red room of the Hotel Pfister at 5:30 p. m.

The bride and groom left directly after the ceremony for a honeymoon trip through the south. There were about fifty guests and a special train brought most of them from Chicago, as most of the relatives of both contracting parties make that city their home. The newly married couple expect to be gone about two weeks, after which they will be at home to their friends at 740 Prospect avenue. The home is already prepared for their return and it is to be hoped that friends will add the finishing touches while they are in the enchanting southland. It goes without saying that there were flowers in abundance. H. J. S.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business during the first few days after Christmas was rather slow, as was expected, but during the latter part of the week trade became better. While there was no extraordinary demand at New Year's, sales were up to the average. The demand, of course, was mostly for red. A few cut poinsettias were to be had and the red roses were in fair supply, while the red carnation cut was larger than that at Christmas. Prices have dropped somewhat in most lines. There are many calls for blooming plants.

From present indications it seems as though the flower-buying public does not take kindly to the much advanced prices prevailing on cut flowers during the holiday season, and for that reason are turning more and more to the plants, which make a larger showing for the same amount of money. The increased plant sales must be attributed to this condition.

Various Notes.

William E. McKissick paid a flying visit to relatives in Philadelphia over New Year's.

John Nuth has a fine crop of red carnations, about a week late for the Christmas trade.

Pierce & Co. report the best holiday trade since starting in business. Plants in all varieties were featured with great success.

The final discussion of the recommendations of the 1915 show committee will take place at the next meeting of the Florists' Club, January 13. The committee for the 1916 show will be appointed and the suggestions of last year's committee acted upon. Some interesting matters will be brought before the meeting and it is hoped all those interested will be on hand.

I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, called on the trade last week.

Fred C. Bauer has added a new automobile to his delivery service, with interchangeable bodies for business or pleasure. W. F. E.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Shipments during the final week of 1915 were light and Christmas prices were maintained. New Year's orders used everything in blooming plants that remained unsold at Christmas. The splendid business of the holidays will long remain an inspirational memory.

American Beauties hold their place at the head of the rose procession and for the specials a dollar was the quotation December 31. Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia and Prima Donna brought Christmas prices for New Year's. There was a surplus of long-stemmed roses of some of the older varieties, December 31, but before noon of January 1 the demand had left the market about bare.

Carnations were unexpectedly strong, and the quotations for December 31 were $10 per hundred for reds and $8 per hundred for the best whites and pinks. The supply, of course, was limited. There was an abundance of valley and lilies, the latter finding top at $10 per hundred. The selected valley sold at $4 per hundred.

Primulas and hyacinths in pots and pans were in many of the wholesalers' windows. A few poinsettias remain. Violets appear to have grown greatly in public favor. The wholesale market could use a much larger quantity daily than is arriving. For first-quality flowers prices were firm at $1 per hundred. Daisies, bouvardia, stevia, forget-me-nots, pansies, wallflowers and mignonne complete the list of offerings.

The orchid market was demoralized through excess of arrivals and December 31 dollar values fell to 50 cents and under. The top offer as the old year passed was $40 per hundred.

Various Notes.

The New York Florists' Club will open its season for 1916 the evening of January 10 at the Grand Opera House building on Twenty-third street. There will be exhibits, the new president will announce his committees and the date of the annual banquet will be set.

The Rockaway Floral Co. has been incorporated at Queens, L. I.

H. C. Riedel, of Riedel & Meyer, Inc., who visited Boston and Providence florists last week, is suffering from muscular rheumatism.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has closed its branch retail store on Fulton street.

The H. A. Bunyard Co., Inc., had a profitable holiday plant trade. Its catalogue is being distributed.

Young & Nugent report a complete Christmas clean-up. They could have sold $1,000 worth more if stock had been obtainable.

Many holiday orders from out-of-town florists were received, demonstrating the value of The Review's telegraph delivery advertisements. In Brooklyn, Phillips, Wilson, Jahn and Joseph Trepel had many of these commissions from afar.

Bonnet & Blake, of Brooklyn, report the best Christmas and holiday trade in their thirteen years of experience in the wholesale business. Demeusy's carnations and A. N. Pierson's roses were the leaders there. J. Austin Shaw.

George W. Cohen, who has traveled for ribbon houses catering to the florists' trade, has formed a partnership

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The week following Christmas was a rather trying one, because of the unusual shortage of flowers. The demand for everything for the holiday required an unusually close cut all along the line. This, with the dark, stormy weather which prevailed during the closing week of the year, occasioned the shortage. Carnations, usually 2 and 3 cents at this time, were short at 6 and 8 cents; roses were from 10 cents up, as against 4 cents up, normally. It has been many years since the death lists have been as large as at present and the demand for flowers has accordingly increased.

Various Notes.

A blizzard December 26, although lasting but a short time, did considerable damage. There were few greenhouses that did not lose more or less glass, but the temperature was not low enough to occasion much loss of stock before repairs could be made. At the Hampden Meadows Greenhouses, near Warren, the wind blew over the large chimney, but the bricks fell away from the houses, which escaped damage. The end of one of the houses of the Norwood Floral Co., at Norwood, was torn out by the wind, carrying with it a portion of the roof.

Joseph E. Koppelman has decided to give up his farm of several acres at Oaklawn and to remove the six large greenhouses there to his place on Pawtuxet avenue, near Riverside, where he already has half a dozen modern houses.

A well attended meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held in Swarts' Lodge hall, December 27, when plans were made for holding the annual supper and the installation of officers January 24. It was announced that the secretary, William E. Chappell, is slowly convalescing from serious injuries received about ten days previously, when he fell down the cellar stairs, badly straining his left leg. A committee consisting of Robert Johnston, Eugene A. Appleton and Alex. Macrae was appointed to have charge of the arrangements for the supper and entertainment. Plans are being perfected for the conduct of a membership campaign with the view of securing the active affiliation of every eligible person in the state.

William Cohen, formerly with Hoffman, at Pawtucket, now is employed by Miss Ellen O'Connor.

William Doel, of Pascoag, has received word that his brother, Herbert, has reenlisted in the British navy, where he had fifteen years' previous service.

Johnston Bros. have announced the opening of their new greenhouses on Hope street, in charge of Edmund J. Johnston.

George L. Stillman has leased six acres of land on Beach street, Westerly, for five years, which he will devote to dahlias.

Carmichael Bros. are preparing to nearly double their acreage of gladioli at Shannock this season.

Miss O'Connor reports a large New Year's business. She had nearly fifty basket bouquets for coming-out occasions. W. H. M.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

The Springfield Florists' Club held its annual election, Tuesday evening, January 4, this having been the first election under a new and much abbreviated set of regulations. The following officers were chosen: President, Frank E. Good; vice-president, Geo. H. Mellen; secretary, Arthur J. Todd; treasurer, Clifford Paden. The president, vice-president and secretary will constitute the executive committee. The officers-elect were immediately installed by the retiring president, Charles C. Leedle, and each responded in a few well chosen words. Ge Dale.

Blissfield, Mich.—Byron E. Niles was elected president of the Lenawee County Horticultural Society at its recent meeting at Adrian.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs.

Following an illness of several years' duration, Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs, of Dayton, O., 63 years of age, who conducted a store at 808 East Fifth street, Dayton, for twenty years, died at her home December 26. The end had been expected for several days.

Mrs. Hendrichs was a native of Germany, but came to America when a child. The flower store was started by Herman Hendrichs, the husband, who also is deceased. In 1896 Mr. and Mrs. Hendrichs visited Mount Clemens, Mich., with the view of improving the health of the latter. A short time afterwards Mr. Hendrichs suddenly died from a stroke of apoplexy. Mrs. Hendrichs took charge of the business immediately after her husband's death and was active manager until a short time ago, when her surviving daughter, Mrs. L. D. Johnson, assumed management of the business.

Burial was made at Woodland cemetery. The members of the Dayton Florists' Club, of which Mrs. Hendrichs was a charter member, sent a large decoration in appreciation. G. W. B.

Alexander Chisolm.

Alexander Chisolm, one of the oldest and best known private gardeners in New England, died at the Sturdy Memorial hospital, Attleboro, Mass., December 21, following an illness of several weeks. He was in his seventy-fifth year. Forty years ago he entered the employ of H. F. Barrows, at Attleboro, and recently completed a re-layout of the grounds surrounding Mr. Barrows' new home. A son and daughter survive him. W. H. M.

Daniel J. Hurley.

Daniel J. Hurley, 52 years of age, a nurseryman of Springfield, Mass., died December 25 after a long illness. Mr. Hurley is survived by two sisters, Mrs. C. Hickey, of Springfield, and Miss M. Hurley, of Plymouth.

Major Frank Holsinger.

Major Frank Holsinger, Kansas pioneer and authority on horticulture, died suddenly last week at his home at Rosedale, a suburb of Kansas City. He was 80 years old.

Major Holsinger was born in Pennsylvania. He first went to Kansas before the Civil war and located south of Lawrence. He took part in several of the border war engagements and when the Civil war broke out he returned to his native state and enlisted in the Eighth Pennsylvania Reserve. He was promoted to the rank of major during the Virginia campaign and after the war he had charge of the Freedmen's Bureau of Texas. In 1868 he returned to Kansas and settled on the 160-acre farm at Rosedale, where he lived until recently. He has filled the offices of president and treasurer of the Kansas State Horticultural Society, being one of its organizers. Several years ago, in order to interest children in fruit growing, Major Holsinger gave away young fruit trees at the close of the school year, with instructions as to how to care for them.

Major Holsinger was prominent in politics, being candidate for governor of Kansas in 1900 and for state senator on the Prohibition ticket in the '80s. He is survived by his wife and six children: Mrs. George Rose, George Holsinger, C. V. Holsinger, professor of horticulture of the Milwaukee Horticultural College; Gerald Holsinger, Mrs. Maude Wilson and Miss E. Holsinger. Two of the sons conduct a nursery business at Rosedale, under the name of Holsinger Bros.

Charles L. Gole.

After being confined to his bed four months with cancer, Charles L. Gole died recently at his home in Shenandoah, Ia. Previously to coming to Shenandoah six years ago he had conducted a seed business for a number of years at Crystal Lake, Ill. On removing to Shenandoah he became interested in growing gladiolus bulbs and hardy plants. Interment was at Crystal Lake.

William J. Foster.

William J. Foster, of Westerly, R. I., died December 25 of heart disease at the railway station in Westerly, while awaiting a train that brought a sister on a visit to Westerly. Mr. Foster was born in Westerly about forty-seven years ago, although he appeared to be much older. He was the only son of the late J. B. Foster, who was the head of the defunct Pawtucket bank. Mr. Foster until recently was proprietor of the Riverside Greenhouses, which he conducted for a number of years after his father's failure. He was unmarried and is survived by four sisters.

Newsy Items from All Over

Pembroke, N. Y.—Miss Ella E. Kirchhoff, daughter of the Pembroke florist and bulb grower, is a student in the class in horticulture at Cornell University, Ithaca.

Bangor, Me.—"Christmas business in Bangor was the best since 1913," according to J. Martin, Jr., who, in speaking of his own trade, said that everything sold remarkably well.

Whitneyville, Conn.—Hubert Grove had a close call recently when the wagon in which he was sitting was struck by an automobile. Mr. Grove was hurled to the ground and sustained bad bruises, but was not seriously injured.

Yonkers, N. Y.—The store of the New York Floral Co. has been purchased by Gus Massas, who has been assistant manager of the branch for a long time. Charles Rovatzos, the former manager, has taken charge of another store operated by the concern.

Westboro, Mass.—The severe wind storm that visited Westboro December 26 broke several hundred panes of glass in the greenhouses of Paul F. Bingham, who telephoned to the fire department to bring canvas to spread over the openings in the greenhouses, under which a large quantity of carnations were coming into crop.

Wichita, Kan.—A fire which originated in the boiler house of the range of William Shick played havoc in six of the greenhouses. Considerable glass was broken by the heat and a large quantity of stock was ruined. The heating system was completely wrecked and most of the stock was injured by exposure to the weather.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—The result of the balloting at the annual meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural Society was as follows: President, C. A. Pratt, of Benton Harbor; vice-president, C. A. Bingham, of Birmingham; secretary, Robert A. Smythe, of Benton Harbor; treasurer, Henry Smith, of Grand Rapids.

Anderson, Ind.—Klus & Son felt so sure that Christmas trade would be unusually active that they opened a second and more centrally located store at 922 Meridian street. The old store at 1100 Main street did a much larger business than it had done the previous Christmas, but still it did not eclipse the new store in the volume of sales. The store of Williams & Matthews did well, and Stuart & Haugh, the largest growers here, reported an increased trade over a year ago.

Bantoul, Ill.—H. M. Morris has rented his 10-acre fruit and truck garden and his greenhouses to S. D. Miller. Mr. Morris will remain on the place until Mr. Miller, his son-in-law, shall have become fully acquainted with his new profession. Mr. Morris is 70 years old and says he wants to take a rest. He has thirty colonies of Italian bees and considers that the taking care of these should furnish sufficient recreation for him. "Work," he says, "is the only road to contentment and long life."

Madison, N. J.—M. C. Ebel, secretary, of Madison, N. J., states that the national coöperative committee of the National Association of Gardeners has issued a communication to local horticultural societies offering to supply free of charge a series of papers on horticultural subjects for discussion at their monthly meetings during 1916. This offer is also extended to any other horticultural organization or educational institution. At the national convention of the association in Boston recently, a number of papers were read which elicited the comment that they were among the best essays ever presented in Horticultural hall. The subjects related to the profession of gardening, country estate management and the young gardener's opportunity in this country. It was proposed, with the foregoing result, that some provision be made to give general publicity in gardeners' circles to the contents of these papers. "Is Gardening a Profession?" by W. W. Ohlweiler, of St. Louis, is the title of the first paper of which copies are to be supplied.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
 Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
 Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

A GOOD New Year's business almost always follows a good Christmas, and vice versa.

SOME people are too easy-going to discriminate in their buying, but the day usually comes that shows the need for discrimination.

THE call for funeral flowers during the last month has exceeded anything heretofore known in the trade and has been apparent in practically every part of the country.

It will be a fine, long season this year, Easter being unusually late, April 23, but the bedding plant people will have their own troubles to find space for two crops so close together as they will be needed this spring.

RETAIL florists should not seek to defeat wholesalers' efforts to prevent cut flower prices from slipping back to the low levels of last season. Almost everything a grower uses has gone up in price and the grower is entitled to the assistance of the retailer in maintaining a higher price for flowers. By charging the public a little more one can afford to pay a little more.

PUSSY WILLOWS.

Will you please tell me how to treat pussy willow spikes after cutting them in order to make them open?

J. L. R.—Va.

Stand the spikes in wide-mouthed vases of water in a warm, moist greenhouse. You can treat sprays of forsythia, Spiraea arguta and Thunbergii and other shrubs in the same way and they will open their flowers.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

FIVE YEARS.

Anderson, A. C., Columbus, Neb.

THREE YEARS.

Fraser, James, Morristown, N. J.
 Oppenbine, Manuel, Olean, N. Y.

TWO YEARS.

Wilson, Cyrus, Marion, Ind.
 Frank Bros., Beardstown, Ill.
 Eisenhart, R. M., Philadelphia.
 Klus & Son, Anderson, Ind.
 Hare, J. B., Deer Lodge, Mont.
 Chervenka, F. A., Thomas, Wash.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

BRINGING THEM INTO LINE.

A certain town not a great distance from one of the big-city wholesale markets possessed special attractions for growers because of low realty values, low tax rate and the unpretentious character of its citizens. Within a year half a dozen new establishments of moderate size came to join the growers' colony there, in the aggregate acquiring considerable street frontage. But in the course of time a demand developed for water, sewers, lights, paving and other municipal works. And the florists, finding that the special assessments for improvements that would be of little immediate benefit to them would run into thousands of dollars, one and all joined the ranks of the objectors. Whereupon the village board passed a law requiring that before a greenhouse can be built in the village written consent must be secured from the owners of all property within a quarter of a mile. Virtual prohibition! And several of the growers planned additions this spring.

THE PRAIRIE SPIRIT.

The College of Agriculture at the University of Illinois has issued a handsomely printed and heavily illustrated pamphlet entitled "The Prairie Spirit in Landscape Gardening," which, although it might almost as well have been called an appreciation of the work of Jens Jensen and O. C. Simonds, undoubtedly will have a large influence on the rural aspect of Illinois. The monograph is from the pen of no less an authority than Wilhelm Miller, of the division of landscape extension in the university's department of horticulture, and is a plea for the restoration of ancient Illinois through the planting of native "stratified" material, or that which has strong horizontal branches or flower clusters. The text is excellent, but the illustrations are even better as affording inspiration to "go and do thou likewise," except in the cases of certain "horrible examples." While the pamphlet is too elaborate and expensive to be distributed broadcast, it is stated that a copy will be sent "free to anyone in Illinois who will sign a promise to do some permanent ornamental planting within a year." The Review suggests that each of its subscribers in Illinois write to Urbana for a copy, read it, and pass it on to a neighbor.

CAPRICIOUS QUALITY CAUGHT.

Quality is not a new word in the lexicon of the business man. He can roll it off his tongue as glibly as he can his endless stream of figures. But quality as it applies to the actual efficiency of a trade journal, as an advertising medium, has been given a new significance. It has been brought down to earth and plucked of its fine plumage and verbiage. Stripped down to its bones and sinews, the quality of a trade journal as an advertising medium simply means the pulling power of the advertisements. As an example, the pulling power of The Review's advertisements is vouched for by the testimonials sent in by those who insert ads. Here are two letters, unsolicited, that arrived in the course of a day's business:

We sold out all our sweet peas as a result of the classified ad, and still are getting orders for them, on which we have to return the money.—J. Ralph Edwards, Coatesville, Pa., December 31, 1915.

My ad in your recent issue brought good returns.—E. G. Benson, Seattle, Wash., December 29, 1915.

The grower represented by a classified ad has a sales map as wide as the country. His ad is a silent but efficient salesman that talks to a host of good buyers, each of whom has done a big holiday business. The year 1916 has already been designated Prosperity Year. The classified section is the path that leads to a share of the good things—easy, quick sales, at little cost to the advertiser.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Market conditions during the week following Christmas were the direct antithesis of those existing a year ago. Then, everything was plentiful and prices were weak. This year, there was a scarcity in everything and prices were stiff. Practically all houses have been filling cut flower orders short and in many cases declining to accept orders from other than regular customers until conditions change. As to the New Year's business, it was much the best this market ever has enjoyed, in spite of the fact that the supply was so extremely short that a normal demand would have cleaned it up.

Beauties are more plentiful than any other item, and the shorter grades clear promptly. Quality, on the whole, is fairly good. Roses with short and medium stems are at a premium without regard to color or variety. The longer grades do not move with the same degree of celerity as the shorter ones, because a large part of the stock is used for funeral work. Killarney and White Killarney are in larger supply than other varieties, with Russell as a close second. To say what particular varieties have been most in demand during the week would be a difficult thing, for the demand did not resolve itself into that question, but rather into the one of getting any stock at all. White roses have cleared with unusual speed as a result of the heavy run of funeral work.

The supply of carnations continues as short as it was a week ago. The few that find their way to the market are sold at the top figure without a quibble. Double violets are in sufficient supply to meet the demand, but singles are short. Sweet peas, as a matter of course, are clearing readily.

SPRING FLOWERS

We Offer You All the First Arrivals

There are not many jonquils on the market as yet, and those that have put in an appearance are undersized, but they are moved without difficulty. Valley, to maintain its reputation, is again on the short side of the market. The demand for funeral stock quite easily takes care of the Easter lily receipts. Daisies and mignonette are moving nicely. Bouvardia and stevia are decidedly short. Paper Whites clear as fast as they reach the market. Romans, also, sell well. Tulips have put in an appearance. There are not enough pansies available to cut much of a figure, but they are picked up at once. Gardenias and orchids continue scarce.

As a result of the general shortage in cut flowers, greens are moving with greater dispatch. Good plumosus is unusually scarce, but, for the matter of that, all kinds of greens lean toward the short side.

December Weather.

December was almost normal in the matter of mean temperature, but it was unfavorable for growers because it had only thirty-four per cent of the possible amount of sun; usually December gives forty per cent. There were only five clear days; nine partly bright; seventeen cloudy, the sun not appearing at all in twelve of the latter.

Gardeners Turn Florists.

Possibly the most interesting news of the week is the report that the L. A. Budlong Co., said to operate the world's largest market garden, is to build a range of rose houses this spring.

J. J. Budlong, president of the L. A. Budlong Co., also is president of the Lake View Trust and Savings Bank. He states that the plans are not sufficiently complete to permit of an announcement, but that it is the purpose of his company to make a start this season with a range of greenhouses that can be added to as the new department develops. He expects at least thirty days to elapse before all details are settled.

Push Freesia

It is one feature of service to let your patrons know what you have to offer them that is of exceptional value. That is why we are telling you that we have a supply of Freesia such that you can make it your leader this week.

The quality of the stock is of the best, and the shipments that we are receiving daily enable us to furnish you any quantity you want. The price is right.

On other stock, we are as well prepared to take care of you as conditions permit. There is no oversupply of anything, so prices are fairly stiff, but we always meet the market price. We never overcharge.

ness. It has large acre holdings north-west of the city and it is here, just north of Howard avenue, outside the city limits, that the greenhouses will be built. It is understood that a 250-horsepower Kroeschell fire and water tube steam boiler has been ordered, which would have a capacity of four 600-foot houses at a rose temperature.

Various Notes.

It is stated that in the five days preceding Christmas the Wells-Fargo express took 123 wagon-loads of cut flowers out of the Chicago market. Both the other companies also carried away large quantities of stock.

Now that there has been sufficient time for a more careful casting up, Christmas business looks better, even, than it did before. For instance, R. B. Brenton states that Kennicott Bros. Co., on making comparisons, finds the 1915 Christmas total twice as large as in 1913, the best previous record, and three times the sales for Christmas, 1914.

On account of the holidays, the meeting of the Chicago Retail Florists' Association scheduled for Monday evening, January 3, will be held the evening of Monday, January 10, at the offices of Payne Jennings & Co., 123 West Madison street.

It is stated that about February 1 the George Wittbold Co. will close the branch store on Clark street. This store is one of the oldest retail stands in Chicago and always has had a good trade, but owing to an increased business at the main establishment on Buckingham place, and increased facilities for handling orders from that place, it is the desire of Louis Wittbold to concentrate the business under one roof.

A novel, but logical, reason for the increased local demand has been offered by Joseph Foerster, of Kyle & Foerster. He says there is a large proportion of Chicago's population that has been in the habit, from time immemorial, of spending goodly sums of money to slake its thirst. The Sunday closing law taught many hitherto daily imbibers that they could pass a day without drinking. If one, why not more? As a result, more men spend their Sundays at home. And when a man is going straight home, what more natural than a bunch of flowers for the wife?

For the opening of the new building of the South Shore Country Club, New Year's eve, C. Clemensen, 7801 Railroad avenue, decorated 350 tables. He had R. J. Parker as his chief assistant.

Although he has no records for comparison, A. T. Pyfer gives it as his opinion that many growers are cutting more stock this season than last, which makes the higher prices especially profitable.

Having at last secured a location on which he has had an eye for many months, F. C. Mendonza, 436 East Forty-third street, soon will remove to the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and East Forty-third street.

Sam Pearce, who for a fortnight had been sending jonquils to the E. C.

Amling Co., began shipping tulips, the first of the season, in the closing week of 1915.

A new building has been put up at 9457 South Winchester avenue, by Edmund D. Watkins, who will open a flower store there before Easter.

Daily shipments of roses to Rochester, N. Y., are reported by Felix Reichling, of the Peter Reinberg city store.

Society affairs are less numerous than usual this season, according to C. A. Samuelson, who adds that funeral work has been exceptionally heavy during the last month.

Talk about your forehanded florists, N. J. Wieter reports an inquiry, dated December 31, for a large quantity of carnations for shipment May 28!

An addition has been made to the office force of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., in the person of Frank J. Hartwick, architect and engineer. He has already begun work on the new standard design that the firm will put out for 1916. Mr. McKee says the new houses will be a surprise.

Mortuary affairs have kept W. J. Smyth and his staff on the jump since Christmas, which gave him the largest three days' sales he ever has had.

An unusually successful run of holiday business is reported by H. P. Gerhardt, of Wilmette, who says practically all of his trade was in azaleas, begonias and cyclamens.

A most satisfactory holiday business in pot covers and baskets is reported by the Johnson Basket Co., 3205 Fullerton avenue.

When it comes to physically tough nuts to crack, Paul Klingsporn, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, ranks among the hardest on the market, and yet the grip got him down December 30. He is on the job again this week.

According to F. O. Franzen, his Christmas business showed a fifty per cent increase over that of a year ago.

January 4 William Homburg joined the sales force of Percy Jones.

To make more space for the cut flower department, which was feeling the need of additional elbow room, a general rearrangement has been made in the store of the A. L. Randall Co. The entire Wabash avenue frontage, with the exception of that used for the office, is now devoted to baskets, pottery and garden accessories. The cut flower department is immediately back of this, running from the alley to the middle of the floor. From the middle, where the cashier's cage now stands, to the office is occupied by general supplies. According to Frank M. Johnson, under the new arrangement the second floor, other than space used for cut flowers, will be used for purposes of display and sales only.

Joe Marks, of the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., left January 6 on his semiannual western trip.

George Mohn, who has been with George Wienhoeber for some time, has returned to Vaughan's Seed Store, where he was formerly employed.

At Maywood, the A. F. Amling Co.

already has begun to replant some of its Beauty houses.

In the opinion of Philip Schupp, manager of the J. A. Budlong wholesale house, the rose supply is likely to remain on the short side for some time.

Another victim has been added to the list of those suffering with grip. The unfortunate is J. R. Quallich, of the A. L. Randall Co.

The last three days of 1915 were devoted by D. D. P. Roy to removing from room 908 Federal Life building to room 1005. The new quarters are fully five times as large as the old ones and are particularly pleasant, as they overlook Grant park and the lake front.

Stielow Bros. Co., which is putting up some new Garland houses at Niles Center, for roses, has ordered a new Kroeschell fire and water tube high pressure steam boiler to heat the range.

If the closing weeks of 1915 seemed to bring ill fortune to the employees in George Reinberg's salesroom, the new year has made reparation. Manager Robert Northam's little daughter was permitted to leave her sick room

After making a stiff fight, Miss Clara Burkhardt, of the city office of Poehlmann Bros. Co., has been obliged to submit to an attack of grip.

Owing to the death last week of both of her grandfathers, Miss Katherine Grages, bookkeeper for Zech & Mann, is absent from the office this week.

Visitors.

Members of the trade were visited this week by Robert Dunkelberger, of P. Boyle & Co., Galien, Mich.

A. J. Stahelin, of Redford, Mich., was a visitor on the market this week.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Business kept up well during the week following Christmas. There was a considerable call for flowers for various New Year's events, some of the stores having large orders for decorations. There has been much funeral work during the last ten days.

All Newark florists are optimistic. Now that the holidays are past, there will be a round of social events until Lent. While only a small part of these will be big affairs, there will be quite a demand for decorations.

The price of flowers has kept up well for several weeks. Many persons have purchased plants, instead of cut flowers, because of this. Carnations are scarce. At one time red carnations cost 15 cents each at wholesale and roses cost 15 cents each. They are somewhat cheaper at present. Azaleas have been selling well and are of excellent quality. Marguerites in pots now are seen in the market. Sweet peas are a little more plentiful than they have been, but are not yet offered in large quantities. Violets have been scarce. Orchids are somewhat more plentiful again. Mignonette has appeared.

Various Notes.

The heavy gale of last week blew in a large plate glass window in front of the Vollmer store in East Jersey street, Elizabeth.

Trauth says that because of the high

SALT LAKE CITY.

The Market.

Immediately after Thanksgiving the weather cleared and real warm weather prevailed until noon of Christmas, when the snow began falling. Naturally, the good weather conditions should have brought along a fine quality of stock and in abundance. Both were the result, but the supply in any line, and at any time, was not more than sufficient to meet the demand. All the wholesalers did a large out-of-town business, and a large demand for flowers is fast being developed in nearby towns.

The roses were good in foliage, length and bloom. The greater part of the stock was of the long and medium grades. Few shorts could be obtained, which was a bad feature for the retailer. Killarney and White Killarney sold lower than other roses, the best going at $15 and the shorts at $5 per hundred. Richmond, Shawyer, Taft, Killarney Brilliant and other special varieties brought from $7 to $25 per hundred. Immediately after Christmas the prices dropped, but not so low as they formerly were. Not nearly enough American Beauty roses could be obtained. They sold well at from $2 to $10 per dozen.

Utah carnations were scarce, but what were placed on the market were superior to any others. The best red carnations sold as high as $10 and the pink and white at $9 per hundred. Large shipments of carnations were brought in from California and everybody had plenty. After Christmas, carnations sold for $5, $4 and $3 per hundred.

Plants are one of the big features at Christmas. Everybody wanted them and the fine weather conditions made it easy to make large shipments because of not having to protect the plants against frost. A large stock of cyclamens, peppers, poinsettias, azaleas, Cincinnati and Chatelaine begonias and ferns were disposed of. The unceasing call for plants soon found the growers without stock.

Funeral work was heavy, thus increasing the holiday rush. For a few days immediately after Christmas the retailers felt a general slump in business, but the wholesalers disposed of their stock on account of resupplying the retailers. New Year's created a little larger demand for flowers than usual.

Various Notes.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is a dearth of flowers quite surprising at this season. The New Year's business was all that could be desired; everything was consumed at satisfactory prices—consumed so eagerly that the wholesalers have been wondering whether they asked enough for their stock, and consoling themselves with the thought that if they did not they at least encouraged business. Generally speaking, prices are about the same as they were immediately after Christmas, though there are some notable exceptions. One wholesaler is getting Christmas prices for his roses even now and disposing of them with less pressure from the buyers on his grading. The activity is due primarily to the short supply. The bulk of the flowers now offered are roses and the rose crop is lighter than it was just before Christmas. There are other reasons: The large amount of entertaining socially; the large amount of sickness and even of death; the heavy shipping, and, on January 3, the political offerings to the new city administration.

There are several features of the market that are of especial interest. Most important among them is the valley shortage. Lily of the valley is forced by a few large growers, who calculate with extreme nicety the needs of the market. They deal out the fragrant spikes with a liberal hand when unhampered. Now, however, they have their troubles. Much of the valley has remained in Hamburg, tied up by the British. That which has arrived is in bad shape, we are told, being heated in transit, a fatal mishap. Anyway, the large proportion of the valley intended for flowering at this time did not flower. There seems little chance of relief. The next odd feature of the market is the oversupply of gardenias. They could not be promised when needed, before Christmas; afterwards they came in a great wave that swept the demand before it. Gardenias are the only flowers in oversupply.

The remainder of the market may be best described by saying that the wholesalers are devoting all their energies to getting flowers into town in time to fill their orders. They meet with moderate success. White lilac has arrived, as well as freesia; both are good. This cannot be said of the tulips; Montresor, Scarlet Duc and La Reine are poor. There are a few Trumpet Majors, with indications of more soon to follow. The poinsettia is about over. Asparagus is in fair demand.

Club Meeting.

The third of the series of debates scheduled for the Florists' Club was held at the meeting of January 4, in the club rooms in Horticultural hall. The subject was, "Is the Grower or His Agent Entitled to Sell Both at Wholesale and Retail?"

The affirmative was assigned to William H. Taplin, and the negative to Arthur A. Niessen. After the debate the club voted that it was all right for members to sell at wholesale and retail if they so desired.

The following names were proposed for membership and were favorably re-instructions to deliver them to various members of the new city administration by 10 o'clock. There was one for the new mayor, another for the director of public works, and so on. It required hustle to get the flowers to the city hall in time. Speaking of the unusually high mortality, Mr. Harbemehl said that he looked upon orders for such occasions with great sadness, because he never could have the pleasure of doing anything more for the departed one.

Mr. Eschner is Not Superstitious.

Bernard Eschner believes himself free from superstition, but being a man of the world and thoroughly alive to what is going on, he enjoys noting the popular superstitions and daring them, so to speak. It gives Mr. Eschner pleasure to recall that his most successful business trip commenced on Friday, the thirteenth day of the month, on which day he left Broad street station over track No. 13. system, whereby fire can be automatically extinguished, insurance reduced and worry driven away.

The architects, Sauer & Hahn, hustled to please Mr. Eschner, so that everything was closed up last year and last week. Work will be commenced at once and it is hoped the building will be completed by August 15.

Various Notes.

Alfred B. Cartledge, Jr., has resigned his position as buyer for Pennock Bros. to go into the automobile business at Detroit.

William Graham expects to be in Chicago January 8.

Walter Davis is receiving fine white lilac from his specialist, who grows it extremely well.

M. J. Callahan reports an excellent New Year's demand, largely for roses, through his lieutenant Herman Schoenfeld.

Berger Bros. announce the arrival of freesia, with daffodils in prospect.

A. L. Fortunes feels a quickened demand for ferns.

The Henry A. Dreer salesman promised over the telephone from Riverton to New York, about 8 o'clock the other morning, that they would deliver a truck-load of palms in Manhattan by 3 o'clock that same day, which they did within a few minutes of the promised hour. Phil.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

"The best December in years," is the way some of our people say it, and I think it is true. The week following Christmas saw trade continuing much as if for a holiday. Although prices dropped after Christmas, they held well through the New Year's period.

New Year's has not amounted to much for several years, but this year it was one of the old-fashioned kind, reminding one of the New Year's of about twenty-five years ago, when that was our best holiday. The cut of roses held. There was plenty of stock for everyone and few blooms were left, so that to the younger generation it was the best New Year's ever seen.

The weather was fine until New Year's morning, when it began to rain and continued raining all day. Some of the eastern shippers made the mistake of holding their stock. It reached the wholesalers just as they were locking up for the day, New Year's.

Various Notes.

Grip is getting in its work in great shape. A. W. Smith, Jr., was a victim part of last week. The force of Mrs. E. A. Williams worked through Christmas on its nerve and the office force of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has all been down. The McCallum Co. had three employees away during part of last week. Gilbert Ludwig is confined to his room. G. P. Weaklen & Co. are short-handed, several employees being sick.

James Gatti, a former employee of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., died of typhoid fever December 31, at the Mercy hospital.

Pittsburgh has heard some wonderful stories of high prices for stock in other cities and congratulates them, but while this city is always ready to pay a fair

More Profit In Flowers

The sooner your cut flowers are marketed the larger your profits. The display which appeals will sell them. Every florist's experience confirms this statement.

If it were possible for you to compare the value of a refrigerator that really preserved with one that wasted stock and ice you would be astonished at the difference in dollars and cents during the year. The poor refrigerator which may have cost less at the start would show up mighty expensive in the end. Be sure—safe—get a

McCray Florists' Refrigerator

McCray construction is based on the most advanced scientific principles for proper refrigeration and perfect preservation.

Your delicate stock is kept at an even temperature of exactly the right degree where freshly chilled air is constantly circulating.

McCray Florist Refrigerators have beautiful plate glass doors and sides which permit an inviting and attractive display of the flowers. The compartments are of different dimensions to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The outside woodwork may be had in any finish to conform with your store's interior decoration and arrangement. The linings may be secured in either bevel plate mirror or white enamel and are very easy to clean.

The florist business carries enough hazard without handicapping your success with an inadequate refrigerator. Why not investigate a McCray right now and get the whole McCray story.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

WHY NOT?

It takes time to prepare drawings, estimates, etc., and the more time we have the more satisfaction for both of us. You are thinking of remodeling your store, perhaps, at some future date, so why not get a few facts to start with?

We can furnish the facts on which to base your ideas. Write us for our catalogue and give us an idea as to what your wishes will be and we can then submit our ideas and an approximate estimate which will help you decide.

price for its stock, it quits when its limit has been reached; it will "buy its head off" if the middle class can get a show for its money. I have a recollection of a Christmas about twenty-five years ago, when the New York wholesalers supplied this market. They put their heads together and shoved prices so high on Christmas orders that when the goods came we could not get the wholesale price for them. They reduced the bills before they collected them. New Yorkers will remember that they let the wholesalers keep the stock. It probably was the worst year the wholesalers and growers ever had. So Pittsburgh keeps its limit down to the people's pocketbooks and does business. Clarke.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The Market.

Business following Christmas was good and there were many orders for large decorations and funeral pieces. There was not much of a drop in prices of cut flowers. Carnations remain scarce. Single violets also are scarce, but the crop is doing well and in a few days there will be plenty of them. Valley and sweet peas are abundant.

Various Notes.

The W. E. Day Co. was busy New Year's day, with decorations for a large ball in the Onondaga hotel. This concern had an attractive window of Lilium speciosum, daffodils and orchids.

The Baker Floral Co. is cutting some fine Cattleya Trianae and C. Percivaliana.

The P. R. Quinlan greenhouses are producing a fine cut of roses. A house of sweet peas looks promising and the carnations are on full crop. Mr. Dwyer, the manager, is well pleased with the holiday trade.

H. P. Streckfus, who makes a specialty of marguerites, has his houses full of fine stock. He says he sells them out of 2½-inch and 3½-inch pots, through ads in The Review.

At the Davis greenhouses, formerly those of Bard & Davis, the men are cutting some fine roses and carnations. Mr. Davis is well pleased with Christmas business.

L. Mulhauser & Son are busy putting in thousands of vinca and geranium cuttings. They are the only growers United Phone.

Bird-In-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.
F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snap-dragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, and STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

H. B. Weaver.

Mr. Weaver grows carnations, mignonette, sweet peas, asters, etc. He ordered 5,000 Dirt Bands the first year, 60,000 the second year, and 70,000 last year.

Send for Free Samples of both Pots and Bands and Big Folder containing Price List and the experience of 54 growers.

Try our Paper Pots and Dirt Bands FREE. Order what you want—try them according to our Copyright Directions, and if not satisfactory ship them back and we will refund your money.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

New Year's business was good and used up practically everything in the market. Since then business has been fairly brisk.

Roses are in good supply and, with the exception of American Beauties, clean up each day. Carnations, while a little more plentiful than they were, still are short of requirements. Easter lilies continue plentiful and good. Daffodils, Roman hyacinths and freesia have been added to the list of bulbous stock. The cut of narcissi is about equal to the demand. Valley, violets and orchids are fairly plentiful. They had a good demand for New Year's. Other offerings include poinsettias, callas, stevia and sweet peas.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held January 10, at Labold & Newburgh's, 8 East Third street. Refreshments will be served.

C. E. Critchell reports a large demand for valley, orchids and violets for New Year's.

The Rosebank Co. has been sending in some fine, heavy smilax and stevia.

The stork stopped at the home of Raymond Reinstatler January 2 and left a 9-pound boy.

Among recent visitors was F. J. Stehle, Loraine, Ohio.

The Market.

The year of 1915 passed out as a record-breaker for the amount of business done. Large preparations are being made for 1916; several florists have bought larger cars for deliveries and several have planned to buy new cars in the spring. It is reported that many large additions to greenhouses will start in the spring.

Market conditions have been especially favorable to the growers during the holidays. A good crop of flowers was cut and all sold at a heavy price. Red carnations and roses were the leaders throughout the week, being somewhat short of the demand. White and pink roses and carnations were all cleaned up at good prices. Aaron Ward roses were the leaders in the yellow class. More orchids were sold during the holidays than have ever been sold before. Violets had a heavy demand and were scarce at all times. Bulbous stock of all kinds was scarce for the first time in several years. Miscellaneous stock cleaned up at fair prices.

Various Notes.

A. F. Barbe is contemplating the erection of large greenhouses south of the old range. The new houses will be devoted to roses. He plans to build the full depth of the property and each house will be thirty-four feet wide. Table benches hereafter will be used, both in the old and new range. Mr. Barbe has a seedling begonia that is fine, a better bloomer than luminosa. He likes it better than Chatelaine, because it is a taller grower. He has half a bench of calendulas that are good and which are paying him well for his trouble. He also has a fine batch of cinerarias that will be in bloom soon. The cyclamens are well flowered and meet with a ready sale.

Samuel Murray has been cutting a fine lot of orchids and always finds a ready sale for them. A large number of pot plants left his store, especially of Lorraine begonias, for New Year's, and a large business was done during the holidays.

While the family of J. G. Peppard were out visiting January 1, some one entered their home and carried away jewelry valued at $2,000. Mr. Peppard is manager of the J. G. Peppard Seed Co.

The Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had a fine New Year's trade and was busy with decorations during the week.

W. J. Barnes had three large decorations for New Year's day.

cleaned up. Out-of-town trade was heavy.

Arthur Newell had the best New Year's business he ever had. Pot plants sold well and the corsage work was the heaviest he ever experienced.

Mrs. Juvenal, who was painfully injured by the fire which started in her display window December 17, is getting along nicely.

Patrick Larkin had such a run on corsage work that it seemed for a while that he was making a specialty of that line.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports the best New Year's business it ever had, with plenty of work of all kinds. This concern will go in more heavily for pot plants next year. W. J. B.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Now that the holiday rush is over and things are back to their normal, I can say that florists in all parts of the city are unanimous in reporting that there was a decided increase of business over that of any of the former years. All are especially pleased with the New Year's business, in which cut flowers had the call.

The wholesale market was well supplied last week with a good quality of stock in most lines. There was quite a shortage in carnations and Christmas prices were demanded, but the growers say that there will be a great crop coming on shortly and that by the end of the month a decided drop in prices will be experienced.

Roses have been in good supply and all varieties coming in have been of fine quality. With bright weather, roses will show a drop in price. Killarney is the bulk of the supply so far this season. The crop of sweet peas has been short of late and many of the growers complain of the buds dropping off, which will make the shortage more noticeable later on. Violets, too, are not nearly so plentiful as at this season in former years. A fine crop of Paper Whites is coming in. The best command 4 cents. Romans seem to have dropped out of the market this year. There is a good supply of Easter lilies, also extra fine valley. Smilax, asparagus and ferns have the call among the greens.

Various Notes.

Prof. H. C. Irish, vice-president of the Missouri State Horticultural Society, states that an invitation is extended to all florists to attend the annual meeting of the society at the Planters' hotel, January 12 to 14, especially January 13, which will be Florists' day, when papers of special interest to florists will be read by several prominent florists of the city.

The E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., marketed a quantity of long, fancy Hoosier Beauty here for Christmas and New Year's through H. G. Berning.

Charles Fullgraf, the well known landscape gardener, surprised his many friends by his marriage with Miss Laura Goode. The wedding took place at Vandalia, Ill., recently. Mr. and Mrs. Fullgraf are south on a honeymoon.

I have found out why Paddy Patton, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., wore ear muffs all through the holiday rush. He couldn't hear the kicks on the high prices of stock and said that in this way he saved a great deal of time.

Martin B. Lechner, of Lechner Bros., Webster Groves, has returned from a successful southern trip and reports prosperity among the southern florists. Mr. Lechner announces that his firm

The Lady Florists' Home Circle will be entertained at its first meeting of the new year by Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Sr., at her home at 6238 Berlin avenue, at which a full attendance is expected.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its first meeting of the year January 13, in Odd Fellows' hall. A large attendance is expected because of the importance of this meeting, which will open promptly at 2 o'clock, so as to give the suburban members time to get an early start for home.

David Geddis, of Vandervoort's floral department, says the Christmas and New Year business was far beyond his expectations. The sale of automobile wreaths ran into the thousands, while plants and cut stock cleaned out early.

Charles Young, of C. Young & Sons
Co., reports a few good-sized decorations for receptions and dinners right after New Year's. The combined holiday business was the best in years.
The large quantity of stock carried was cleaned out.

The florists along Grand avenue express great satisfaction over the New Year's business and say it seems that old times are coming back, when this day's business was equal to that of Christmas. They are looking forward to a good, steady run of business from now until Lent.

With much regret I announce the retirement of Mrs. M. M. Ayres from the florists' business. A year ago Mrs.
Ayres sold her interest in the Ayres ber of the Florists' Club and resigned a few months ago. Her resignation was accepted and the members voted her an honorary life membership. Mrs. Ayres has the good wishes of all in the trade, with whom she was on most friendly terms.

The executive committee for the American Carnation Society convention, of which J. F. Ammann is chairman, held a meeting at the Smith Wholesale Floral Co. place, December 30. The nine members of this committee were present and a report from each showed good work by all sub-committees, and if the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, to be held January 26 and 27, is not a success, it will not be the committee's fault.

A Few New Year's Resolutions.

Jules Bourdet: "Let us all pull together to the end that 1916 may be the greatest in the history of the Florists' Club."

W. C. Smith: "There is no such thing as a New Year. The good resolutions a fellow makes all the time should, like the lady who faints, be carried out."

J. J. Beneke: "While I expect to live along in the even tenor of my way, this year's efforts of the Florists' Club will be carried out as in the past."

Frank Fillmore: "That I resolve not to miss a Florists' Club meeting in 1916 and that I hope all members will follow my example." J. J. B.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Since Christmas we have had much dark weather, accompanied by rain or snow, and, as a consequence, flowers have opened slowly. The almost complete clean-up at the holidays left the markets all but denuded of flowers and high prices still exist for almost everything. Not for years has there been such a scarcity of flowers. It has not been necessary for growers to solicit orders at the stores; on the contrary, a number of buyers have been eagerly awaiting the arrival of boxes at the wholesale markets. How much longer these conditions will continue depends almost wholly on the weather. A few clear days with mild temperatures will start a general drop.

Roses continue to clean up with remarkable speed. On some days $6 per hundred has been easily obtained for short stems and as high as $12 per hundred for flowers on 12-inch stems. Prices have receded a little this week, but still are satisfactory to the growers. Carnations last week sold as high as $8 and $10 per hundred, with ordinary grades at $5 and $6. With all growers there has been a light pick since the holidays. Violets sell at $1.25 to $1.50 per hundred and are not equal to the demand. Valley sells well. Sweet peas might sell better. Yellow marguerites sell at better than Christmas prices—$4 to $5 per hundred for the best.

Easter lilies are in good supply and little changed in price. The same holds good of L. speciosum and callas. Some Henry Irving and Trumpet major narcissi sell well. There are some tulips, but not as yet of good quality. Paper Whites sell at fancy prices. Growers are glad to get fancy prices, but state that only about sixty per cent of the bulbs are flowering this season. Yellow marguerites have been making as much as $4 and $5 per hundred for the best. Snapdragons are selling well. Good spikes have made as much as $2 and $3 per dozen. Cattleya Trianae is more abundant. Prices vary from $6 to $7.50 per dozen. Gardenias are not abundant. Of cypripediums there is now an adequate supply. The demand for asparagus remains about the same.

Various Notes.

William H. Ward, of Montvale, is bringing in some fine long-stemmed Spencer sweet peas, forget-me-nots, freesias and carnations.

Business at Penn's two stores continues active. The tastefully decorated windows at the Tremont street store, by John Wilson, receive much favorable comment.

Peter Fisher had a splendid Christmas trade and a fine crop of carnations. Alice, which he grows in large quantity, proves wonderfully free and a much better producer than Pink Delight. Mr. Fisher finds Matchless a slow winter variety compared with White Wonder and White Enchantress. He says there will be no splitting of the latter when the plants are in solid beds.

The Boston representation at the St. Louis carnation convention will leave South station, Boston, January 24, at 2 p. m., on the Wolverine express, due in St. Louis the following day at 9:55 p. m. The fare is $28.50; party of ten or more, $26.35 each; lower berths, $6.50; upper berths, $5.20; drawing room, $23. Flowers can be carried on the train, as the Boston party will reserve the drawing room. Anyone planning to make the trip should notify S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, as soon as possible, so that necessary reservations may be made. The route selected is the best from Boston, being the following railroads: Boston and Albany, New York Central, Big Four, and Buffalo, Cleveland & Indiana. Boston will make a good showing at the meeting and will have some fine exhibits.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, are having excellent success with Carnation Pink Sensation. Good Cheer also is well liked. Other favorites are Matchless, Pink Delight, Alice, Beacon, Champion, Benora and Yellow Prince. They have two fine seedlings, one similar to Gorgeous in color, the other an improvement on Philadelphia. Their earliest batch of mignonette will soon be in flower. Of freesias they have a fine cut.

H. R. Comley, of Park street, states that he had a fine Christmas business, especially in plants. The existing high price of cut flowers he considers detrimental to business and uncalled for.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Watson, of Dorchester, left Dorchester January 3 en route for Turkey. They hope to travel by rail from Berlin to Constantinople. Mrs. Watson is the youngest daughter of Samuel Neil, the well known Dorchester florist, and has already spent some time in Turkey. Her husband is a teacher in an American college near Constantinople.

not be one of the affiliating societies with the S. A. F., there being a large lapse among the new members enrolled here at the time of the 1914 convention, which reduced the club's number of S. A. F. members below the 100 mark.

William R. Morris, of Wellesley Hills, is having excellent success with his roses this season. All are handled by Irving Stewart. At present his leaders are Hadley, Richmond, Killarney, White Killarney and Ophelia.

William H. Elliott hit the Christmas and New Year celebration with a fine crop of roses. Specially fine now are Hadley, Ophelia, Killarney Queen, Miller, Sunburst, the Irish singles, George Elger and Mlle. Cecile Brunner.

While Boston had a fair business on New Year's day, it would have been better but for a snow storm which prevailed all day. The day is not kept as a holiday here, as in many other places.

John Barr, of South Natick, is one of our most successful local carnation growers; his establishment is always kept in perfect condition. He likes Matchless well as a white. Both Alice and Pink Delight are grown as flesh pinks. Beacon and Champion are equally good. Fenn and Winsor still prove to be money-makers. Benora and Mrs. Ward are also grown.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

McMinnville, Ore.—S. H. Maris, owner of the Pioneer Greenhouses, reports that December was a busy month with him. The Christmas trade in both cut flowers and plants was about double that of the preceding year. There was more funeral work last month than common, he said. This has kept flowers well cleaned up. Carnations have been in full crop and have been of good quality, but they are beginning to split. Paper Whites, Romans and callas are plentiful. Violets are scarce. Sweet peas were a failure. Up to Christmas day there had been two months of dark weather, with a great deal of rain, but warm.

THE MONTEBELLO ROSARIAN.

The portrait reproduced herewith is an excellent one of H. W. Turner, the well known rose grower of Montebello, Cal. Mr. Turner is one of the best known men in the trade, east and west, but it is in California that he is best known and universally liked. Coming to California some years ago on account of his health, he has not only regained that but also has founded what is probably the most up-to-date rose growing range in the west. Roses constitute his long suit. He grows roses better, knows them better and, I believe, loves them more than any other man I have met.

It is said that when seriously ill some years ago and almost unconscious, some one asked Mr. Turner's doctor to mention a new rose, and this had the immediate effect of bringing Mr. Turner back to life. He obtained his outdoor raiments, climbed aboard his car and was on his way with his check book to the owner of the novelty before the medico could mention the amount of his bill. Mr. Turner denies this, but the facts as stated are true.

The Montebello establishment has been too often described to need anything but a passing reference. The range consists of five houses, 60x300 feet, and four new ones, 60x150 feet. Every inch of the range is given to roses. There is not a novelty of American or European origin that Mr. Turner does not try out, if it is obtainable. He may not retain the new rose, but it is given a trial, and unless it proves worthy it is thrown out, no matter what the cost. The number of varieties grown is over 300, while the quantities of some of the most popular varieties that are grown and shipped are enormous, often running into six figures. The last few years Mr. Turner has been making a specialty of baby roses and ramblers, both for cutting and selling as plants, and he has probably one of the most complete collections in the country today.

If I were asked to mention the one thing most responsible for Mr. Turner's success, I should say that it was a stick-to-it-iveness that never dies. Work is life to him and when it is said that he designs and constructs his own houses, sets his own boilers and steam apparatus and superintends personally every detail of his big business, his capacity for work will be better understood. A big man who, in the face of all kinds of setbacks, has forged ahead and has stayed at the top.

H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Heinz methods were resorted to for the first time to any extent for the Christmas market, and our oriental friends, who are such good imitators, were the principal operators along this line. But it did them little good; individually and collectively the whole trade suffered. This market is rapidly gaining an enviable reputation for sending out fresh stock properly packed, and any tricks of this kind will only set back the wheels of progress. The sooner this truth is thoroughly digested the better. There are no better flowers grown anywhere than those grown in Los Angeles county, and as long as good business methods prevail the demand for them will keep on increasing, to the benefit of the trade generally.

Among the scarce items have been red carnations, the lighter colors and white being plentiful. Roses are in good demand, with ample stock to fill all orders. Beauties of good quality still are scarce. Valley is uncertain, both as to quality and quantity. Cecile Brunner roses are now plentiful and they, as well as violets, are selling freely. Orchids are more plentiful since Triana and Percivaliana came in. Large Boston and Piersoni ferns are selling well and flowering plants meet with a fair demand. A large quantity of the cheaper grades of flowers were needed last week for the Pasadena tournament of roses.

Various Notes.

J. Dieterich, since the dissolution of his partnership with George Smith, has not been actively engaged on either Wall street or Seventh street, and this leaves him free to give more attention to the Montebello nursery. He has splendid stock of all kinds, notably kentias, Cocos plumosa and other palms, of which he is shipping large quantities.

Considerable improvements have been made at the store of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co. F. W. Nelson, formerly with Wright's Flower Shop and later in business at the Washington Flower Shop, is now connected with this concern.

Albert Knopf, at the time of writing, is still away from his post at the Redondo Floral Co. store. Mr. Borden is back, but is far from well.

S. Murata & Co. report an exceptionally heavy December business, and no wonder, for the stock handled here is of exceptionally good quality. During the Christmas rush the whole store force worked for two days and nights straight.

Walter Garbett, for several years manager for Darling's Flower Shop, resigned his position at New Year's to go into partnership with J. Roller, proprietor of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co. Mr. Garbett has the best wishes of all for success in his new venture.

George Watson may now be seen going the rounds in a new automobile. The new range is a little farther away from his home than the old one, and these welterweights do not like long walks. The stock is looking fine in the new greenhouses.

H. W. Turner will probably not be satisfied until all his ground is covered with glass. As fast as the new houses are built they are filled and it becomes a question of doing less business or building more houses. Who can guess the answer?

From occasional shipments of a few flowers each, the output of orchids by the L. A. Floral Co. has kept on increasing until now the entire cut of at least one grower is taken. Shipments keep up well here.

The demand for azaleas at the Germain Seed & Plant Co. has kept up well since Christmas. At the time of the holiday, Mme. Petrick was the principal variety in flower, but Vervæneana, with its larger, lighter-colored flowers, sold better at New Year's.

The Christmas Business.

Not for a number of years has Seattle's Christmas business been so good as that of 1915. All the stores reported phenomenal sales and few of them had any stock left over. Many of the stores could have sold more if they had had the stock. Prices were slightly advanced along most lines, and if there was possibly a smaller amount of stock than usual at Christmas the enhanced values compensated for the fewer sales. business, and there is far more of the usual optimistic spirit prevailing than has been the case for some years.

There was a good supply of chrysanthemums on sale and they were picked up quickly. Poinsettias, cut and in pots, were hardly as plentiful as those of recent years, but the quality left nothing to be desired and sales were good. Carnations were scarce and in strong demand; higher prices prevailed accordingly. These was a fair supply of roses, but they were quickly cleaned out. Bulbous stock was principally represented by Paper Whites and a few Romans. Valley was scarce and violets much as usual. There was a fine showing of begonias in nearly all the stores and the sales for them showed marked improvement over those of recent years. Cyclamen sold well, but there was not enough of it. Made-up baskets were quickly disposed of. Business since Christmas has been excellent, but there is a shortage in most lines of stock.

Various Notes.

Mrs. L. H. McCoy, at her store on Second avenue, did a large business for Christmas. That the move from Third avenue was a good one is daily becoming more obvious.

The Hollywood Gardens had the biggest Christmas business in their history. Even with additional warehouse storage for their plants, they had barely enough stock to fill all the orders.

Rosaia Bros. did, as usual, their share of the business. The artistic arrangements of their large display windows were a great attraction.

Felix Rosaia, of the Orpheum Floral Co., had his hands full looking after the numerous assistants required to handle the business at his store.

The outlying stores and greenhouses did good business and the growers got good prices for anything worth handling.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The San Francisco florists are closing what undoubtedly has been the best year of their experience. While most flowers have been plentiful practically all of the year, the average prices have been remunerative and the quantity of stock sold in all departments has been enormous. With the exposition over, the outlook for the new year is uncertain and the next two months no doubt will bring some contraction of business. The San Francisco district is in every way more prosperous than it was a year ago, and the florists may expect to share in the good times that are predicted.

Growers are congratulating themselves that last week's weather came after, not before, Christmas, as the week opened with a heavy rain, which was followed by freezing temperatures. This immediately shortened the cut of mums, which practically went out with the old year; carnations also were affected and few will be offered for some time, as many of the houses had no heat. Violets also have been nipped, but there still will be plenty of them, unless colder weather follows. Outdoor bulbous stock, which was showing up in considerable quantity, has been sharply checked. For several days there was a fine cut of freesias and they no doubt will be back soon. The general shortage has greatly stimulated the demand for roses, which are in good supply and attractive quality. The prices on roses are rather high, which will make up for the extra coal bills. There are plenty of Beauties; Ward, Sunburst and Hadley are fine and Cecile Brunner is in much better supply. A few marigolds, mignonettes, forget-me-popular and small heather plants find a good sale.

Various Notes.

Harry Short, of Napa, visited the market a few days ago. He reports an extraordinarily good Christmas business.

Jack Olson, of the New Roserie, Sacramento and Devisadero streets, had the room adjoining his store filled with plants for the holidays, and reports a complete clean-up, doubling the volume of business of Christmas, 1914. He reports a heavy sale of cyclamen, with less attention given to poinsettias, and found large Boston ferns popular.

The Western Orchid Co., of Alameda, cleaned up a good-sized cut for Christmas, but still is bringing in good catleyas.

Arthur Cann, of San Jose, has had a busy month, starting with a rush several weeks before the holidays.

The big cut of Cecile Brunner roses expected by the E. W. McLellan Co. is turning out in fine shape, and there seems to be a ready market for all the roses brought in by this company.

M. J. Peterson, of the Haight Street Floral Co., reports an unusually heavy run on plants and cut flowers at his establishment for the last month, attributing the successful season largely to the pleasant weather.

Cleis & Jacobsen are well satisfied with their holiday business and, while business has been quiet since, they anticipate a good year.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, visited the wholesale houses just before New Year's. He reports a rushing business in flowering plants and is especially pleased with the movement of begonias, which he found to be one of the most popular items.

The Francis Floral Co. has had much decorative work lately, the largest being the Palace hotel Christmas decoration. Several thousand yards of garlands of wild cherry and red berries were used. For New Year's eve, this concern decorated the tables in a large café, using many different color schemes. A novelty tried by this company with much success for Christmas was a line of rustic fern baskets, the handles of which were ornamented with clusters of the green fruit of date palms. The baskets contained pots with large Boston ferns and small adiantum and asparagus-plants.

Wholesale Only, price per bush given, and applies to all orders. Ten plants of one kind means wholesale, if you are in the Trade. Do not order less, as we do not like to cut strings. Use printed stationery, please. Transportation—Eastern: If by express, rate guaranteed not to exceed 4c per zone number (i. e., in 8th zone, 2c per plant). This applies to No. 1 Grade; rate on No. 2 Grade will be 20 per cent to 50 per cent less. If by freight, via cold storage, deliveries after February 23, 1916. West Coast Points: Express (rate guaranteed) or by freight.

higher. Few potted plants are left in the retailers' hands, and those that remain are mostly culls of various sorts and a few large begonias of the Lorraine type. Plants and combinations which sold from $3 down found the readiest sale, and from the experience at Thanksgiving the retailers avoided arranging many expensive specimens. A brisk demand for funeral work, with a shortage of flowers and, of course, poinsettias out of the question, increased the retailers' troubles. Probably it is well within the limits of truth to say that more money was spent with the florists than ever before during the holidays.

Last week a cold snap struck Portland, the minimum temperature to the time of writing being 20 degrees. This has killed the remaining geraniums and other bedding stock, which had been left in place in hope of a mild season.

No great rush for New Year's was looked for, but a good run of business continued the entire week and a large volume of stock was sold. Shippers had good orders from outside points and were able to fill the greater part of them. Several stores opened branches as usual, some of which were used for delivery purposes only.

Various Notes.

Otto Reuble, of the German Floral Co., spent the holidays with relatives living near Seattle, Wash.

J. A. Wilson, of the Wilson-Crout Co., is happy over the arrival of a brand new member in his family.

Mrs. Rachel Lewis, mother of H. A. Lewis, of the Russellville Nursery, died December 28. She came to Oregon in 1872 and had lived in the home in which she died for forty-two years.

The continued absence of C. R. Langstaff, managing owner of Henry Clemens, Florist, a corporation, which recently opened a store at 148 Fourth street, has alarmed a number of creditors, who are anxiously awaiting his return. An attachment suit was filed December 27 by two of the largest creditors and the store probably will be closed out.

W. L. Crissey was married December 27 to Mrs. M. B. McCullough, who at one time held a position in the Chamber of Commerce promotion bureau, of which Mr. Crissey was chief correspondent. They will make their home at the gladiolus ranch which Mr. Crissey operates near Bullrun. S. W. W.

NURSERY STOCK IMPORTS.

Two steamers from England arrived at New York December 23 with the following consignments, according to the New York invoices of the ships' cargoes: O. G. Hempstead & Son, 7 cases trees; R. F. Lang, 9 cases trees; Wadley & Smythe, 11 cases plants.

The Rotterdam, from Holland, which arrived at the same port the following day, discharged 106 cases of trees, 457 cases of roots and 87 cases of plants. The consignees of this shipment, as given in the lists on file at the New York customhouse, were as follows:

American Express Co., 86 cases roots, 21 cases plants.

J. W. Hampton, Jr., & Co., 1 case roots.

P. Henderson & Co., 1 case trees.

P. C. Kuyper & Co., 50 cases trees.

McHutchison & Co., 20 cases trees.

Maltus & Ware, 381 cases roots.

C. F. Meyer, 40 cases roots.

Richard & Co., 35 cases trees, 17 cases plants.

G. W. Sheldon & Co., 30 cases roots.

JUST THINK, MR. FLORIST

Last month we offered you ONE MILLION CYCAS at less than one-half regular price. We were not surprised to receive a rush of orders, as florists could easily see their chance to save 50c on every dollar's worth purchased from us.

With all sizes now in stock, we offer again the same unusual opportunity.

COMPARE OUR PRICES WITH OTHERS

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THERE is some surplus of flower seeds of 1915 crop among the California growers.

CONSIDERABLE quantities of German valley pips are said to be reaching New York via Rotterdam.

A FIRE of unknown origin destroyed the offices and warehouse of the Gate City Seed Co., of Keokuk, Ia., causing a loss estimated at $26,000.

DETAILS relative to the case of Luther Burbank versus the Burbank Co., of San Francisco, are given under the head of Business Embarrassments.

MISS JENNIE COX, of Delaware, O., has sold the J. C. Cox Seed Store to J. H. Cunningham, who will continue the business in connection with his flower store.

THE Kirby Seed Co., of Gaffney, S. C., has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000. The petitioners were A. B. Kirby, D. C. Ross and Maynard Smyth.

THE Dutch bulb salesmen are not so numerous this season as last, but they wear smiling faces, for business is better than for a long time. Last year's conservatism is forgotten by the buyers.

AT Chicago A. Henderson & Co., who heretofore have sold only to the trade, start the new year at 211 North State street, a location which will permit them to enter the retail seed and plant field.

LOUIS L. DE VILMORIN, senior midshipman of the French navy, has just been appointed chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Mons. L. L. de Vilmorin is the third of the five Vilmorin brothers now at the front.

IN spite of the recent post-office announcement of the discontinuance of the parcel post service to and from Germany via Holland, German seeds are regularly reaching American seed houses through the mails. The parcels bear Dutch stamps, indicating that they are remailed in Holland.

A NEW YEAR'S dinner was given December 28 at the Minneapolis Athletic Club by Northrup, King & Co. to the sales force and to the heads of departments. Cash prizes were awarded in a contest that has been conducted among the salesmen the last six months. The first prize was won by Harold O'Brien, second by E. F. Wright and third by W. C. Bracken. Twenty-six persons were present. C. C. Massie was toastmaster. The menu card was a humorous affair, bringing into play the names of many of those present.

THE board of the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association, with headquarters in Haarlem, informs The Review that it has been resolved, subject to penalty, to invoice in the future in the wholesale trade charges for cases and packing at the cost price, so that it is no longer allowed to sell "packing free." "As this was already a general method of business, to which sometimes exceptions were made, owing to which ungrounded differences in price occurred, this resolution no doubt will contribute to increase fair trade," says the board.

IN the old days in New York it was thought that the only location for a seed store was on a street west of Broadway leading to a ferry. But the tubes have changed all that. As leases expire a number of shifts into new thoroughfares are likely to take place.

BRITAIN BARS VALLEY!

It is reported that the British government has placed a prohibition upon the importation of lily of the valley pips. This in effect covers all pips, whether Dutch, Danish or German. Everything in the nature of valley is suspected and is held up. Importers have only succeeded in getting shipments released after persistent writing and visits to the Home Office. Many English consignees are said to have abandoned their consignments because of the difficulties in their way, the Dutch and Danish senders naturally having to stand the loss. Even valley clumps, a class of goods recognized as Dutch, have been held up about three weeks and only released after repeated appeals to the Home Office. The latter has made it plain that it does not desire any one to import valley from Holland, as the customs have been given to understand that all valley is more or less German. At the present time a big shipment of valley taken from cold storage at Amsterdam is in cold storage in London awaiting decision.

NOT WHAT HE WANTED.

Scouting in Iowa the other day, a seedsman found himself on the farm of Hiram Feeblekorn. He left immediately.

WAS THE SEED MERCHANTABLE?

The right of a grower to recover damages for claimed breach of contract by a seed house to buy seeds grown by him was the subject of the case of Gaaney vs. Mauldin, 83 Southeastern Reporter 276, which came before the Georgia Court of Appeals for consideration. Plaintiffs contracted with defendants, Mauldin Bros., to plant ten acres in collards for seed, and to sell the seed obtained from the crop to defendants at 20 cents per pound "f. o. b. nearest railroad station." Defendants were to furnish sacks to hold the seed, and the growers agreed to see that the seed was "well cleaned and in merchantable condition." Claiming that they tendered 6,650 pounds of seed in good merchantable condition to defendants in conformity to the contract, that defendants refused to receive the same, or pay the agreed price, and that plaintiffs were compelled to sell the seed at 8 cents per pound elsewhere, involving a loss of $798, they brought suit. The trial jury awarded plaintiffs a verdict, but upon defendants' appeal to

TESTIMONIALS

We get many letters from customers pertaining to the excellent quality of our lily bulbs. As a rule we do not use them, as they savor so much of cure-all medicine advertisements, but some are so good that they deserve publicity. Here is one dated Dec. 2, 1915 (name upon application):

"On or about Sept. 15th 'Blank's' salesman visited us. He offered Gigs at $17.00 a case. We received one from you Sept. 1st and had another coming Oct. 1st. Well, we told him if he could ship at once we would try a case, as we had room in sight. Well, they came. We don't want to tell you that yours are worth twice as much, but we will say that we would rather have them than the others for half of what yours cost. The Sept. 1st case is a peach and Oct. 1st is apparently of the same quality. The Sept. 1st case is just beginning to flower and the Lilium Magnificum sent us are blooming now and coming along fine. We grew them in pots. Yours truly."

This is just one incident where a responsible grower has carefully noted comparative results. It came unsolicited in any way and as an appreciation of good bulbs. No matter what may be said of lily bulbs, there are none better than Horseshoe Brand Giganteum, and most growers think there are none as good. Just try them—prices as follows:

GIGANTEUM

7/9 $18.00 per case of 300 bulbs
8/10 20.00 per case of 250 bulbs
9/10 20.00 per case of 200 bulbs

Not how cheap but how good.

"Plaintiffs were not entitled to recover damages based upon a breach of the contract by the defendants until they had shown that their cross-obligations under the contract had been complied with. Properly construed, the words 'well cleaned,' in the contract, would seem to have to be qualified by the word 'merchantable,' used in the same connection, and it devolved upon the plaintiffs to show that the seed was so cleaned as to be merchantable in accordance with the usages of the trade in selling seed. There was evidence that Cairo was a seed market, and that generally seed cleaned and delivered by farmers was necessarily recleaned in preparing it for the wholesale trade. What the parties meant by the words 'well cleaned' may be demonstrated by evidence outside the contract. After all, the question as to whether the seed was well cleaned and in merchantable condition is a question of fact for a jury, in the light of the evidence submitted." S.

BUYER'S RIGHT TO INSPECT.

When a contract to sell goods requires them to be of a certain grade, and contains no provision concerning inspection or time for payment of the price, the buyer is entitled to an opportunity to make an inspection, to determine whether the goods come up to the contract, before paying for them. Accordingly, the California District Court of Appeal has held in the case of M. A. Newmark & Co. vs. Smith, 146 Pacific Reporter 1064, that where a contract was made by defendant for delivery of a large quantity of "choice, recleaned, small white beans," and the agreement was silent concerning the right of inspection and time of payment, defendant had no right to draw on plaintiff, the buyer, for the price with attached bill of lading in which the goods were consigned to the seller's order, and that plaintiff properly refused to make payment before being given an opportunity to inspect the shipment. CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., London, England.—"Foreign and colonial" wholesale catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds, bulbs, roots and sundries; 114 pages, well illustrated and clearly printed on a fine quality of enameled paper. Among the illustrations are two full-page colored pictures of the company's new offices and warehouses, to be completed and occupied early in 1916. Prominent in the introductory paragraphs is a notice that all goods, unless there is a request to the contrary, are insured against war risks, "postal packets excepted."

Chris. Reuter, New Orleans, La.—"Reuter's Seeds for the South"; ninety-six pages, freely illustrated. Besides extensive assortments of seeds, the stock offered comprises bulbs, roses, miscellaneous plants, ornamental and fruit-bearing trees, fungicides, fertilizers, agricultural implements, etc. Distinctively southern crops, such as cotton, citrus fruits, etc., are included. Among the novelties are several varieties of cactus.

J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, N. Y.—One hundred and fifteenth annual catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, plants, insecticides, fertilizers, horticultural implements and garden requisites; an accurate, clearly printed, carefully arranged, well illustrated book of 144 pages, with an especially tasteful colored cover. In addition to the general stock of flower, vegetable, farm and forage seeds, tree and shrub seeds are listed.

Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan., with branch houses at Denver and Oklahoma City.—A 112-page, illustrated catalogue of seeds, bulbs, miscellaneous plants, vegetable plants and roots, general nursery stock, sprayers, poultry supplies, implements, etc. Among the specialties are tree seeds. The lists of field and forage seeds are particularly extensive; prominence is given to drought-resisting crops.

Seventy-eighth annual edition of "Dreer's Garden Book"; 288 pages, with numerous illustrations in the text, besides several fine full-page halftone pictures and colored plates. Perhaps it is hardly necessary to state that almost everything that is needed by the florist or gardener, in seeds, plants and sundries, is listed in the Dreer book, and the items of stock are so arranged and so indexed as to be found with the minimum amount of trouble. It will be noted, also, that this year's edition maintains the high quality, and more than maintains the size, of former issues.

In Your Search for New Things Start with Sutton's Seed Catalogue

IT will short-cut your search, as this year's 190 pages contain many choice new things.

Not freaks—or even quite what you will call novelties—but good sensible productions such as will find a hearty welcome in garden and greenhouse for years to come.

In Cyclamens we have one that is really quite a marvel.
If you haven't posted yourself on our all-the-year-round Stocks, then there's an eye-opener for you.

And when it comes to Asters, we sincerely believe that you will find a list in our catalogue that will surprise you, not alone in numbers, but in unusualness.

We received from America last year many enthusiastic letters about our Asters.

So great is the cost of our 1916 catalogue of 190 pages that you can well understand why we are asking you to send 35c with your request for one. It will, however, be promptly refunded with an order for $5.00 or over.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

LOCATION OF GRAPE HOUSE.

I am enclosing a sketch of my new range of even-span houses, which have just been completed and are modern in every way. As the sketch indicates, the houses do not run straight east and west, but slant a little to the south at the east end. For convenience of description, however, I will suppose that they run east and west. There are three main houses, but each house is divided, crosswise, into three sections. The east section of the north house will be used for tomatoes; the middle section of the same house will be used for grapes; the west section, for cucumbers. The sections in the next house, mentioned in the same order, from east to west, are for chrysanthemums, beans and palms. The south house will be used for carnations, roses and pot plants; that is, the carnations will be at the southeast corner of the range.

You understand, then, that the middle section of the north house is to be used as the grape house. I wish to know whether the proposed location of the houses will have any effect on the growing of the grapes in the winter season. The heating and watering systems are perfect. J. W. S.—Mich.

I do not quite gather from your sketch whether or not the houses are closely connected. If they are, the location of the grape house is not of the best for winter forcing, if by that you mean extremely early forcing. The section intended for roses, in the south house, would have been much better for extra early work. If, however, you do not wish to start your vines before February 1, the present location will answer well. It will answer also for earlier forcing, but will not be quite so good as if located at the south side of the range. C. W.

FORMALDEHYDE INJURIOUS.

Will you kindly inform me how to apply formaldehyde to soil infested with eelworms, in which tomatoes and cucumbers are growing? Our benches are four feet wide by six inches deep. We thought it would be cheaper to treat the soil with formaldehyde and save the crop, rather than lose the entire crop. How much formaldehyde would be required? How far apart would you make the holes in the soil, and how much formaldehyde should be placed in each hole? I have heard of growers treating soil with formaldehyde, but as I have never done so myself, I would appreciate your instructions.

E. S.—Idaho.

Formaldehyde cannot be used in treating infested soil in which plants are growing. The only satisfactory way of treating soil infested with eelworms in the greenhouse is by steaming the soil before planting. Treating soil with formaldehyde for eelworms is not so satisfactory as with steam. There are no methods known of killing eelworms in the bench without injuring the plants. G. L. P.

LILIUM GIGANTEUM

Since Easter in 1916 will be so late—April 23rd, everybody can get Liliium Giganteum in good time. Lilies are still the Easter flower, and Giganteum the Easter lily. Ours may not be the best, but they don't come any better.

Craig Quality Ferns and Cyclamen

NEPHROLEPIS JOHN WANAMAKER Introduced August, 1915

The Wanamaker Boston has more than made good. Everyone who has received early shipments from us has been greatly pleased with the variety and repeat orders have been coming in daily. We have a very large stock. A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis. The following prices are for immediate and spring delivery:

2½-inch pots, strong plants $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.
4-inch pots, strong plants, $25.00 per 100; $225.00 per 1000.

THE THIRD EDITION OF THE Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

With Congress and many state legislatures in session this winter, the nursery trade is threatened with another deluge of bills providing for the regulation of plant shipments.

THE James Nursery Co., of National City, Cal., after two years of business, has been obliged to move to larger quarters. E. James, the proprietor, was at one time associated with the Kew Gardens, of London, England.

As a Christmas present to the school children of Houston, Tex., all the trees and plants of a nursery at Spring Branch, ten miles west of Houston, were placed at their disposal for school uses, by Otto Burkhardt, the owner, who is retiring from the business. Mr. Burkhardt, in explanation of his gift, stated that he could think of no better method of disposing of his stock.

PETER F. BOHLANDER, of Bohlander & Sons, Tippicanoe City, O., has made arrangements for the reservation of space on the sixth floor of the Delco building, at Dayton, in which the Dayton Industrial Exposition is held, January 14 to 22. Mr. Bohlander will have an elaborate exhibit of trees and plants, believing that the exposition affords an excellent opportunity to advertise his stock.

STATE NURSERY LAWS.

[The following is an extract from an address by Curtis Nye Smith, association counsel, entitled "The State Nursery Stock Laws and Interstate Commerce," delivered at the annual meeting of the Western Association of Nurserymen in Kansas City, December 9, 1915.]

It is the object of this discussion to point out in ordinary language the relationship of state nursery stock laws to interstate commerce in such merchandise.

While the Congress has control of interstate commerce, there are two apparent and in practice real exceptions to the general rule. By the federal constitution the states have reserved to themselves the power to inspect imports or exports. The other power, not mentioned in the constitution but reserved to the states, is the police power of the states to enact reasonable and appropriate laws to protect the morals, health, safety and general welfare of their citizens, and to prevent fraud and deception.

Under these two powers only can interstate commerce be affected by state laws. The United States Supreme court has recognized these state rights, but only with certain limitations; such as, for example, that the state laws must be reasonable, must not unfairly discriminate against interstate commerce, must not, under the guise of inspection laws, be in effect revenue measures and a direct regulation of interstate commerce.

Inspection Costs.

As a result of the Supreme court decisions it may with some assurance be stated that the states, with the probable exception of New York state—which, except in certain particulars, has by its constitution prohibited inspection laws—may enact these nursery stock laws in order to provide inspection for the detection and elimination of injurious plant diseases and pests, and for the sole purpose of paying the cost of such inspection may charge such reasonable fees as have a proper and direct relationship with the costs of such inspection.

These laws may in direct terms prohibit or restrict the introduction of nursery stock affected by such diseases or pests. The practical effect is that interstate commerce is regulated by this class of laws just described. On the other hand, these nursery stock laws have been very carelessly drawn by persons unacquainted with the constitutional limitations, or, indeed, with little knowledge of proper statutory construction. It is, of course, impossible in this brief discussion to catalogue all the faults of the numerous state nursery stock laws. It is sufficient at present to cite a few examples of state nursery stock laws which appear to offend constitutional requirements.

A Maine nursery stock law required agents who wished to sell nursery stock to take out a license fee of $10, these fees going into the general treasury of the state. An agent of a New York nurseryman, not paying this fee, was arrested, tried, found guilty, but, on an appeal, the Supreme court of Maine reversed the judgment on the ground that the agent was not selling nursery stock. The court did not discuss the constitutional question raised; namely, that the license fee was a revenue measure, and so a burden on interstate commerce. However, this law was promptly amended to conform to the criticisms on the constitutional question, thereby recognizing the justice of the nurseryman's contention. Cannot the same thing be said of the Michigan nursery stock law where the license fees are paid into the treasury of the state without any provision for the use of such moneys for the charges of inspection?

Oklahoma's Fix.

The state entomologist of Oklahoma has recently requested ex-state nurserymen to file a bond, one of the conditions of which is that the nurseryman desiring to solicit orders for nursery stock shall buy, sell, etc., only such nursery stock as has been duly inspected and certified by an official state inspector of the state of Oklahoma. In the first place this bond appears to have a fatal defect because the statute from which it must derive its force and effect wholly fails to provide what this bond is for and what shall be its conditions.

To give it life by judicial construction or administrative regulation would practically be a usurpation of legislative functions. Another rather amusing defect of far-reaching results is that the bond is required of one who desires to sell. Now, the criminal and civil law is not interested in an intent harbored in the mind and it is not punishable, as the Main Supreme court decided in the nursery stock case above cited, in which the objectionable law penalized one who desired to sell nursery stock.

This Oklahoma bond raises a constitutional question which is unanswerable. It requires the agent of ex-state nurserymen desiring to solicit orders in Oklahoma, a purely interstate transaction, to buy and sell, etc., only Oklahoma inspected stock. This, of course, is physically impossible. Under the limitations imposed by the federal Supreme court as above mentioned this requirement is thoroughly unreasonable, and for the further reason, propounded by the Supreme court, that the inspection would necessarily be beyond the jurisdiction of Oklahoma.

The regulation is an unwarranted burden on interstate commerce. These objections being presented to the Oklahoma officials, a new form of bond has been offered to the nurserymen, but still fatally defective, though omitting the impossible inspection by Oklahoma officials in another state.

San Jose Scale.

The Michigan nursery stock law provides, in one section, that all nursery stock imported into Michigan must, before entry, be fumigated by hydrocyanic acid gas, while Michigan-grown stock is only required to be fumigated if grown within one-half mile of where San Jose scale exists. This is an obvious discrimination against interstate commerce, which, under some decisions of the United States Supreme court and in the opinion of some attorneys, is unconstitutional. Even if, as is the opinion of some lawyers, the writer being one, there can be discriminations against ex-state products under certain conditions, we still have the question whether this is a reasonable regulation of interstate commerce. From opinions of those competent to give advice as to the effect of this gas on nursery stock if used in sufficient quantities to kill the San Jose scale, it is alleged that certain kinds of nursery stock would be destroyed by this fumigation process. It is also stated by these experts that not all forms of nursery stock are affected by the San Jose scale.

These facts being true, the Michigan law requiring the ex-state nurseryman to fumigate all nursery stock offered for importation into Michigan is burdened with conditions not imposed on the Michigan nurseryman. Some of his stock which is never affected by the San Jose scale has to be fumigated; some of his stock though it is free from the San Jose scale cannot, because the fumigation process destroys it, be imported into Michigan. The only possible reason whereby this discrimination can be upheld is that this extreme regulation against interstate commerce is the only means by which this obnoxious San Jose scale can be kept out of Michigan. This is not the case.

Compared with Cattle.

This scale can be readily detected by inspection without any difficulty and by a perfectly feasible system of inspection of imported nursery stock. If such inspection discloses the presence of San Jose scale, let the authorities take proper action to prevent further shipment, or let there be penalties for the introduction of nursery stock affected with the San Jose scale. The situation is somewhat comparable to the Missouri statute which absolutely prohibited the introduction of all cattle from certain states for a large part of the year. The statute was designed to keep out of Missouri the dreaded Texas fever. The United States Supreme court held this statute an unreasonable burden on interstate commerce, because, as is evident, it prohibited interstate traffic in healthy cattle.

The obvious conclusion of this discussion is that the state's interference with interstate commerce by means of the state's police power and its constitutional right of inspection is one of great difficulty, and that these laws should be carefully drawn. Nurserymen admit, I believe, that state nursery stock laws are entirely proper and necessary to protect the farms, orchards and woodlands of this country from devastating diseases and pests likely to be introduced on nursery stock. I am equally positive that these nurserymen do not agree that this means a license to state legislatures and more particularly to overzealous inspection officials to enact or promulgate

RED RADIANCE. A sport of Radiance that will be welcomed as a valuable addition to the list of greenhouse Roses and will be of greatest value for the garden. Grafted or Own Root, 2¼-in., $2.50 per doz., $17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1,000.

MRS. WM. R. HEARST. A clear, dark pink sport of My Maryland. The equal of Maryland in habit and growth, and far superior to it in color. Grafted or Own Root, 2¼-in., $2.50 per doz., $17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1,000.

HOOSIER BEAUTY. Deep, rich crimson in color. We have a large stock of this new Rose and can fill your order to your satisfaction. Grafted 2¼-in., $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100, $140.00 per 1,000; Own Root, 2¼-in., $1.50 per doz., $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1,000.

HADLEY. With both Hadley and the above-named variety we have to offer the two best red Roses in commerce. Grafted, 2¼-in., $1.50 per doz., $12.50 per 100, $120.00 per 1,000; Own Root, 2¼-in., $1.00 per doz., $7.50 per 100, $60.00 per 1,000.

OPHELIA, FRANCIS SCOTT KEY, and all the good standard sorts we offer for February delivery on early orders. We begin grafting early.

NEW CARNATIONS THAT ARE MAKING GOOD

GOOD CHEER. We planted Good Cheer heavily because we believed in it. Today it is the finest Carnation on our place. It is a clear rose pink—a Carnation that every grower needs. Rooted Cuttings, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1,000.

MATCHLESS and ENCHANTRESS SUPREME. Two leaders in Carnations. Early delivery. Rooted Cuttings, $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1,000.

ALICE. For freedom of flowering and as a money maker, Alice has made good. We cut from it earlier than any other variety. It is a quick plant maker. It is a good commercial shell pink. Plant Alice. December and January. Rooted Cuttings, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1,000.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

GOLDEN GLEAM Our Novelty for 1916

As a novelty of the year we are offering a seedling of our own raising. It is a bright, glistening yellow in color; medium dwarf in growth. Fully as good two to a plant as single. Matures Oct. 20th to Nov. 1st. Second crown buds were the best.

2¼-in., $1.50 per doz., $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1,000.

NEW 'MUMS OF THIS SEASON

WHITE CHIEFTAIN. For early delivery we offer fine stock of this high-class variety at $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1,000. This means January and February delivery, and we have ample stock for your requirements.

GOLDEN EATON. Better in color than Yellow Eaton. One of the finest of the new 'Mums. Early delivery. $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1,000.

This cancels the previous offers on these two varieties. Orders accepted previously will be filled as booked.

POMPONS

PEACE. We shall disseminate Peace in 1916. At this writing it is a very charming shell pink. It was shown as white last season at a later date. It is a beautifully formed and valuable Pompon. 2¼-in., $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100.

HARVEST MOON. Our introduction of last season. A fine, midseason, yellow Pompon. 2¼-in., $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1,000.

EUGENE LANGAULET. A fine, late yellow. Both good, and both money-making varieties. 2¼-in., $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1,000.

SIX GOOD POMPONS FOR ANY GROWER

unfair burdens on interstate commerce contrary to the rights secured by the federal constitution.

When a state official charged with the execution of a nursery stock law not only persistently interferes with interstate commerce, even when such interference is unsupported by the provisions of the state statute, but frankly admits, as he did to the writer, that he "did not believe in, nor approve of, the nursery business carried on through any catalogue measure," and that if nurserymen of other states wish to take advantage of the markets of his state, they should pay for that privilege, the nurserymen are justified in inquiring if they have any rights under the federal constitution.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Business between the holidays proved to be much better than was expected. Everything in the line of plants cleared rapidly and after Christmas plants of all kinds were being looked for. Cut flowers held up well and a good supply was available after the Christmas rush. Business in general was good for New Year's. The demand for plants was still at its height. Beauties were sufficient in all cases. Other roses were quite sufficient for the demand, with the exception of red roses and Mrs. Russell. Carnations were rather scarce, on account of the cloudy weather.

Violets, both double and single, experienced much demand, because of the many dances. There was an unusual demand for sweet peas and, much to our disappointment, they were scarce. Easter lilies cleared previous to Christmas and they have been scarce ever since. They are being used in funeral work, selling at a good price. Callas are about the same, only on a smaller basis. Mignonette and stevia are much in demand. Orchids and valley moved only fairly well. Greens of all kinds move satisfactorily.

The florists of Buffalo have had an increase of at least twenty per cent in holiday business.

Various Notes.

Louis Neubeck, who is with his father, L. H. Neubeck, was suddenly taken sick December 31. They immediately took him to the Homeopathic hospital and performed an operation for appendicitis. He is recovering nicely.

Charles Netsch says that since he had the front of his store remodeled, business has been one great success with him.

The New Rose, MRS. BAYARD THAYER, that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large-flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front, since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell, of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal, over a strong class of competitors, at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points

The Market.

Trade has been brisk since the Christmas rush and everyone is well satisfied with the results. December 27 flowers were extremely scarce, with a great deal of funeral work, and there was a genuine scramble for stock. For a time it looked as though trade would be rather light for New Year's, but by Friday noon things were humming again.

The cloudy weather has kept the supply of stock down, so that there has been no opportunity to get ahead. The opening of this week again found the market shy on stock, with business heavy. Potted plants are being sold in great numbers. Azaleas have been offered in great quantities and all that were far enough advanced have been disposed of. Begonias were a close second, with cyclamens, primulas, etc., coming next.

Cut stock is of fine quality, especially roses, which are much longer-stemmed than the stock generally is here. As soon as we get sunshine again the cut of carnations will be heavy, but at present stock is being cut closely and there is hardly enough to go around.

The epidemic of grip has taken several of the craft for a few days and all business here has been hampered greatly. J. M.

DORNER'S NOVELTY FOR 1916 New Salmon Pink Carnation

Color, light salmon pink, a little darker than Pink Delight and a more even color. Blooms are good commercial size, three inches and over, nicely formed and have never shown a bursted calyx. Stems always hold the flower upright. The habit is a quick productive growth and as a producer it stands highest among commercial varieties. Color does not fade. Fragrance is very noticeable. Having an excellent cerise pink and an improved yellow to offer in 1917, we have decided to disseminate the variety NANCY this year (1916). For a light pink that will produce quantities of bloom and is commercially good in every respect, plant NANCY. The stock is limited and orders will be filled in rotation as received. Price, rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

The Market.

The Christmas trade was highly satisfactory, in most cases much better than that of 1914. Almost everything in blooming plants was cleaned up. Poinsettias and azaleas probably had the best demand.

In cut flowers, roses had the best call, carnations being a poor second. Despite predictions of scarcity, there was more than enough of this latter flower to meet the demand. Poinsettias found a good demand. Orchids, valley, violets, sweet peas and other corsage flowers found a ready market. Trade in general during the holidays was steady, there being the usual calls for decorations.

Various Notes.

The annual meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will open at 2 p. m. at the Chamber of Commerce; Tuesday, January 11. The usual display of cut blooms will be staged. Competition will be keen for the rose and carnation trophies. The entertainment committee, Homer Wiegand, Oliver Steinkamp and Clarence Thomas, has arranged for the usual dinner, at 6 o'clock, and a theater party at Keith's at 8 p. m. The out-of-town florists will be the guests of the Indianapolis florists. Local florists can secure tickets from the committee.

Adolph Baur has been ill with the grip.

Clarence Thomas, of Hill's, reports a busy week.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. is highly pleased with the service of its new delivery car.

The A. Wiegand's Sons Co. was busy with decorations last week. H. L. W.

Delaware, O.—J. H. Cunningham has purchased the J. C. Cox Seed Store, which he will continue in connection with his florists' business. The seed store was established twenty-six years ago by Mr. Cox and at his death ten years later his daughter, Miss Jennie Cox, conducted the business with great success. Miss Cox will take a much needed rest, after which she will open a gift shop at her home.

WAKE UP!

The new year dawns bright and is full of hope and profit to the optimistic hustler. But you can't reap unless you sow. A painful sight is a florist idling his time away until need arises and then going out to buy the blooms he should be growing. "Wake up" and produce something. It will do both soul and pocketbook good. Nothing will equal snapdragon whether wanted for plants sales in spring or for cut flowers at Easter or Memorial.

THE COAL MARKET.

In this vast and varied country there are opportunities for decided contrasts in the market conditions in widely separated localities. Only a week or two ago the coal trade was full of activity in the west, but was comparatively sluggish in the east. Now the situation is reversed; in the west the market is quiet, but in the east it has acquired so much momentum that it is described as having "runaway tendencies." The present rapid movement of coal in the east is supposed to be due to the recent obstruction of traffic there. The former traffic congestion, caused by storms and by lack of cars and boats, is now partly relieved, and the natural consequence is a rush to make amends for lost time.

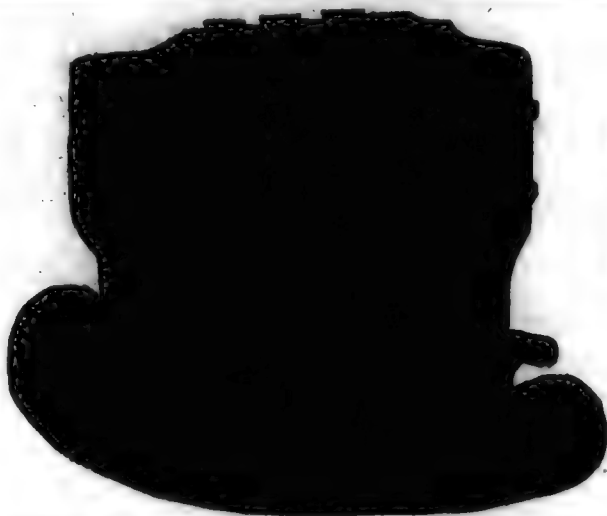

Smokeless coal this season has had many ups and downs—chiefly downs, as viewed by the coal men, though purchasers cannot see the matter in just the same light. Now, we are told, smokeless coal in Chicago is "recovering from one of the worst periods of demoralization it has had in four years. For a while standard mine-run was down to $1 and quotations of $1.05 were frequent. The market, due to a change of the weather, has recovered this week to an average of $1.25 for mine-run, while some are holding for $1.40."

USING ONLY 2-INCH PIPE.

Please give me a little information on greenhouse heating. I have a small greenhouse, 11x60 and six feet high at the ridge. The side walls are three feet and three and one-half feet high, respectively, and contain no glass. I wish to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees when the outside temperature is 5 degrees below zero. I should like to pipe the house entirely with 2-inch pipes, as I have 500 feet of these on hand. How many pipes will be needed and how large should the boiler be?

W. V. H.—N. Y.

If the house is of good construction, with a fairly tight roof, it can be heated to a temperature of 50 degrees by running a 2-inch flow pipe on each of the wall plates and connecting them at the farther end of the house with coils containing three 2-inch returns under each of the side benches. The pipe on hand will just about suffice for piping the house. If the flow pipes are given a slight fall, there will be no

THE HEATING PROBLEM SOLVED

Judging strictly according to mechanical merits, it's the METROPOLITAN PATENTED BOILER you want.

Because of their proven scientifically perfect construction, Metropolitan Patented Boilers will heat a given amount of water quicker, with less fuel and less attention than any other boiler on the market.

The remarkable heating efficiency and quick steaming qualities of these boilers are due to their large and effective heating surface.

Just a few points of Metropolitan Patented Boiler merit:—Smooth, perfect finished castings. Push nipple connections. Large fire box, providing ample combustion chamber, and permitting a sufficient charge of fuel to require attention only at long intervals. Deep ash pit, making the removal of ashes a slight task. Large flues, making the boiler easy to clean. Grates that are made for hard usage and long service. And above all, they are Fuel Saving, not Fuel Wasting.

We also make soft coal boilers which are smokeless, and save 50 per cent in coal.

Put Your Heating Problems Up to Us.

occasion for using air valves, provided the expansion tank is connected with the highest point in the system. There will be about 300 square feet of radiating surface in the system, and for economy of operation it would be well to use a boiler rated for 400 square feet, which will require a grate about twenty inches square.

LARGER RETURNS PREFERABLE.

How many feet of pipe will be required to heat a greenhouse 45x130 and twenty-one feet high to the ridge? The house runs east and west and has a concrete wall, which rises three feet above grade, with twenty-eight inches of glass above the concrete wall all around. There are seven benches, each four feet five inches wide. We shall heat with hot water and we wish to use 1 1/4-inch pipe, as we have some of that size on hand.

A. H. W.—Mass.

The temperature desired in the house is not stated, and that omission makes it impossible to give an entirely satisfactory answer. We do not favor the use of 1 1/4-inch pipe as returns in houses more than fifty feet in length with an open, gravity hot water system, unless the returns are ten feet above the top of the boiler, which is hardly likely in this case. If the 1 1/4-inch pipe is used, we would install a mercury generator or some other attachment for placing the system under pressure.

To pipe the house for a temperature of 50 degrees, we would use five 2 1/2-inch flow pipes and twenty 1 1/4-inch returns. Carry one flow on each plate, another about eight feet below the ridge, and the others over the second bench from each wall. The returns should be in five coils of four pipes each, underneath the flow pipes. If a temperature of 60 degrees is required, use seven 2 1/2-inch flows and twenty-eight 1 1/4-inch returns. This will give a return coil of four pipes under each bench, with the flows overhead.

We prefer, however, to use 2-inch pipes for the returns in houses more than seventy-five feet in length, and for the house in question would arrange the radiation as follows: For a temperature of 50 degrees, use five 2 1/2-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2-inch returns, in five coils of three pipes each, locating the flows and returns in the same relative places as suggested for 1 1/4-inch returns. To maintain a temperature of 60 degrees, we would suggest the use of seven 2 1/2-inch flow pipes and twenty-one 2-inch pipes, in seven return coils.

The pipes should all run downhill, with the expansion tank connected with the highest part of the system, unless a mercury generator is used, when the tank may be located at any convenient place. To adapt the circulation to weather and crop requirements, there should be either angle or gate valves on two of the return coils.

Gentlemen: Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants.

Very truly yours, ALBERT M. HERR.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The volume of New Year's business was unusually large and was almost, as some of the florists termed it, "a little Christmas." The business was mostly in cut flowers and corsage bouquets, although there was a brisk plant trade and a quantity of funeral work. Roses in all grades, but particularly the long-stemmed flowers, were in demand, and valley, violets, swainsonas, orchids, gardenias, Cecile Brunner and Aaron Ward roses were used extensively in corsage work. Easter and calla lilies, Russell, Shawyer and Richmond roses and greens were used for the better funeral orders.

The weather during the week between Christmas and New Year's was extremely cold, with twelve to fourteen inches of snow. There was much gayety in social circles during the week, and the demand for decorations was greater than at any other holiday.

The great quantity of snow made delivery difficult after New Year's, and all were thankful that the weather had not turned a day or two earlier. Since New Year's the market has quieted down considerably and stock of all kinds is normal.

Various Notes.

The Fort Wayne Flower Shop, which opened two months ago under a Chicago manager, has gone out of business.

A cut flower department will be opened in A. C. Aurenty's confectionery store on West Wayne street. This stand will be in charge of Mr. Aurenty's brother, S. A. Aurenty. The flowers and plants will be supplied by the New Haven Floral Co., of New Haven, Ind.

The first lilacs of the season were shown in the store of the Flick Floral Co. They are the Charles X variety. Some fine rhododendrons in white and of the Pink Pearl variety also were exhibited.

Mrs. Lydia Auger, formerly of the Auger Flower Shop, is at St. Joseph's hospital in a serious condition, following an operation for gall stones a few weeks ago. R. F.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Stock of every kind has been kept well cleaned up on this market the last two weeks. The demand for the holidays was unusually heavy and, in addition, there was a big call for funeral flowers. The demand for corsage bouquets used up an enormous quantity of choice stock. New Year's business developed a shortage in many things.

Various Notes.

The cyclamen, which always plays an important part in Christmas trade, was an exceedingly scarce article, owing to the heavy losses experienced by several large local growers. Poinsettia plants were not plentiful, many having lost every vestige of foliage long before the holidays. There was a good supply of azaleas at the right price, and many fine begonias.

Charles Plumb had an exceptionally fine stock of begonias and azaleas for the holidays and cleaned up to the last one. He was one of the unfortunate growers whose cyclamens were practically a total loss through thrips.

B. Schroeter, although a retailer, has the reputation of growing some of the finest cyclamens on this market. Last year he disposed of something like 1,000 plants at wholesale to other local retailers, but this year he lost practically every plant through thrips. Every known method of overcoming thrips was resorted to, but to no avail.

Hugo Schroeter was confined to his bed last week with a severe cold, which settled in his right foot, causing a swelling which resulted in an abscess. For over a week Mr. Schroeter could not stand on his foot.

John Dinser had a fine supply of Christmas plants and sold out completely. He was fortunate in having a goodly supply of well grown and well flowered cyclamens and by Christmas had every plant sold and delivered.

Among the holiday displays which were especially appropriate was a Santa Claus workshop in E. A. Fetter's window. H. S.

Springfield, O.—Expressions from florists and growers relative to holding a flower show here in 1916, developed the fact that such a show may be given. A meeting of the Florists' Club will be called for the purpose of discussing the matter. A number of florists advocating the show have got the papers interested in the project.

The Market.

The heavy holiday business continued until the close of New Year's day. With the exception of the early part of last week, when the stores found it necessary to use such cut flowers as had been left over, the business of the wholesale and commission houses was satisfactory and fairly good prices were maintained.

There was a heavy call for valley and the stores cleaned up on this to such an extent that it was impossible to fill all orders. The market has been flooded with American Beauty roses, good stock, but the demand for them slackened after December 25. The movement of orchids was draggy. Richmond roses have been moving well. They are plentiful and all of the growers seem to be on crop. Carnations are not selling well.

The shipping business during the week was heavy and it took care of the many violets, with which the market was almost glutted. It also proved a good outlet for other surplus stock. Pink roses have been scarce and have cleaned up well daily.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors in Washington last week were Joseph J. Goudy and I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Julius Dilloff and Milton Alexander, of New York; E. L. Tanner, of Richmond, Va.

Fred E. Miller, of J. H. Small & Sons, welcomed, New Year's day, the arrival of a baby girl.

The feature of the week was the New Year's reception at the Pan-American Union. The building always is decorated with plants, but on this occasion its beauty was heightened by an attractive decoration, by J. H. Small & Sons, in which large quantities of Mrs. Moorfield Storey and Lady Stanley roses and poinsettias were used.

The Gude Bros. Co. furnished the decorations at a theater attended by the Pan-Americans. C. L. L.

The Christmas Trade.

Besides being accompanied by ideal weather, Christmas business was good. People began buying much earlier than usual, which made less congestion on the last two days. Sales certainly came up to the expectations of everyone and proved to be the making of the best Christmas of recent years.

Carnations were in fairly good supply. Roses of good quality were most in demand, closely followed by violets and baby roses. Poinsettias, both plants and cut blooms, were good and found a ready sale. The azaleas were all sold out before New Year's. Some of the best cyclamens ever seen on this market were offered. In small plants, peppers and Jerusalem cherries were the leaders.

Various Notes.

Eli Cross had the best Christmas of recent years. He rented an extra store in order to dispose of his surplus stock to advantage.

The Henry Smith store was heavily decorated with southern smilax. Business was up to Mr. Smith's usual standard.

Alfred Hannah had a fine lot of azaleas, but not enough of them to fill the demand.

Bruin Slot & Sons were completely sold out of all plants and cut flowers grown for the local market.

The Freyling & Mendel Co. conservatory was aglow before the two big days, and by the appearance of the store after the rush it was apparent that this company enjoyed a most successful Christmas. A. F. C.

Racine, Wis.—The Racine Floral Co. is enjoying an excellent plant business, according to R. E. Miller.

Fremont, O.—The first baby born in Fremont after midnight, December 31, 1915, will be the recipient of all sorts of gifts. Fremont's leading merchants are contributing presents galore to the little one. The Horn Floral Co., for instance, will present the youngster with a magnificent bouquet.

These Sunlight Sashes as adjusted on the greenhouses are removable at will. They may be transferred to Cold Frames or Hotbeds and are incomparably superior to all others for such use.

They are complete in themselves, for they have two layers of glass enclosing an air space that is a better protection than mats and shutters, and does away with buying and using these extra covers. Besides, the plants get all the light all the time and are stronger and earlier, also far more profitable.

The Sunlight Double-Glazed Sash, as thousands of the best florists and gardeners testify, is simply perfect.

Hyde Park, Mass.—Stricken with blindness three years ago after twenty years of work as a florist, deprived of his occupation and forced to re-educate his faculties so that he might renew his calling; that, in brief, is the history of Harry Brinkgreave, grower of mums at Hyde Park. After becoming blind Mr. Brinkgreave realized that he must, first of all, educate his sense of touch. He went about this systematically, first learning cane-seating, then simpler forms of weaving, and, finally, when his fingers had become trained to act as a medium for conveying to his brain the mental picture formerly produced by sight, he took up again the duties of a florist and grower. Mr. Brinkgreave has worked up a good retail and wholesale business at Boston.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

FORCING ASTILBES OR FLORISTS' SPIRAEAS

Why not grow astilbes, the so-called florists' spiræas? They can be handled successfully by almost every grower, experienced or inexperienced. They are so easy of culture that even the most untutored beginner can scarcely fail with them, and yet they respond fully to the best efforts of the expert.

A FIRST precaution in the writing of this article, it may be well to establish the identity of the plant which forms the subject of discussion, since the plant, though commonly called a spiræa, is really an astilbe, according to the botanists. And the botanists insist on having the last word on such matters. "But what's in a name?" says some impatient, perhaps scornful, reader. "The plant," this reader avers, "will grow as well under one name as another." Perhaps so, but names are sometimes of vital importance. For instance, a judge might say, "I condemn John Smith to be hanged by the neck till dead," when he really meant to say, "I condemn John Jones." Such mixing of names might be fatal—to the wrong man. And a method of forcing that would agree finely with an astilbe might be fatal to some of the spiræas.

The Japonica Group.

Astilbe Japonica, for years the favorite species for forcing, formerly bore the name Spiræa Japonica and is still generally known in the trade as a spiræa, though the true Spiræa Japonica is a shrub, not a herbaceous plant. The variety of Astilbe Japonica that is shown in the illustration, A. Japonica Gladstone, is more frequently referred to as Spiræa astilboides Gladstone, or simply Spiræa Gladstone.

Not only are the so-called florists' spiræas usually astilbes, but most of the favorite varieties, such as Gladstone, Queen Alexandra, grandiflora, compacta and floribunda, are direct descendants of our old acquaintance, Astilbe Japonica. Of course a few of the real spiræas, of the early-flowering class, also are forced.

It should be understood that the foregoing statements are not intended—perish the thought!—for the enlightenment of the experienced majority of florists, to whom the facts have long been familiar, but are recorded here in justice to the small but deserving minority, who may not be so well informed.

What More Could Be Desired?

Astilbe Japonica and its posterity—Gladstone and the rest—are generally agreed to be remarkably easy to force. Indeed, they ought to be highly esteemed by members of the trade who prefer crops that can be grown with the least risk of failure. So great and revered an authority as William Scott has said something like this, in speaking of these astilbes: "The nature of the soil is of small importance, if only it is light and easily handled." Could any reasonable person ask for greater freedom than that in the selection of soil? It may be added, however, that the soil should be at least fairly rich, for the astilbe is a hearty feeder.

And Scott continues after this fashion: "Neither is the temperature at all a particular matter. Anything above 50 degrees at night will do, but it is not well to flower them in a higher temperature than 60 degrees, or the blooms will wilt too quickly." Again he says: "The astilbe is not troubled by aphids, spider, thrips, or any other of our pests." That may seem too good to be true; a plant unmolested by pests may seem to be an impossibility anywhere outside of the Garden of Eden. But it is Scott that has spoken and he clenches his remarks with this final declaration: "It is the simplest of all plants to force."

Care of the Clumps.

Moreover, in the treatment of the clumps or roots before the forcing process begins, it seems to be difficult to inflict serious injury on them. The imported roots should be unpacked as soon as received, and may then be thoroughly soaked with water and placed in a frame where they will be subjected to one or two moderate freezings before being potted. Or they may be potted as soon as received, and then plunged in ashes or fiber outside or in a frame, where they will have an opportunity to form roots before being wanted in the greenhouse for forcing.

Still another method of caring for the newly received clumps is to place them in flats or boxes with a little soil or moss between and above the roots and a thin covering of straw or litter over all. "Then," says Scott, "give them a good soaking and place the boxes outside, anywhere." Notice the liberty in choice of location—he says "anywhere," but he explains that he means any place where the roots will be exposed to the elements and will "have the full benefit of rain or snow to keep them from drying." He adds the comforting assurance that "they are not injured in the least by any amount of freezing."

What think you of that, you who are looking for a plant which is not too finicky or sensitive or cantankerous, which does not need to be continually petted and protected? However, the easier an act is, the better an actor is expected to perform it, on the stage or in everyday life. The easier a plant is to grow, the better must be the crop, if the grower would compete successfully with his fellow craftsmen. Though the astilbe may refuse to die under an almost ingenious perversity of mismanagement, and may bloom in spite of misfortune and neglect, yet it will yield richer rewards for the right sort of culture. Though it is not quick to resent injury or insult, it appreciates fair treatment—an agreeable quality in plant or person.

A Thirsty Lot.

One of the principal facts to be borne in mind is that astilbes are a thirsty lot; they are veritable "soaks." Whether in the border, on the forcing bench or in the private home, they must have plenty of water, and in some stages of their growth, at least, they relish something stronger than clear water. When they prove disappointing as house plants or decorative stock, the chief cause of failure in most cases is lack of moisture. It is advisable, therefore, when selling them for use in a private home, to instruct the purchaser to place a saucer under the pot and keep the saucer filled with water.

In forcing the plants, also, the easiest and most satisfactory method is to put each pot in a saucer, maintaining a supply of water in the saucers during the early stages of growth, but later substituting weak liquid manure for the water. The use of the liquid manure should start as soon as the sprays begin to show color, if not sooner.

For Easter and Memorial Day.

Astilbes are not so popular as they once were, but they are likely to regain their lost favor, as they are really among the most desirable of early spring flowers, whether cut or in pots. They still are in good demand at both Easter and Memorial day. As already stated, it is not advisable to force them hard, but they thrive in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night. The length of time required to flower them varies widely—from eight weeks, or even less, to fourteen weeks—according to the earliness or lateness of the season. Memorial day is so near the natural flowering period that plants intended for use on that occasion need not be placed in heat till near the middle of April.

For Memorial day some of the pink varieties, such as Queen Alexandra and Peach Blossom, are especially suitable, because they are later bloomers than the white sorts and also because the cut pink sprays are then in better demand than the white ones.

Beware of Tobacco Smoke.

The young, immature growths on astilbes are easily injured by tobacco smoke, but, as already intimated, there is no necessity for subjecting them to the action of tobacco smoke, as they are immune from the attacks of most of the insects. When other plants in a house are to be fumigated, the astilbes should be protected, either by covering them or by spraying them thoroughly. Of course, a still better plan, when practicable, is to have the astilbes in a house where tobacco smoke never is needed.

Astilbes are also satisfactory for use in the perennial border, where they will endure more than the average amount of neglect, but they flourish best in rich, moist soil, especially if partly shaded by trees.

MR. HAYES' RAPID RECOVERY.

At midnight, November 23, fire completely demolished the handsome downtown store of James Hayes, at Topeka, Kan. Nothing was saved from the flames and the loss was only partly covered by insurance. Mr. Hayes, however, was not discouraged by his severe loss, for on the following morning, at 8 a. m., he opened a store directly across the street from the still smoldering remains of the former one. Business in the new quarters was carried on under many difficulties, but Mr. Hayes did a good Thanksgiving business and enjoyed good trade during the twenty days he was forced to remain there.

When the Thanksgiving business was disposed of, Mr. Hayes immediately concentrated his energies on plans for a new store at the old location. Having a keen eye for the big Christmas business due a few weeks later and being determined to get his share of it, Mr. Hayes was confronted with the problem of outfitting his store and having everything in tiptop shape in the course of two weeks. Mr. Hayes placed the entire order for new fixtures with a Kansas City company, giving it just fifteen days to complete the manufacture and set the fixtures in the new store. He had to persuade the company to lay all other work to one side and devote all its facilities to his fixtures. Mr. Hayes says that a tidy bit of extra cash was required to swing the deal, but that he simply had to be back at the old stand in time for Christmas. Mr. Hayes remarks: "I returned to the old location in time and did the largest Christmas trade in the history of the business—and we have had a store for the last twenty-five years." The accompanying illustration gives a view of the interior of Mr. Hayes' new store, at 107 West Eighth street.

MR. BRYANT'S BRIDE'S BOUQUET.

The florist who is incessantly on the watch for good bouquet arrangements perhaps will find food for thought in the illustration on page 11, which depicts a bride's bouquet made of 150 valley. As will be noticed, the bouquet is not round, but falls naturally and gracefully over the arm of the bearer. It was the work of J. L. Bryant, designer for A. C. Brown, of Springfield, Ill., who contends that in only one case is the round "cauliflower" arrangement permissible, and that is when it is strictly colonial in style. Mr. Brown says: "The illustration is not submitted because there is anything particularly striking about the bouquet, but because the florist in the small town, who has infrequent calls for such a bouquet, perhaps would like to know how it should look. The bride would know where to take hold of the bouquet and how to carry it."

CHICAGO CLUB MEETS.

That cold has no terrors for the florists of Chicago and vicinity when a club meeting is in prospect was proved by the goodly number in attendance at the protracted session in the Morrison hotel, January 6. With the exception of the installation of officers, there was no special feature scheduled for this evening. But one marked peculiarity of the Chicago Florists' Club meetings is the fact that when nothing in particular is slated, something of unusual interest is almost sure to occur.

In his annual report President Keimel spoke of the gratifying growth of the club in the last twelve months—sixty-seven new members exclusive of those becoming members through the amalgamation of the Chicago Florists' Club and the Cook County Florists' Association. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were deferred till the next meeting.

George Asmus, speaking for the trustees, suggested a novel plan for converting into liquid form the silver punch bowl which, in default of its being won at the recent flower show, was donated to the club by the greenhouse manufacturers of Chicago. The plan is to raffle it on the sale of 500 tickets at $1 each. Mr. Asmus said that each of the three trustees had declared a willingness to take twenty-five of these tickets. As to the remaining tickets, it was suggested that one be mailed to each member of the club with a request that he retain it and send the money to the secretary. It is to be fully understood that the sale of these tickets be confined to members of the trade. The club voted to leave the matter to the discretion of the trustees.

A report of the transportation committee recommended the Wabash railroad to those wishing to attend the convention of the American Carnation Society, in St. Louis, January 26 and 27. The one-way fare is $5.80 for a party of ten or more traveling on one ticket. The train leaves Chicago at 11:55 p. m., arriving in St. Louis at 7:53 a. m.

With these matters out of the way, the ceremony of installing officers was begun by President Keimel. Escorting Alexander Henderson, president-elect, to the chair, he introduced him with words of strong commendation, bespeaking for him the hearty support of the club. After a few forceful remarks by President Henderson, George Asmus moved that a rising vote of thanks be given Mr. Keimel for his valuable services to the club while acting as its president. The motion was acted upon with much enthusiasm. Mr. Keimel, with his usual modesty, disclaimed any credit attaching to the club's advance during the last year and attributed it rather to the work of others. William E. Tricker, when introduced as vice-president, expressed his appreciation of the honor and gave assurance that he would do all in his power to support the president. Guy French, of course, when his turn came, couldn't keep off the subject of the dues for the ensuing year. He said his motto is "Do it now." Paul Bride's Bouquet of 150 Valley, by John L. Bryant.

Klingsporn, having the treasury in mind, quite naturally adverted to the matter of dues, also.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., the guest of the evening, made application for membership and paid therewith a full year's dues in advance, thus establishing a precedent for 1916. He also entered an application for Joseph Hill, of Richmond. On motion, the rule was suspended and they were balloted upon and elected to membership, together with W. W. Randall and J. E. Pollworth, of Chicago, and Michael Staclonik, of Niles Center, Ill.

George Asmus drew attention to the fact that there are now eighty-seven members of the club who are also members of the S. A. F., and urged others to join the national body to secure representation for the Chicago club on its board of directors. He also suggested that the next meeting night, February 10, be designated for a novelty exhibition. The suggestion was acted upon and W. J. Keimel was appointed chairman of the committee in charge. He selected as his aids A. Miller, W. E. Tricker, A. T. Pyfer, E. Ollinger and H. Nichols. E. G. Hill was asked to give a talk on roses at the February meeting. His acceptance was conditional. Mr. Hill in this connection said that one of the most hopeful signs of the day is the growing desire in the younger members of the trade for a knowledge of cultural methods. He dwelt on the necessity of buying new varieties and trying them out. The public is hungry for something new, he said, and we must feed it.

C. W. Johnson seized the opportunity to call attention to the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association in Rock Island next March.

Guy French brought greetings to the club from John Poehlmann, president of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., who was taken to the German hospital January 6 for treatment of a chronic stomach trouble. E. G. Hill recommended that a letter be indited in behalf of the club, wishing Mr. Poehlmann a speedy recovery. The recommendation found ready acceptance.

George Asmus in a short talk told of the work being done to boost the National Flower Show and advised immediate consideration by the club of a flower show next fall. His stand found many supporters and, after discussion, the flower show committee was instructed to start work on a show for the coming fall.

Before the meeting closed, E. G. Hill said Indianapolis would appreciate the support of the Chicago club in its efforts to secure the next convention of the American Carnation Society. This support was promised with a will.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

LIME-SULPHUR FOR SPIDER.

In The Review of November 11, 1915, page 38, under the title of "Stem-rot and Other Diseases," Geo. N. Tyler gave his experience in using lime and sulphur for stem-rot of carnations. The subject is exceedingly interesting to many of us and we should be glad if Mr. Tyler could be persuaded to enter further into the details.

We have controlled red spider on carnations by means of the regular lime-sulphur solution, as it is commonly used for spraying fruit trees. We used it at the rate of one gallon of the solution to sixty gallons of water, spraying the plants thoroughly. We used two gallons of the mixture for a bed 5x150 feet, with good results, but it will spoil the open flowers; therefore care is necessary. The best time to apply it is soon after the plants are housed and before the flowers begin to open.

Isaac A. Passmore.

POINSETTIA STOCK PLANTS.

I have read with interest the query and reply, under the title of "Treatment of Poinsettias," on page 17 of The Review of December 30, and I agree with the answer by C. W., but I cannot see why E. M. S. should wish to pull his old stock plants out of the bench in October, when by letting them stand he would be able to cut fine flowers from them for Christmas.

I bench my stock plants during April and take cuttings from them as fast as they are produced, or until September 1. After that I let all the shoots grow for cut flowers, getting from three to eight good blooms from each stock plant. These flowers bring me $3 to $6 per dozen at Christmas and I never have had enough of them. When the plants are properly treated the blooms are highly satisfactory to my customers, keeping about ten days or two weeks. After cutting all the flowers from the plants, I dry them off gradually in the same soil. Then, about February 15, I store them under a dry carnation bench, covering the roots with dry sand, and there they remain until April again arrives.

Charles F. Fawcett.

THE GROWERS' NEED.

The paragraph in The Review for January 6, saying that the retailers should not try to force the prices on cut flowers to as low levels as those of the last two years, struck me as hitting the nail squarely on the head.

It seems a pity that in our business there is no fixed price for our product. We know to a certainty what it will cost us to produce our wares, and we know how much we must get for them to make us sure that the balance is not on the wrong side of the ledger, and yet we are at the mercy of people who do not know the growers' side of the business.

The retailer could, and, I think, should, work hand in hand with the grower. He can help the grower in many different ways. When there is a large cut of flowers he should come down with his price and sell more and in that way help move the glut.

I said that we growers know how much we must receive for our flowers. I have kept records for four years of my cut from each bench in my greenhouses and I know the average cut per rose plant I can expect. I claim that if one takes all into consideration (some benches must be thrown out early to make room for young plants and many other things you must consider), you can not do better than twenty flowers to a plant. Now, I know some will say they can do better than that. Yes; I can, too, but only in a few instances and when you come to figure averages you find a different story.

Now, as to what should be the lowest price per flower the grower should get, my records of the expenses of running my greenhouses show that the lowest price should not be below 4 cents average at any time. At that price a grower makes his living and manages to get through and that's all. The last two years there were times when the average price went as low as 50 cents per hundred. The big growers who wholesale their flowers seem better off than the smaller men, and yet they are the first ones to cut the prices. I know of four large growers who do not keep a record of anything they grow and how they can fix the prices for all the market I can not understand. Let us be frank with each other and tell the truth. Everyone is talking about doing more business every year, but not the small grower who grows for the wholesale market. Now, he should be the first to notice any increase in business, because whatever is sold must come from him, and yet at the end of a year he can not show any especially better business. Who gets the money? There is something wrong somewhere, or else the talk is all humbug.

There are many other points that I would like to speak about, but as this article is getting a little too long and many a busy man would not take the time to read it, I will say only a few more words about our wholesalers. I think they are trying to do the right thing with us growers, but the conditions under which they find themselves are wrong. No united action; everybody trying to make a sale, and the one who gets it in the neck is the grower.

HOW TO GROW GLADIOLI ERECT.

Please tell me how gladioli should be grown in the field to keep them upright without staking. The staking would require a great amount of work and expense. Would rather deep planting and massing them in rows overcome this difficulty?

K. F. C.—Minn.

In order to have your gladioli stand erect in the field you should plant them six inches deep. With shallow planting you may get an earlier growth, but droughts will affect the plants more and they will droop over a great deal from the action of wind and rain.

C. W.

GLADIOLI FOR FORCING.

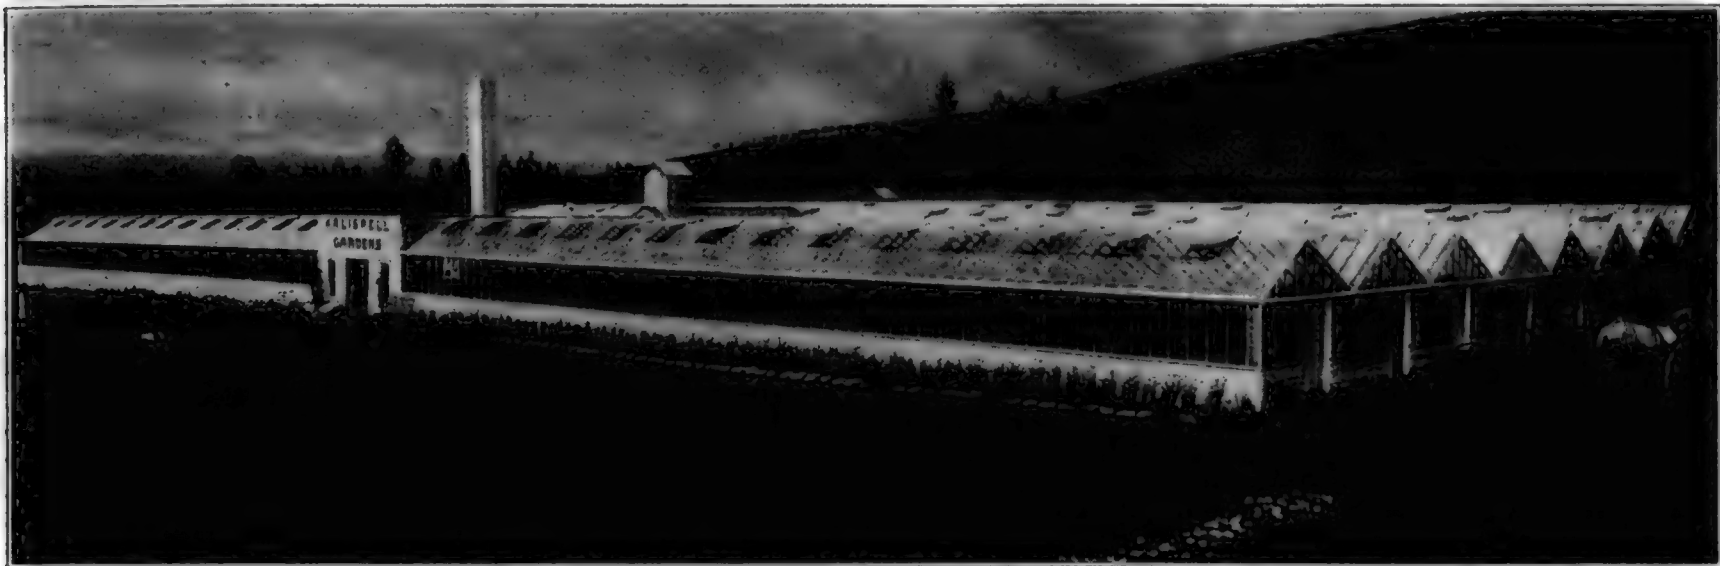

Will you please tell me of someone who has profitably forced Hollandia, Pink Perfection and Halley gladioli, and give his particular treatment of them. The first-mentioned I have thrown away, considering it ordinary.

Pink Perfection is comparatively new and when grown outdoors the petals lack substance. Halley, I find, has a slender spike which tends to crook. I also would like to know if Peace is a good forcing variety. I have grown it outdoors, where it seems to be an exceptionally strong grower.

E. W. F.—N. J.

Hollandia is not a good forcing variety. Pink Perfection is a good forcer. Its name, however, is largely a misnomer; the flower is not of a taking color and it will never prove popular. Halley succeeds better outdoors than indoors. None of these varieties is at all equal to America or Mrs. Francis King as an indoor variety; none of them will sell as well as either of the last two sorts. I have not tried Peace indoors. Perhaps some grower who has done so would favor us with his experience. Augusta is not so good a white, but is popular commercially, as it is a good forcer.

Kalispell Gardens, of Kalispell, Mont., Comprising Nearly an Acre of Glass and Twenty Acres of Gardens.

AMERICAN GLADIOLI LEAD.

I have read with interest Mr. Meader's article in The Review for January 6 and I appreciate all he says about Mr. Kunderd's work in introducing some good varieties of gladioli, but from a rather intimate knowledge of the gladiolus business of the last ten or fifteen years I feel that I must take exception to what Mr. Meader says when he states that "until comparatively recently practically all the leading named varieties were originated by foreign growers," unless Long Island is a foreign country.

Out of curiosity I have looked up the sales of one grower for the last five years on a few varieties that were originated on Long Island, which are as follows:

Attraction	100,000
Augusta	758,000
Blanche	21,400
Brilliant	19,500
Cardinal	16,300
Canary Bird	108,900
Columbia	74,000
Contrast	7,500
Dawnray	6,300
Fire King	4,500
F. L. Oakley	15,000
H. Gilman	30,000
Melrose	4,190
Mrs. H. W. Beecher	15,250
Nezinscott	19,900
Rosy Spray	20,800
Salem	38,400
Scribe	20,500
Sulphur King	48,000
Superb	7,800
Wild Rose	21,000
Wm. Falconer	70,800

I could, if necessary, name twenty-five to fifty more varieties that have been originated on Long Island, the sale of which has been extensive during the last ten years.

In addition to the above I can cite the variety America, which originated in this country, was introduced ten years ago, and has had a phenomenal sale, for two or three years during its prime the sales of one firm alone reaching a million bulbs a year. Then there are the varieties May and Shakespeare, which were produced in this country, sales of which have been enormous during the last ten years. As a florists' variety, Shakespeare still is one of the best. Of more recent introduction I might mention Niagara and Panama, two more varieties originated in Ohio.

I think I am safe in saying that until only three or four years ago more varieties were sent to Europe from Long Island than were exported from Europe to the United States, as unless I am much mistaken, the number of varieties imported until the last four or five years was limited indeed, the variety Brenchleyensis being the chief importation outside of the Colvillei type. I believe I am also safe in saying that up to eight years ago more gladiolus bulbs were shipped from this country to Europe than were sold in the whole United States, but this condition has been changed during recent years.

GLADIOLI FOR SOUTHERN STORE.

I am considering planting gladioli for store sales and would like to have you advise me on their culture here in West Virginia. I wish to cut fifty blooms per day during the entire season. How nothing better than stable manure, plowed in. Do this now if possible; if not, then do it as early in the spring as the ground can be worked. As soon as the ground is well harrowed, the simplest way to plant the bulbs is to line out the rows about three feet apart with a plow. Set the bulbs about six to eight inches apart in the rows and cover them by means of the plow. The growths can be worked with a horse thereafter more economically than by hand.

The first and biggest planting should be made as soon as the frost is gone. A month should elapse before the next planting and the plantings thereafter should be only two weeks apart. It is easy to calculate the number of bulbs to plant, but always plant a good many more than you require. There is little difference between the size of the blooms from small or large bulbs, but if you want the finest blooms plant the best bulbs. We find the best sellers here are America and Mrs. Francis King. The bulbs will mature their flowers the next season if you leave them as late as possible in the fall before digging them up. Let them get dry and store them in a cool, dry place, out of reach of frost, and they will give perfectly satisfactory results the next season.

IN THE MONTANA MOUNTAINS.

Up in the northwest corner of the state of Montana, among the mountains, is the establishment of W. E. Mills, at the county seat of Kalispell. Twenty acres of land produces all the outdoor flowers the surrounding territory can use, and 36,000 square feet of glass is used to furnish the neighboring markets with greenhouse flowers and vegetables. For next autumn, 5,000 carnations and 3,000 chrysanthemums have been planted. A wide variety of other flowers is grown. Lettuce in great quantities is marketed through the northwest.

For the greenhouses at Kalispell Gardens, Mr. Mills obtained the material from halfway across the continent. The houses are from the A. Dietsch Co., Chicago; the ventilators are from the John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind., and a Kroeschell boiler No. 14 with generator heats the range.

Fayville, Ill.—A boiler explosion in the greenhouse of John King damaged the house and contents to the extent of $500.

Geraniums

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Bedding Geraniums.

There will now be bench space to spread out the little bedding geraniums properly. The early potted ones in 2-inch or 2¼-inch pots should go into 3-inch pots. The strongest ones will give a nice cutting each within a few weeks, which can be rooted and sold in 3-inch pots in May. Keep the stock plants in a light, sunny house. The stockier the cuttings are the less liability there is that they will damp off.

This treatment should apply to all geraniums. They do not want shade at any time, not even when in the cutting bench. Keep them at 48 to 50 degrees at night, in a dry, buoyant atmosphere. Ventilate freely and let the sun have full play and there will not be much chance for leaf disease or stem-rot to develop. Do not hose the plants overhead, as you would a house of foliage plants. Do not let them crowd one another; give them a fresh stand from time to time, at the same time removing weeds and decaying foliage and removing any sliminess from the surface of the soil. The most probable causes of stem-rot are leaving the cuttings too long in the sand after they are rooted, too deep potting and improper soil. By the latter I mean soil which contains manure not sufficiently decayed. Any manure used for geraniums should be old, and it is best when it will crumble in the hand. That secured from old hotbeds or spent mushroom beds is good, provided it has been well dried out in the sun and is free from worms. Fine bone at the rate of a 3-inch pot to each bushel of loam, or a 4-inch pot if other manure is not used, makes an excellent food for geraniums. It is also good on the surfaces of the pots to assist established plants. It is surprising how the roots will come up and devour this stimulant, and it builds up a stocky growth, which means floriferous plants. Everyone knows that at bedding-out time the average buyer demands plants with a flower truss open, no matter if they are smaller in size than others not in bloom.

Winter-flowering Geraniums.

Sometime within the next three or four weeks cuttings should be put in of geraniums wanted in flower next Thanksgiving or Christmas. A good plan is to pot the cuttings singly in 2-inch pots of sandy loam. Stand them on a bench where they will get some bottom heat. Do not shade them at all, and only water them when really necessary. When rooted, shift them into 3-inch pots and later into 4½-inch and 6-inch pots. The latter size will give splendid plants, which, if properly cared for, will carry anywhere from six to fifteen trusses each, according to the variety. While the singles make much the finest and freest blooming pot plants for winter and are the best for home trade, the doubles are to be preferred where plants have to be shipped some distance. Scarlet, crimson, salmon and clear pink are the best selling colors, in this order.

Scented-Leaved Geraniums.

About everyone who has a small garden wants one or two sweet-scented plants, and of these scented geraniums and lemon verbenas have first call. If you have carried over a few stock plants of the various scented geraniums, get a batch of cuttings in now. They will soon root and can be grown along more rapidly than the ordinary bedding geraniums, so that in most cases you can have them in 4-inch pots in time for spring sales.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

In the south the days are lengthening appreciably and the carnation plants are beginning to show their heavy spring growth. A top-dressing of sheep manure can be applied now and lightly raked in. Great care should be taken to keep the temperature of the houses just right. The next six or eight weeks are generally the coldest of the year, and usually show great changes. The weather must be watched both day and night to avoid rapid changes in the temperature of the houses, otherwise a heavy crop of split carnations is sure to be the result. It is advisable in the south to run the carnations just a little warmer than do the northern growers. I have found few split carnations in a temperature of 54 degrees at night, if this temperature can be fully maintained during the few extra cold snaps. I do not remember ever having seen a single split calyx farther south, where the houses were run at 56 degrees. With this higher temperature some night ventilation was given, except during unusually cold snaps. Attend carefully to the disbudding and spend some time in keeping the plants growing straight in their proper spaces. The top-dressing of sheep manure may be renewed every three weeks. Spray the plants with the tobacco extracts regularly once every week or ten days as a precaution against thrips, which may soon be expected to develop their spring practice.

HYDRANGEAS.

Hydrangeas should have a shift into rich soil now. Otaksas should be put

"IF I WERE A CITY FLORIST."

Under the above caption a contributor to System writes as follows: "If I were a city florist I would take advantage of the popular liking for a touch of greenery on city buildings by advertising combination outfits to fit ledges, cornices, entrances and the like. I would make a lump price to cover complete equipment of plants and box and installation. Building owners would be surprised at the low cost and ease of making their buildings attractive."

Dallas, Tex.—The decorations at the recent ball of the Columbian Club were executed by the Rische-Chollar Co. Palms, ferns and bay trees decorated the halls and southern smilax formed an arch over the stairway. A myriad of colored lights were strung across the ceiling and intermingled with the greenery, smilax and autumn leaves. A quaint Thanksgiving scene in a New England cabin was an artistic achievement. In the banquet room the columns were wrapped with smilax, holly and leaves. In the upper hall, punch was served from an elaborate arbor made of Mexican ivy and smilax. This was the second large decoration handled by the Rische-Chollar Co. since its formation a short time ago.

into a warmer temperature, say 55 degrees at night, for a couple of weeks, when they can be raised to 60 degrees. Twelve weeks in the latter is generally all that is considered necessary to flower the Otaksas, but two weeks more is better. Easter is quite late this year, so that there should be no trouble in having them on time. If they need hurrying, the temperature can be raised 5 or 10 degrees. They require quite a lot of water. A few doses of liquid manure when the flower first shows will swell the size and help the color. If you can see the flower heads six weeks before Easter they will make it in the lower temperature.

The French varieties will come two weeks or more earlier in the same temperatures.

L.

BULBS IN THE SOUTH.

The first boxes of Golden Spur narcissi and early tulips now should be in a brisk heat under a table. Give them plenty of water. The tulip as a cut flower seems to sell rather poorly in the south, but I find here that when they are potted into pans they sell more than readily and at a greater profit. For this purpose you want them rather dwarf; after the season is more advanced they need not be given any shade during the forcing period.

Dutch hyacinths are better left in the frame until the beginning of February, when they may be brought into the heat to develop their flowers. Keep them on the dwarf side. They are more easily handled and sell better when dwarfed. Box all these bulbs and pot them into pans as they develop.

Carnations

WORK OF THE PROPAGATOR.

The Best Bench.

The fact that many carnation specialists have been propagating for a month or more need not disturb the average grower. Their early cuttings will make fine stock if properly cared for, but unless they are shifted from time to time, the cuttings put in during this month or early February will make better plants and with far less worry. No doubt you have selected your propagating bench, which should be so located that you have complete control over the sunshine and air currents. We find a north bench especially well adapted to this use, as a curtain hung in front will serve to keep off both sun and draft. We like the curtain better than the old method of laying newspapers on the cuttings, although good results are had that way. We also prefer a bench with a brick or tile bottom, but frequently use a bench with a board bottom when the others are overcrowded, and with good results.

Put on a scant four inches of sand and pack it down firmly to about three inches. Use sharp sand and be sure it is clean. Change the sand for each batch of cuttings, as it is poor economy to use sand over and over. A load of sand will suffice to propagate about 10,000 cuttings and a few cuttings will pay for a yard of sand.

The Best Cutting.

Many specialists, particularly those who make a business of selling rooted cuttings, grow part of their stock especially for cuttings. There is practically no difference in the quality of the cuttings taken from this cut-back stock and those taken from the blooming stock, but there is less danger of poor cuttings being taken. If you propagate from your blooming stock, be careful to select only strong cuttings from near the base of the flower stems. Those growing high on the stems are weak and will not make strong plants.

You will likely take the cuttings with a heel, which you will find advisable to cut away in trimming the cuttings for the cutting bench. We find that many varieties will not root readily from the heel and we are able to make a more even lot of cuttings by cutting away the bottom. We cut right through a joint, as that enables us to get enough stem for inserting in the sand, without having to tear away any more leaves.

The Best Treatment.

Cut back any leaves that stand outward and shorten back slightly the center leaves. There will be less wilting and less crowding in the cutting bench. Have a vessel of water to throw each cutting into as it is trimmed, leaving them in the water a half hour or so. This plumps them up, so that wilting will not take place before the cuttings begin to draw water from the sand. Give a good watering after the cuttings have been inserted in the sand

WELLS WINS AMERICAN CUP.

Whatever foundation, or lack of foundation, there may be for the opinion that the carnation in this country has recently been declining somewhat in popular favor, there is no indication that the flower is suffering such a relapse in England, if we may judge by the demonstrations of public sentiment at the winter show of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, held in London in December. In spite of the fact that the exhibition, on account of conditions created by the war, was below its usual standard, the attendance was much larger than at any of the recent shows of the Royal Horticultural Society. There were other attractions besides the carnations, but there were unmistakable evidences that the carnations were the great center of interest.

It is worthy of note, also, that though the competition in some of the classes was meager and some of the best awards are said to have "gone begging," there was a fair showing of blooms in the contest for the American cup, for three vases of American novelties. The cup was won by W. Wells & Co., Merstham, with Champion, Laura Weber and Pink Sensation.

BISULPHIDE FOR SOIL PESTS.

I have a bench of fine, healthy looking carnations, but some of the plants recently began to wilt. On investigating, I saw that the roots were rotted off and I found a considerable number of small white mites, which seemed to be exceedingly active among the roots. I purchased some carbon bisulphide, made a hole in the ground near each plant, poured in a teaspoonful and closed the hole. This seemed to kill the mites and fishworms, but the plants died also. Is the bisulphide injurious to the plants, or was the treatment entirely proper? I have lost about twenty plants. H. M. K.—Ind.

Inasmuch as you seem to have destroyed the mites and angleworms in the carnation soil, I would consider the treatment successful. When a vigorously growing plant is injured seriously enough at the roots to cause wilting, the chances for saving its life are usually rather slim. The only way to insure against losing more plants from this same cause is to go over the whole bed and apply the bisulphide at stated distances apart. A. F. J. B.

and give plenty of water until rooted. Do not crowd too closely in the sand. Medium-sized cuttings will do nicely if placed about an inch apart in the row, with the rows two and one-half inches apart. If the sand is packed down firmly, three-quarters of an inch in the sand is sufficient to hold the cuttings upright and that is all you want.

Keep the sun off entirely for the first week and be sure to keep drafts off, as they are worse than sunshine. A badly wilted carnation cutting might as well be thrown out and you will find that success will depend on keeping the cuttings in a fresh condition for four weeks with as little overhead spraying as possible. A. F. J. Baur.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Seed Sowing.

Quite a variety of seeds may now be sown. It is well to remember that in midwinter, before the sun has much power, germination is better than later, when flats and pans dry out more rapidly and when a little neglect may mean a heavy loss of seedlings. Fine loam, leaf-mold and sand make an ideal compost for seedlings. It should be passed through a fine screen and firmed evenly once the seeds are sown. Be sure also that the drainage is ample. A few fine seeds, such as petunias, tuberous begonias, fibrous begonias and gloxinias, are better if sown without any covering except a fine dusting of sand. It is also well to water the pans with a fine rose before these are sown. All newly sown seeds must be protected from the sun. The more susceptible ones, such as those already named, should have sheets of glass laid over the pans and all should be covered with paper or cloth, which can be removed at night and on sunless days and gradually be dispensed with as the seedlings germinate.

A few other seeds to sow now are verbena, canna, Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri, torenia, Dracena australis, Grevillea robusta, lobelia, Vinca rosea, Centaurea gymnocarpa and musa.

Many hardy perennials also can be started now and in a number of cases these will flower the same season. A few varieties of proved commercial value are Lupinus polyphyllus, lychnis, delphinium, Lobelia cardinalis and L. syphilitica, primula, gypsophila, coreopsis, gaillardia, pentstemon, physostegia and dianthus. These perennials can be transplanted into shallow flats. They can be gradually hardened off before setting the plants out in nursery rows, or, if preferred, a number may be potted off and later plunged in cold-frames where there is a call for pot-grown hardy perennials, and it is a well known fact that there is a rapid increase in the sales of this hardy stock.

Bulbous Plants.

Many of the Dutch bulbs are now well started. If they have been properly taken care of and not allowed to get too dry at the root they should all flower satisfactorily, always provided they have not been heated in transit from Holland. If flats and pans are full of live, active roots, and top growths are not less than two inches high, they are in good condition to force. At this early season all of the narcissi and tulips, especially the latter, are better drawn up in a warm, dark place until the flowers show color, then gradually inured to more light. Some varieties which can be housed at once are Henry Irving, Trumpet Major, Golden Spur, Silver Spur and ornatus narcissi, Campernelle jonquils, La Reine and White Hawk tulips. Of course some of these have already appeared on the markets, but the average country florist will not find much money in the early forced stock.

Lilacs.

For early forcing, lilacs are better if started in a dark, warm cellar. After this time a warm greenhouse, kept at 60 to 65 degrees at night, answers perfectly. Spray the plants freely until the flower spikes are half developed. Move them into a slightly cooler house as the flowers open. Do not expose them to strong sun; a little shade will prevent wilting and make the flowers last much longer. For forcing purposes good varieties are Marie Legraye, single white; Mme. Lemoine, double white; Charles X and Michel Buchner.

"What can I do with old lilacs which have been forced?" is often asked. Do not throw them away. Cut them back severely after flowering and plant outdoors about May 15. If left a couple of seasons they can be forced again, or, if preferred, they may be used to plant in shrubberies.

The Propagating Bench.

At the coldest period of the year, which we have now reached, when we cannot ventilate houses freely and when the heating pipes are constantly warm, we are assured of a steady heat in the propagating bench, and at no season of the year can we be more certain of cuttings rooting than now. Given sand of good porosity, which is clean, and proper watering and shading, few cuttings should fail to root. Careless watering, neglect in shading and too much ventilation are responsible for most of the failures in propagation.

In the warm cutting bench many plants can now be rooted, including crotons, dracenas, acalyphas, diffenbachias, coleus, alternantheras, heliotropes, begonias, lemon verbenas, which should be rubbed off with a heel, using new, soft growths; impatiens, ageratum, etc.

Where it is cooler, say, a bottom heat not over 60 degrees and 10 degrees lower above, chrysanthemums, English ivies, ericas, genistas, boronias and geraniums will root nicely. In addition to the foregoing there are other bedding plants, such as fuchsias, ageratum, salvias, petunias, verbenas, lobelias and that useful decorative plant, Pandanus Veitchii, not forgetting the old rubber plant, Ficus elastica.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Renanthera Imshootiana.

Renanthera Imshootiana has been freely exhibited the last two or three seasons at the late winter and spring exhibitions and has attracted much favorable notice. It is of easy culture and quite inexpensive, and can be depended upon to flower freely each season. The plant in habit is not unlike a small-leaved Vanda cœrulea, and it succeeds well with the same treatment accorded that charming orchid. Some growers may remember the old R. coccinea, which has been in cultivation for a century. This used to be considered a hard subject to flower. It grew well and attained a great height tied to stumps in warm, moist houses, but would not bloom unless given plenty of sun. R. Lowei is another variety still occasionally seen in warm houses. R. Imshootiana, even in a 3-inch pot, will carry a large and much branched spike of its red, gold-suffused flowers, and these keep fresh for a number of weeks.

ORCHIDS

It likes a compost of fern fiber and live sphagnum. Some of the sphagnum can be kept growing on the surfaces of the pots.

Cypripediums.

At this season cypripediums are especially attractive, as so many varieties are in flower. Of course, some of the lady's slippers are always to be had in flower, but in midwinter there is a wonderful assortment of fine varieties in season. Commercially, C. insigne is about the only sort grown in quantity. This old sort stands a lot of hard treatment and will flower well each season in spite of it. The yellow forms will some day be the leaders in the markets. As yet they are not grown in sufficient numbers, but the prices of the plants have steadily declined until now they are within the reach of all. Of the yellow forms Sanderæ is still the best by long odds, with Sanderianum, Dorothy, Laura Kimball, Brightness and Luciana as other leaders. The yellow forms grow well and flower freely, and anyone with a suitable house for cypripediums should secure some. The flowers realize much higher prices than the ordinary types. All cypripediums like a warm, moist house and need some shade all the time, but insigne can be beautifully grown even in a dwelling house.

Flowering now is C. Leeannum, another fine florists' variety, with broad, attractive dorsal sepals. The best of many fine forms is C. Leeannum Clinkaberryannum, in which there is a remarkable breadth to the dorsal sepal. C. villosum is another old variety that is flowering now or will bloom within a few weeks, with rich, shiny leaves. The flowers are attractive and never fail to sell. The same holds true of C. Sallieri aureum. C. Harrisianum is often seen in the markets. It is seen in bloom at a variety of seasons. The variety superbum is an immense improvement on the original type. C. aureum Hyeannum is another fine florists' variety. Plants of the selenipedium section are especially valuable where orchid flowers are wanted at all seasons. These flower continuously from the same spikes for six to nine months in many cases.

The repotting of cyripediums which are done flowering can be started now. It is well to remember that the season after repotting the plants will not flower so freely, so it is not advisable to pot too many in one season. Drain the pots or pans efficiently with coarse cinders, broken crocks or charcoal. I have also seen the rough portions of fern fiber used advantageously. Fern fiber, with some new sphagnum added, makes a good potting medium. The insigne do better with some fibrous loam added, with all the fine particles shaken out. Water sparingly after repotting, but the plants can be sprayed on clear days.

Vanda Cærulea.

The flowering season for Vanda cærulea extends for about six months where a fair-sized batch is grown. The plants will not flower freely unless they are given plenty of winter sun and are shaded only moderately through the hot months. Where the plants have become quite leggy they can be cut down and the tops, with roots attached, will soon reestablish themselves in a compost of fern fiber and sphagnum in well drained pots or deep pans. It may be noted that plants with beautiful dark green foliage have not bloomed at all. That shows their treatment has been wrong. Another season give them more light and they will show the benefits of the change by flowering satisfactorily. Vanda cærulea does not need a hot, moist, stuffy house, like some other East Indian orchids; 55 to 60 degrees at night, with plenty of air, such as there should be in a cattleya house, suits it to a nicety.

Deciduous Dendrobies.

Dendrobium nobile and its many forms, with D. Wardianum and some hybrids, will now be resting. A good many will have their flower nodes showing conspicuously and a few, if not in flower now, will bloom soon. These dendrobies are usually, but not always, deciduous. On D. Wardianum the bulbs are always leafless at flowering time, but some forms of D. nobile flower on pseudobulbs, produced the preceding season, and these retain their dark green foliage, which adds greatly to their attractiveness. Water these dendrobies sparingly until the nodes show that they really carry flower buds. An over-supply of moisture will cause a large proportion of the nodes to emit roots and produce growths. Where plants carry these growths produced a season ago, the present is a suitable time to cut them off. Put several together in small, shallow pans in pure, fresh sphagnum. They will make splendid plants in a single season, especially if given a little liquid manure during the summer.

NEW HOME OF THE M. RICE CO.

The illustration on this page is a reproduction of the architect's drawing of the new home of the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, as it will appear when completed in July of this year. The building will occupy three fronts, Nos. 1220, 1222 and 1224, on Spring Garden street, which is one of the widest streets in Philadelphia. The building will back on Nectarine street, and the rear will afford ample facilities for heavy freight shipments. The site is only five minutes' distance from the Pennsylvania and Reading railroad terminals.

The building will be of the latest form of reinforced concrete construction, and will consist of five stories and a basement. There will be excellent light from all four sides. The building will be equipped with all the latest improvements for an up-to-date florists' supply business. The first floor will contain the office, show rooms, packing and shipping departments. The basement will be used for bulky stock. The second floor will contain additional show rooms and stock rooms. The third floor will be devoted to stock. The fourth and fifth floors will be used exclusively for manufacturing, comprising the departments of basket making, wreath making, pan making, sheaf making, painting, dyeing, etc.

It will be a modern building in every respect and the facilities thus afforded the M. Rice Co. will enable the company to materially increase its line and handle its fast growing business to better advantage than ever before.

CAN THE VIOLET COME BACK?

A paragraph in The Review for December 30, asking "What can be done to restore the violet to its old-time popularity as a corsage flower?" strikes a sympathetic chord in my mind and, while I do not think it possible to suggest an infallible method whereby this restoration could be accomplished, I shall at least give my views and shall be eager to hear others on the subject.

Having been associated with the violet-growing business for upwards of fifteen years, it was my privilege to see the prosperous times resulting from the high prices these flowers brought when they were at the crest of their popularity, as well as the results of their gradual and steady decline in favor and price. Naturally I felt interested in the reasons for this and gave the situation some thought and study. My investigations resulted in placing the blame, not on the violet, but dividing it pretty evenly between the grower and the men who handle the flowers after they reach the market: The grower who, in his effort to produce quantity, sacrifices the quality of his flowers and the market man who disposes of the inferior or stale bunches to street venders, thus placing the violet, an aristocrat by nature, on a low commercial plane.

Violets appeal more especially to people of the better class and a fine bunch of these blooms nestling among mi-lady's laces and furs, as she takes her afternoon drive or promenade, adds a note to the ensemble of her costume that no other flower could, or ever will, quite equal. But when she happens to meet her waitress or maid on the street with a bunch of violets, purchased from Tony-on-the-corner for 10 cents, it makes her think twice before pinning on her own 3-dollar bunch the next time she starts out.

So, for this reason I think, the violet corsage gradually became a thing of the past; now it is unusual to see any woman wearing them. But I firmly believe that if the violet was standardized, only the best blooms shipped to market, and these, bunched in the most approved way, were given every care necessary to preserve them until they reached the consumer, the old-time prices would come back and stay as long as these conditions continued.

Keep the standard of any flower high and the prices will take care of themselves. This should be particularly true of the violet. H. G. McCallum.

BLAMES LACK OF FRAGRANCE.

In the editorial notes in The Review of December 30, 1915, there were the following questions: "What can be done to restore the violet to its old-time popularity as a corsage flower? Will someone suggest a method?"

From the point of view of one in this part of the world, the state of Washington, the reason for the loss of the popularity of the violet is not hard to find. When local violets were procurable, they were sold at a price that brought some remuneration to the grower until the imported ones brought such low prices that it was not possible to compete with them. For a time women were seen wearing huge bunches of violets on the street, but the violets always were lacking in their essential quality, that is, the fragrance; and, gradually, it dawned on the better stamp of flower buyers that violets were cheap and common. The women ceased to wear them. The violet at one time was considered a modest flower, but when bunches of them the same size and aroma of a cauliflower constituted the corsage of our sisters, cousins and aunts, the qualification could hardly be said to be accurate.

The soil and climate in Washington are admirably adapted to the cultivation of the violet and, barring cheap foreign labor, they can be grown and sold here profitably. If retailers would insist upon not selling and buying scentless violets, and put up moderate-sized bouquets, the violet would soon resume its old-time popularity as one of the finest and best corsage flowers.

LOUCKS' "TWO PRIZE PLANTS."

Whenever a grower produces a plant or flower of unusual size he usually photographs the achievement, in order to have a pictorial record of it. Not infrequently the photographer will include his daughter, his son or himself in the picture, thinking that one may as well show two growing things as one. In the illustration on this page the reader is introduced to the "two prize-winners" of W. E. Loucks, of Sapulpa, Okla. The one is a single chrysanthemum plant, Ladysmith; the other is Mr. Loucks' daughter. Little Miss Loucks is the apple of her father's eye, and the close observer will admit that she certainly is some apple dumpling. In his letter Mr. Loucks states that the mum plant "is a single pink of the Totty-Hill collection, is one year old and has produced as many as 3,487 blooms. The plant wintered outdoors and last season made a growth six feet in diameter and five feet in height. The other 'plant' is my 2½-year-old daughter, who recently took first prize in our healthy baby contest." Apparently Mr. Loucks' long suit is prize stock.

Middletown, Conn.—Part of the roof of a greenhouse owned by J. S. Thayer, in the Farm Hill district, was blown off in a wind storm that recently played havoc in that vicinity.

Saugatuck, Mich.—D. M. Force is making plans to go into the mail-order business and sell plants by mail. He had this in view when he increased the growing capacity of his range last summer, but ill health delayed the completion of his plans.

Morristown, N. J.—The Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society will hold its twentieth annual dinner at Piper's hotel, Morristown, January 27, at 6:30 p. m. William H. Duckham, Arthur Herrington and Charles H. Totty compose the dinner committee, which is just another way of saying that the event is bound to be a success.

Ladysmith, the Mum, and Lady Loucks, the Lassie.

OBITUARY

Hagbarth F. Halle.

After being practically invalided for the last few years, Hagbarth F. Halle, one of the pioneer retail florists of Chicago, died at his home, 801 Sheridan road, January 6, at the age of 57.

Mr. Halle was a native of Denmark, but came to this country when 25 years old and soon after entered the retail florists' business in Chicago, buying the old Klimmer place at old number 548 West Madison street. Here he became the leading florist of the west side, and one of the leading florists of Chicago. Several of the most prominent retailers of today worked at one time or other in his establishment. He remained in this location until late in 1907, when he removed to 3900 North Clarendon avenue. This location proving unsatisfactory, he soon moved to 801 Sheridan road, where he remained until his death.

Mr. Halle was a member of the Masonic order, Garfield lodge, and the Oriental Consistory. He is survived by his wife, Anna, who will make her home in the future with her brother-in-law, H. N. Bruns. Funeral services were held in the home of Mr. Bruns, 3023 Warren avenue, January 9, at 2 p. m., the Reverend Bailey, of the Oak Park Lutheran church, officiating. There was later a Masonic service at Graceland chapel.

The store will be sold, Mrs. Halle not feeling able to continue it, although she has had an active part in the business for many years.

Charles Federle.

Charles Federle, of Hamilton, O., died unexpectedly January 2 at his home on the Mount Pleasant pike, near St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Federle had not complained of being ill until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he returned to the house from an inspection of his greenhouses. His condition alarmed his family and a physician was called, but death had marked him for its own and at 6 o'clock he passed away. Mr. Federle was 56 years of age. He is survived by his wife and four children, Cathryn, Jennie, Joseph and Carl.

Charles W. Smith.

Charles W. Smith, for more than thirty-three years secretary of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society and for more than a quarter of a century prominently active in horticultural affairs of New England, died at the home of his son, 389 Angell street, Providence, R. I., Thursday afternoon, January 6. He was 86 years of age.

W. H. M.

Charles Ottinger.

Charles Ottinger, a young man about 19 years of age, and an employee of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., was drowned January 9, while skating over thin ice on a lake near the city.

TENNESSEE FLORISTS TO MEET.

The meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association will be held at Nashville January 24. An elaborate program is being arranged and a large attendance is expected.

INDIANA FLORISTS MEET.

Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, held at Indianapolis January 11, the following officers were elected:

President—W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, reelected.

Vice-president—Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis.

Second vice-president—Theodore Dorner, of Lafayette.

Secretary—O. E. Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, reelected.

Treasurer—Homer L. Wiegand, of Indianapolis, reelected.

There were about sixty members present, a majority, of course, being residents of Indianapolis.

The brief business meeting was followed by a dinner at the Commercial Club, after which the party, which had been joined by a number of the local ladies, adjourned to Keith's theater, where 100 seats had been engaged.

The Trophies.

The feature of the meeting was the contest for the association's trophies, which are held only from year to year by the winners.

The rose trophy was won by W. Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., who showed a vase of stock that deserves to be ranked with the best ever staged before the association.

The carnation trophy again was won by Baur & Steinkamp, their flowers showing extremely fine finish. Bertermann Bros. Co., the E. G. Hill Co., Hartje & Elder and Stuart & Haugh all staged fine exhibits in this class.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

A vase of the light pink rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, a sport of Russell shown by the Waban Rose Conservatories, of Natick, Mass., attracted much attention. This rose is a pink of the Bridesmaid type.

The E. G. Hill Co. showed a basket of the yellow rose, Tipperary, a vase of fine Ophelia, a vase of Russell, a vase of the small rose, Tip Top, and one of Hoosier Beauty, all of which were fine stock.

A vase of the rose, Prima Donna, was shown by Guttman & Raynor, Inc., New York.

A vase of Carnation Aviator, grown by the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., was shown.

A vase of the red seedling carnation grown by John Eitel, Greencastle, Ind., was shown, and a vase of mixed carnations, from Stuart & Haugh, which were good stock.

There was a nice vase of mixed carnations from W. A. Bitler, Kokomo, and also primroses in pots.

Bertermann Bros. Co. exhibited a collection of blooming plants, which showed the fine quality of their stock.

Frank Morris, of Bloomington, exhibited a geranium sport, Beauty of Poitevine, which looks good.

The Roepke Floral Co. had two fine pots of cyclamen.

Good primroses came from F. H. Lemon & Co., of Richmond.

Baur & Steinkamp showed a fine vase of mixed carnations, which spoke well for the ability of the growers.

F. Dorner & Sons Co. exhibited Carnation Nancy, which is being disseminated this year. This variety is a bright salmon pink, a little darker than Pink Delight and of a more even color. The variety is of quick, productive growth and the fragrance is penetrating. Old Gold, yellow with crimson stripes, and Rosalia, a dark pink, were also exhibited by the Dorners. These varieties are to be disseminated next year. Seedling No. 125, salmon pink, a seedling of Pink Delight, was shown. The blooms are exceptionally large, averaging four inches and over. Seedling No. 148, salmon pink, is a fine flower. Seedling No. 113 is a good crimson. Seedling No. 8, variegated, white with scarlet stripes, is claimed to be a much freer variety than Benora.

The cut flower exhibits were made into bouquets and passed over the footlights at the theater party. H. L. W.

New London, Conn.—J. Henry Shaffer, until recently of Mystic, Conn., has opened a flower store here.

Milford, Conn.—Andrew McCrea, of New Haven, has opened a flower agency in the Citizens' Art Shop.

Leominster, Mass.—The wind and rain storm which recently passed over Leominster wrecked the greenhouse of J. W. Lowe, at 545 Pleasant street. The house was lifted six feet from its foundation, causing an estimated loss of $800 and ruining about 600 plants.

Springfield, Mass.—Having sold his greenhouses and land to Russell C. Parsons, Edward B. Beals has gone on a three months' vacation among the hills in the northwestern corner of the Bay state, with the view of attaining better health. Mr. Beals says he may purchase greenhouses in the spring.

Milford, N. H.—A 2-ton Kroeschell boiler recently was installed by Woodman Bros., at their new range at East Milford.

New London, Conn.—The elaborate decorations at the Mohican hotel during the New Year's functions were executed by Edward W. Clark.

Rockland, Me.—The flower store in the new Odd Fellows' building is a branch of the George W. Glaentzel establishment, at Camden, Me.

Holyoke, Mass.—At the annual meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club, the following officers were elected for 1916: President, A. Butler, of Northampton; vice-president, George Strugnelli, of Holyoke; secretary and treasurer, Prof. Whiting, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

WHEN somebody sprinkles your path with soft soap, get ready for a fall.

AFTER the boom the flower business has enjoyed the last three months it will be nothing more than natural if there is some reaction.

THE man who has competent assistants will do well to hang on to them during the remaining weeks of winter. Capable help will be scarce this spring.

HE is a foolish florist who tries to compete on price. Compete on quality and service. There are plenty of people who are ready to pay for the best.

THE way to build a business is to grow quality stock and charge what the quality is worth. It is a true saying that "Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten."

FROM present indications the spring season of 1916 will be a record-breaker for this trade. But don't crowd the greenhouses so badly as to impair the quality of your stock.

AFTER the fine Christmas and New Year's business, January 20 will be a fine settlement day for overdue accounts. Take a look at your ledger today and make plans for getting your money in.

SCARCITY of cut flowers and the accompanying high prices are not for the best interests of the flower business. They are likely to be followed by a glut and unusually low prices because a lot of buyers have got out of the habit during the time flowers were too expensive for them.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

FIVE YEARS.

Reimers, H. E., Spokane, Wash.

TWO YEARS.

Wisley's Greenhouses, Murphysboro, Ill.
Huntington, R. E., Painesville, O.
Cass, W., Geneva, N. Y.
Onion, Perry, East Las Vegas, N. M.
Schwerdt & Berner, Forbes, N. Y.
Keaton, W. A., Andalusia, Pa.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

"IT'S THEIR LOOKOUT."

Two men named Flynn and Friedman are soliciting subscriptions north of Chicago, calling their paper "The Review." Certain cases have come to light in which florists have paid money to these men under the impression they were subscribing to the Florists' Review, only to discover after the canvassers were gone that the receipts given stated they had subscribed to the Farmers' Review. The Farmers' Review, whose circulation manager's name is Ellenbaum, acknowledges the men are its representatives, but says "the receipt is plain and it's the subscriber's own lookout." Happily, most publishers take a quite opposite view of their subscribers' welfare.

Florists are asked to remember, and to tell friends in the trade, if there are any non-subscribers among them, that the representatives of the Florists' Review all are well known members of the trade; that no traveling solicitors are employed, for the simple reason that it is not necessary to canvass to maintain this paper's circulation, and that no money should be paid to strangers for its account.

Nearly every time a florist gets caught on a subscription deal he is offered a premium—a gift—if he will subscribe. The Florists' Review never gives premiums and the offer of one with this paper is a plain sign that something is wrong.

PROSPERITY ABOVE NORMAL.

General prosperity for the people of America means individual prosperity for the florists who read The Review, so it is important to note that "prosperity reigns in all lines of industry in all parts of the country," according to the bulletin issued last week by the board of the Federal Reserve Bank. "Particular gains have been made during the last few months in the railroad and lumber industries," according to the report, "as well as in the retail lines of all general supply businesses, particularly dry goods."

"Another feature of the situation which is prevalent throughout the country," according to the bulletin, "is an increasing demand for money for investment in business enterprises of all kinds, particularly manufacturing, merchandising and farming."

"In addition, there is increasing evidence," says the bulletin, "that the railroads are about to enter on a great period of purchasing for the improvement of their equipment as well as for its increase."

"Conditions in the central west are particularly good, according to the reports from the Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Kansas City and Minneapolis reserve banks. Manufacturers, wholesale houses and retail stores," the report says of the Chicago district, "are doing business on an even more than normal basis."

"IN TIME OF PEACE."

Preparedness—unlovely word—is on everybody's tongue these days, so what more natural than that a florist should use it to express his failure to accurately estimate the pulling power of an ad in The Review? Here is what he says:

The first mail following the publication of the ad in The Review brought more orders than I can take care of and I am wondering what is going to happen to me the rest of the week, and the week after. I hate to admit my lack of preparedness. Next time I shall have more stock.—H. J. Potomkin, Muncie, Ind., January 3, 1916.

FLOWER SHOW PUBLICITY.

Of course the big effort to secure attendance at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia is to be made through the local dailies, but the publicity, under the direction of W. F. Therkindson, already is working. Quantities of flower show stickers are being used and many publications are taking note of the preparations. In a day or two the committee will be ready with an eight-sheet poster for the billboard advertising that it expects to do. There will be 830 of these posters in the Philadelphia and New York districts, together with 1,000 single sheet posters 28x42. Many thousands of window cards of two sizes will be distributed.

The committee hopes to get the mayor to declare March 25 to April 2 Flower Show Week. "We are anticipating a line of publicity such as has never been equaled before, and if the present plans go through without a hitch we will have some real publicity," says Mr. Therkindson.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The Chicago market continues unqualifiedly short. Perhaps the best way to arrive at a proper appreciation of existing conditions is to compare them with those of a year ago. To begin with, demand was altogether erratic then—brisk one day and dead the next. This year the demand is unwaveringly good. A year ago supply, too, was inconstant, but none the less it was overabundant for the demand. This year the supply in practically all lines is far short of requirements. All wholesalers are filling orders short—most of them are cutting them in two, and many still decline to accept orders from other than regular customers. Last January prices ruled low, while now the market is decidedly stiff.

Long-stemmed Beauties are an exception to the general rule of scarcity, but that is due more to the high price asked for them than to anything else. Anything in the shape of a rose, other than those of extra long stem, is at a premium. So heavy is the funeral demand that the question of color ceases to rule, the only condition being that

PUSH THE SALE OF VIOLETS

The most abundant flower of the month

THE supply of Violets is as large as ever, while the cut of almost all other flowers is below normal. Consequently, you can obtain Violets at comparatively low prices and make an excellent margin of profit on them. It is well known we handle the "Cream of the Crops," both Single and Double; the largest supply in the west.

Jonquils

We are able to offer a fine lot of Jonquils. Your trade will like them.

Tulips

We handle the stock of the largest and most uniformly successful bulb forcer in this market.

Orchids

Cattleyas are fine and plentiful—note the low prices.

Peas

We have the winter Spencers in many colors.

Fancy Roses

Retailers will do well to bear in mind that we have the largest supply of Mrs. Russell.

You also will find us strong on the following long-stemmed roses:

Killarney Brilliant

Mrs. Aaron Ward

Ophelia

Milady

Sunburst

Beauties

You can get of us the length you want—good heads.

Carnations

The supply is short of the demand, so order early.

Fancy Baby Boxwood

The price is $10.00 per case, but you will find it worth the money. All other Greens in constant supply.

the roses be of good quality and of short or medium grade. The rose cuts are visibly decreasing.

The supply of carnations is even shorter than it was a week ago and no immediate relief is in sight. This is an anomalous condition for this time of the year, and one that has occurred but a few times in the memory of the older men in the wholesale market. Violets, both double and single, are clearing fairly well, but the violet is the weakest flower on the market today. Jonquils, though more plentiful than they were last week, vanish into the maw of an unsatisfied demand, not because this demand is clamoring for jonquils or, for the matter of that, for any miscellaneous stock, but because it must have something. Paper Whites and Romans go the same way. Easter lilies are peculiarly adapted to funeral work and sell accordingly. Valley, still scarce, is snapped up with alacrity. The corsage demand is heavy enough to take care of the sweet pea and gardenia supply, which is by no means large. Daisies, pansies, stevia and mignonette are disposed of with little trouble. Freesia has become a factor on the market during the last few days and is moving well. Tulips are not yet in large supply and clear promptly.

The extreme shortage in cut flowers has resulted in a corresponding shortness in several items on the green goods list. Plumosus, in particular, is scarce, and it is safe to say that galax and ferns are the only greens well on the long side of the market.

The funeral of Miss Catherine Goggin made an unusual call for funeral work. Practically all the stores in town were represented.

Killing Several Birds.

W. J. Keimel has a neat little plan for killing several birds with one stone. In the first place he plans to win the cash prize of $150 offered by the president of the S. A. F. to the one who secures the most new members by July 31. As the money will be turned into the treasury of the Chicago Florists' Club, Mr. Keimel counts on the co-operation of its members. At the same

A Good Pair to Draw To

Have you a fair lady's corsage or a table bouquet order to fill? Let us suggest our Butterfly Sweet Peas. They surely are a time-saver. A bunch in itself is a corsage—no making up is necessary.

Or does your trade at this time require funeral designs? If so, we suggest Freesia.

If you need any other stock, let us know. We'll do our best for you. Our best can't be bettered on this market.

fortnight, all right, but N. J. Wieter predicts the situation will be still worse during the next two weeks. Ordinarily the last half of January sees the shortest supply of the winter and Mr. Wieter believes this year will be no exception, taking the market as a whole.

During the Christmas and New Year holidays Weiss & Meyer Co., Maywood, cut 60,000 Beauties, or practically two flowers from each plant on the place. The expectation is to get another crop for Easter, but not much in between. Paul Weiss, of this concern, is occupying his leisure in driving a recently acquired Moline-Knight car.

There will be an excellent party from Chicago at the St. Louis carnation show. A. T. Pyfer will represent Pyfer & Olsem and Pyfer & Co.

In a review of present conditions, C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, called attention to the fact that as a result of the warm fall, carnations came in heavy crop for Thanksgiving and roses for Christmas. Now both are off crop and the cloudy weather has helped to reduce the supply to subnormal. As the same conditions obtain in the country tributary to Chicago, all out-of-town florists are sending their increased wants to the Chicago market. This is superimposed upon the normal demand, together with a demand that is gradually gathering strength in various manufacturing centers where the people are receiving more money and hence are spending more. Result, an almost unprecedentedly short market.

The day before Christmas H. C. Wendland, of Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, received delivery on a new 7-passenger 50-horsepower Moline-Knight car that since has been affording him much pleasure.

The market does not at all suit John C. Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., who believes the difficulty buyers meet with in finding stock is laying up trouble for the wholesalers when conditions change so that there are more flowers than buyers. Mr. Michelsen's notion of an ideal market is one in which everybody's needs can be met.

After a look in at some of the greenhouses north of town January 9, Felix Reichling says a few warm, bright days will relieve the scarcity of carnations, but that it will be some little time before rose cuts increase.

The present market situation is greatly to the advantage of the producers of green goods, according to Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel.

According to P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., work will be begun on the Cudahy greenhouses at Cudahy, Wis., about January 20. All post holes, which have been dug, are covered with manure to keep out the frost. Work on the Albert F. Amling greenhouses at Maywood is progressing rapidly. Seven half sections, 275 feet long, are now ready for woodwork. Forty-five men are at work on this place and almost 100 tons of steel were set up last week. Mr. Mc-

Visitors on the wholesale market January 11 were accorded most hospitable entertainment in the establishment of Zech & Mann, the occasion being the celebration of his twenty-first birthday by Joe Erringer.

The wife of Arthur Schutz, Hammond, Ind., was operated on in Chicago last week for chronic stomach trouble. She is convalescing as rapidly as could be expected.

According to John Risch, of Weiland & Risch, the firm will discard Killarney and Killarney Brilliant this year. They have already prepared to bench four-teen houses with Champ Weiland.

The flower store at 1802 West Eighteenth street, operated by F. J. Triska, was closed this week. It is reported that the high price of stock had much to do with Mr. Triska's leaving the florists' trade.

Another store has been opened by the Chicago Floral House at 142 North State street. The old stand at 39 and 41 West Randolph street will continue as usual. Both stores will, in the fu-

Spring work in the Morton Grove greenhouses of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. is progressing rapidly. Already there are 250,000 carnation cuttings in the sand. Akehurst, light pink, and Alice, an Enchantress pink, will receive considerably more bench space this year. According to Tony Gabel, these two varieties have proved among the best producers. The space for Matchless will be increased by two benches.

It is possible that high prices are a bad thing for the trade, thinks William Amling, of Maywood. He believes the public is much the same with flowers as a man is with his morning paper. While the price is in reason, a man will not feel right without his favorite daily, but raise the price too high and he will discontinue it. And when he has been without it for a few weeks, the habit has lost its force and the man no longer misses his paper. Mr. Amling believes the chances are Business has quieted somewhat. The continued dark weather has kept the prices of cut flowers exceedingly high; carnations were nearly as high as those at Christmas and roses were as expensive as the holiday stock. Violets are scarce and bring fancy prices. There was considerable funeral work last week and quite a number of weddings resulted in good orders for some of the retailers.

The Market.

Since the advent of the new year business has been steady. The supply of stock is, with a few exceptions, about enough to meet demands, but there is no surplus. While prices are lower than those of the holiday season, they still are holding up well. Carnations were a little shy during the early part of the week, but larger quantities arrived later; all carnations sold well. The rose crop was plentiful enough in the long and special grades, which did not move any too well, but medium and short stock for funeral work was scarce. Violets have not been selling any too well.

Valley is a scarcity even at a high figure, with a good demand for all coming in. Lilies sold well during the week and the supply was fair. Catleyas were in fair demand and cypripediums were hard to move at any price. The plant trade continues to hold up well and many good azaleas, cyclamens and primulas are being sold.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held January 10, President Hamilton presiding. The attendance was not so large as was expected, but it was an interesting meeting nevertheless. William G. Lehr gave an interesting talk on the methods of rose culture as applied by him, which was followed by a discussion on the same subject. Mr. Lehr was extended the thanks of the club for his instructive talk.

The annual show came in for much discussion and the following committee was appointed to arrange a schedule for the next show, copies of which will be gotten out at an early date: Chairman, William Feast; William J. Johnston, William G. Lehr, Fred C. Bauer, George Morrison, Mack Richmond. It was deemed advisable to hold a spring show at the club rooms, a matter which will of good roses and orchids, but shorter roses and carnations have been far short of the demand. Paper Whites, which have always been plentiful at this season, are not in evidence. Everyone seems to have dropped them this year. Snapdragon and other small flowers are not coming, so that the market cleans every morning at fair prices. The retail stores are busy with funeral work, as there has been a great increase in the death rate; in fact, the average is almost doubled. There has been a fair quantity of decorations for social affairs.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club met January 4, a large number of the members being present. Nomination of officers for the ensuing year was the business of the evening. Neil McCallum and Carl Becker were nominated for president, and H. P. Joslin and August Frishkorn for secretary. There were exhibits of primulas and mushrooms by the Sewickley Heights gardeners. The only outside exhibit was the new rose, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, from the Waban Rose Conservatories. The box of Mrs. Thayer roses arrived in splendid condition and was heartily received, the blooms at once making a friend of everyone. It is certainly a splendid flower, having just the right shade of clear pink to be used under any condition, splendid stem and fine foliage. The flower has form and body enough to insure its being a good keeper and shipper, so if it is a free bloomer, though I am not a prophet, I can assure it a future. There also was a splendid lecture, with pictures, closing a pleasant evening.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds, especially roses, was exceedingly scarce last week. It was interesting and amusing to go to the wholesale houses and see the scramble for stock. January 8 was the worst day since the holiday rush.

Carnations and roses are much in demand. Flowers of all kinds sell at sight and in some instances are sold before they arrive. Beauties are of good quality and sell quickly at good prices. White roses sell themselves without difficulty. Carnations will not become abundant until there is more sunshine. They were just as short as the week previous. Double violets are plentiful; singles are rather short. Sweet peas clear rapidly. Jonquils have come back for another season; the supply of these is limited. Freesia likewise is scarce and sells well. Paper Whites sell quickly and mignonette, daisies and stevia can be had in small quantities.

Various Notes.

Walter Stroh, of Batavia, was in town last week. David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y., also was a visitor to the trade last week.

C. T. Guenther is having much success with his chrysanthemum seedlings. He hopes to produce a pure white Maud Dean.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The market is easing a trifle after as lively a fortnight as the bulls could wish to see. It was the more remarkable because the two weeks immediately following New Year's are looked upon as likely to be dull; nothing like what we have seen was expected by anyone. The easing is due to heavier receipts of carnations; to a few more sweet peas; to the coming of Golden Spurs to join Trumpet Major; to the freesias. The bears took prompt advantage by using each and all of these facts to lower prices, but so far the lowering has been insignificant. A point on carnations here and there and slight concessions elsewhere, sum the result of their efforts so far, because there is so little stock in sight that to lower prices much at this time would seem foolish. The cold, hard fact remains that the business has gone through an uncommonly bad period, and unless better times bring better prices it will cease to attract men whose efforts will raise the standard of excellence.

While there is probably less funeral work now than for some time past, short roses continue in active demand at unusually high prices. Easter lilies, too, have gone up above their usual winter price. Violets, on the other hand, sell slowly at low prices, while gardenias are decidedly in excess of the demand. Tulips are not of much account as yet. Romans are fair; pussy willows are offered in quantities.

The Valley That Came.

Walter P. Stokes, sometimes styled the Valley King of Philadelphia, explained how he secured so many pips at this time of scarcity:

"When the British government declared the embargo on German goods, permitting only those to be exported that had been ordered prior to March 1, 1915, I looked over my valley orders to see whether any of them had been placed before that date. I found that one order for a large number of pips had been given to the representative of a Leipzig concern before March 1. I carefully made out my statement, attached to it a carbon copy of the order and the original acknowledgment from the grower in Germany, and sent them to the State Department at Washington. I did not go in person as others did, but simply trusted the papers to an envelope and a 2-cent stamp.

"In about a month a telegram came from the State Department asking whether I would guarantee cables to England. I wired back, 'Yes.' In about another month came another telegram saying that the British government had allowed my claim and that I might have the goods forwarded. I wrote to Leipzig at once, but it seemed as though the British government had forestalled me, for a few days after I wrote the valley arrived. It had evidently been packed in extreme haste, but the quality appeared to be excellent and I am looking forward to having a good supply of valley for months to come. I attribute my success in getting the pips to the fact that I asked only for the valley ordered before March 1, which I was entitled to under the ruling, and did not attempt to slip in the order that I had given after March 1."

Habermehls Surpass Themselves.

The first assembly ball was held on the evening of January 7, in the handsome ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. For it, J. J. Habermehl's Sons arranged one of their charming decorations, consisting of plants and flowers and electric lights and shades and tapestries, and arbors and curtains of green, which have so often delighted Philadelphians. The description given in the Public Ledger of the following morning was extremely good.

Various Notes.

Eugene Bernheimer is pleased with the interest taken in Prima Donna by rose growers. He says the variety is looking remarkably well in the houses of the Florex Gardens, at North Wales, despite the heavy propagation for next month's delivery.

Clarence Alwine, of Aldan, Pa., is erecting one greenhouse 40x200 feet, which he hopes to have completed in six weeks. Mr. Alwine is one of our hardest workers, who deserves to succeed.

The annual poultry show of the Henry F. Michell Co. took place at its store January 11 to 13. It was lively there during those three days; the crowing was terrific.

Louis Goff, once a well known figure in flower circles, made his reappearance on the scene last week with J. J. Habermehl's Sons, at the Bellevue-Stratford.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange sprung a surprise on the market in the shape of a batch of chrysanthemums, which were quickly taken.

Clarence W. Moore says that the prospects are that good Spiraea Gladstone will bring a particularly good price at Easter; many of the clumps heated in transit were useless.

A prominent grower laments the fact that when he had plenty of Paper Whites last year, they went slowly at $5 per thousand, whereas a few days ago he saw a faker leave a leading wholesale house empty-handed because he declined to pay over $4 per hundred for Paper Whites.

The information comes from the M. Rice Co. that J. P. McCarthy, who has been associated with Carbone's, of Boston, for the last eight years and has represented his line in most of the largest cities of the United States, will represent the House of Rice in New England and the middle west territory. ments and to an abundance of functions, public and private, that have caused continuous demand for decorations.

The beginning of a retrograde movement was evident January 8, when special American Beauties fell to 50 cents and under and the best carnations to 6 cents, while orchids continued abundant and prices fell to even lower quotations than the discouraging level of a week ago. The rose supply of late has not kept pace with the demand, especially for the lower grades, and prices for these have averaged from $4 to $6 per hundred. The selected stock of the novelties has sold well at fair prices, especially Hadley, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Prima Donna, Key, Killarney Queen and Sunburst.

A good many carnations were sold at $5 per hundred and under at the close of last week, $6 being the extreme value for the best Ward and the novelties January 8. Cattleyas of excellent quality could be had for $40 per hundred or less. Gardenias are in larger supply and prices are down to $4 per dozen for excellent flowers, with an occasional sale at $5. From this down to $1 a dozen covers the several grades. Longiflorums hold well at $10 per hundred, some asking $12 January 8. A few sold as low as $8 in large lots and the shipments are increasing. Rubrums sold at $8 per hundred. The best valley brings $4. The low grades move slowly at $1 to $2. The supply is quite sufficient. Violets are selling at about half Christmas prices; 75 cents per hundred was top as last week closed. They should touch $1 if the cold snap is not quickly broken. The single varieties seem most popular. Sweet peas are improving fast and command good prices, especially the Spencers. Paper Whites have sold well and are abundant. Tulips are here, plenty of them; also callas, daisies, forget-me-nots, lilac, pansies, wallflowers and stevia. Of spring flowers there is a good assortment, including double-flowering plum and forsythia.

Some splendid primulas and cyclamens in pots and pans adorn the wholesalers' windows.

E. C. Vick read resolutions on the death of W. Atlee Burpee.

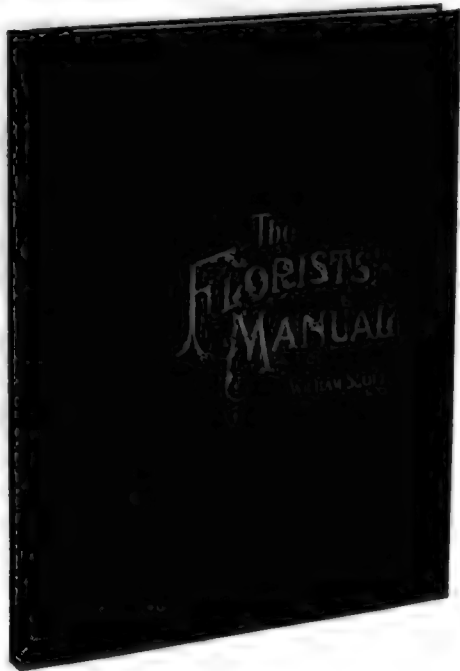

D. E. Vries, 347 West One Hundred Forty-third street, was nominated for membership and Messrs. Allender and Scott, of the new members, pledged their loyalty.

Interesting addresses were also given by John H. Stalford and A. E. Thatcher, of Bar Harbor, Me. Mr. Thatcher offered a gold watch for the best exhibit of sweet peas from New York and New Jersey at the convention of the Sweet Pea Society and Mr. Stalford, president of the Bar Harbor Horticultural Society, offered to pay the expenses of the winning exhibitor. The club, on suggestion of C. B. Weathered, voted $25 as a prize.

Messrs. Dick, Rickards and Sperling were appointed a committee to draw up resolutions on the death of Dr. Marshall, brother of W. E. Marshall.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $9,510.38.

excellent vaudeville entertainment and the house committee provided an excellent lunch.

Peter Beuerlein showed two Enchantress sports that received cultural certificates. W. A. Manda was given the club's thanks for a dark pink seedling of brilliant color. John Loppe displayed two grand vases of Freesia Purity, staged by Philip Kessler and awarded cultural certificate. James Duthie exhibited Primula malacoides in pots, well worth the cultural certificate of merit accorded it. Pussy willows of fine quality were shown by Alex. Schlevogt, of Brooklyn, and A. J. Guttman staged fine exhibits of the Peace carnation from Frank Dinda, Laura Weber carnation from Charles Weber, and Prima Donna rose from the Florex Gardens.

Various Notes.

The booming of the International Flower Show in New York this spring has begun in earnest. A special meeting of the joint committees was held at the Hotel Breslin January 10. Chairman Miller has established his office at 436 Sixth avenue, with Traendly & Schenck, where he may be interviewed from 2 to 3 p. m. every Tuesday.

The eighth annual banquet of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will be held in the Hotel McAlpin February 23. The next meeting of the association will be held at the same place February 1. The annual meeting of the association was held January 4, at which time the following officers were elected: President, John H. Fiesser; vice-president, Alfred L. Zeller; treasurer, Herman C. Steinhoff; secretary, W. H. Siebrecht, Jr.

Abe Tishman, salesman for George H. Siebrecht, is again on duty, after a severe attack of pleurisy.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Rosens have returned from their honeymoon trip to Florida.

The monthly meeting of the directors of the Growers' Cut Flower Co. was held January 8, President Schultheis in the chair. Messrs. Beuerlein, Weston, Hauck and others were present and all proclaimed the outlook and conditions most satisfactory.

Red Heart Boxes FOR VALENTINE'S DAY

Valentine's Day has become a live-wire flower day for the live-wire florist who will put the effort into securing something appropriate for the occasion.

Here is a specialty that cannot fail to attract attention and create new business.

These special heart boxes are of strong, lasting construction, made of heavy, high-grade stock and covered with a special red cover paper. Each one is packed in a container of its own.

SCHULTZ quality is well known throughout the florists' trade, and can be compared with no other. The question of price is never considered where quality is demanded.

John Donaldson was in Patchogue January 8, visiting old friends in the wholesale district, in company with Harry Weston, president of the Florists' Club.

Peter Beuerlein estimates his loss by fire last week at $800. In the five greenhouses damaged, 15,000 Paper Whites, 8,000 Trumpet Majors and 10,000 Golden Spurs were destroyed. There was no insurance.

The annual ball under the auspices of the Greek florists will take place February 25.

J. J. Coan's window last week contained an assortment of early tulips, the first of the season.

Charles H. Vick, of Rochester, was in town last week, the guest of his brother, who is on the staff of the Sun.

Mr. Bradshaw, salesman for William Kessler, is ill with the grip. Mr.

Kervan has just recovered from a tussle with it and many in the trade have suffered.

There will be an exhibition of plants and flowers given by the Horticultural Society at the American Museum of Natural History, Wednesday, January 19. Schedules are ready and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park. A meeting of the society will be held in the afternoon at 3:45, followed at 4 p. m. by a lecture by W. N. Craig, superintendent at Faulkner Farm, Brookline, Mass., on "The Home Flower Garden."

Bowling.

The bowlers meet at Thumm's alleys, Broadway and Thirty-first street, each Thursday evening. The scores January 6 were:

PRESIDENT WESTON'S ADDRESS.

[The following is the address of Henry Weston, on the occasion of his taking office as president of the New York Florists' Club.]

In taking the chair as your presiding officer for 1916, let me again express my grateful appreciation of the honor you have done me in electing me to this high office, the duties of which it shall be my endeavor to discharge in a manner satisfactory to you, and in the best interest of the club.

The work of our organization is well and favorably known, not only throughout our own country, but abroad. It is known for the business-like features which characterize its management, and insure a continuous growth of its membership. It is known for the great harmony and good-fellowship which exist within it, making its motto "All one," truly a descriptive one. And it is known for the excellent work it has done and is doing for the uplift of floriculture and the welfare of all connected with the art. It is an organization to which all of us are proud to belong, and with whose work we feel honored to be connected.

The club's work has been so well organized and conducted, so well thought out, and opportunities for action so well conceived, that little, if anything, can be suggested at the present time as likely to increase the usefulness of the club, or to work out to our advantage. Our greatest work at this time, of course, is to be found in the preparations for our forthcoming spring flower show in New York, and this work, I am glad to say, is in most capable hands, and the indications are that we shall score another great success, thereby enhancing the reputation of our club among our fellow workers the world over.

Last year we invited the S. A. F. to hold its thirty-second annual convention in our city this year, but, unfortunately, prior claims made by the southern city of Houston prevailed, and our invitation failed of acceptance. The desirability of making an effort to induce the national society to hold its 1917 convention here is a matter which should early be discussed. I understand that the society will at the Houston convention also decide upon the city in which to hold its 1918 convention, in order that more time may be available for the establishment of the convention garden. This being the case, our chance for securing at least one of these conventions should be good.

In appointing our standing committees for the year I have deemed it advisable to return to the custom of the years preceding last year as regards the numerical strength of the committees. Ample trial was made last year of large committees, but they were not found conducive to the best interests of the club.

We have entered upon a year which it is fervently hoped will prove to be a good one for our trade, and there is every reason to believe that our hopes may materialize. Indications of a condition of prosperity among our great industries are not wanting, and when prosperity reigns the florists' trade is sufficiently active to insure good business.

From the bottom of my heart I wish you all a most happy and prosperous year, and I trust that at its close I shall take into retirement with me a remembrance of your loyal and unstinted help in the administration of the office you have reposed in me, and the assurance that we together have added another to the many successful years of our club's existence.

GREENHOUSES VS. EXPLOSIVES.

While munitions of war may afford splendid opportunities for get-rich-quick speculators and incidentally provide interesting material for pleasant after-dinner discussions, it is a vastly different matter to be forced to live and operate greenhouses in close proximity to three warehouses filled with high explosives intended for European consumption, especially when so much is printed about the mischievous operations of bellicose "pros" and "antis" at McCarney's Point, N. J., and Wilmington, Del., where recent powder mill explosions resulted in heavy loss of life and property. At any rate, the citizens at Niles Center, Ill., particularly the growers, who, of course, have many feet of glass that could not be expected to survive heavy explosions, have combined in a war against a powder company which has stored a large quantity of high explosives and munitions of war at Niles Center. An explosion, it is said, would endanger greenhouses in the vicinity valued at $1,000,000.

Last week legal proceedings were threatened against the powder company and the mayor of Niles Center ordered the railroad to remove a carload of high explosives standing within the village limits. At a mass meeting the town's justice made a fiery speech in which he said that the warehouses should be torn down and described the situation as being so critical that bloodshed might

D. S. CRUM & CO., Minter, Ala.

The florists and growers at Niles Center, assisted by those at Morton Grove and Tessville, nearby towns, have been instrumental in drawing up an ordinance founded on an Illinois statute that forbids the "keeping, giving away, or selling" of explosives within half a mile of a town without the consent of the town's authorities. The board demands that the powder company destroy at once the buildings already constructed and give assurances that no other buildings will be erected to replace them. It was pointed out that the company had been forbidden to build in Wisconsin and had chosen Niles Center as a good site.

Among the growers and florists in the danger zone at Niles Center are the following: Christ Blameuser, Adam Harrer, Albert Lies, Jacob Meyer, Charles Schweigert, F. Stielow, John Betz, William Kutz, Ludwig Schmitt, Heinz & Haupt, Cornelius Kellen, Emil C. Blameuser, Edwin H. Blameuser, John Blameuser, A. Furmana and several others.

San Antonio, Tex.—William E. Hess now is sole proprietor of the San Antonio Floral & Nursery Co., having acquired all the interests in the business.

Baraboo, Wis.—William Toole, Sr., Wisconsin's veteran pansy grower, of Wm. Toole & Sons, has written an interesting semi-autobiographical sketch, showing that he can wield the pen as skillfully on occasion as he does the gardener's trowel. The article appears in the orchard and garden department of the Wisconsin Agriculturist for December 16. A part of the article is full of meaty hints in regard to Mr. Toole's specialty, pansy growing. An excellent likeness of the author accompanies the contribution, which, it is needless to say to those who know the inborn modesty of the man, was solicited.

The Market.

The new year started nicely and nearly everybody had a busy week. Many receptions at the city hall January 1 and 3 resulted in orders for baskets, horseshoes and bouquets. The demand seemed even greater than that of last year. The weather is gloomy most of the time and flowers on the whole are quite scarce, especially in the shorter grades, but as soon as sunshine comes flowers will be plentiful. There is every evidence of large crops. The demand for corsages was large last week and prices ran fairly high. Besides this, there was a large quantity of funeral work. Stock in general was of good quality and sold well. Prices are well advanced, owing somewhat to the scarcity of some kinds. Roses are good in the better grades, but scarcely anything can be obtained in short-stemmed stock. The Francis Scott Key roses are exceptionally good and sell easily. Russell, Shawyer, Ophelia and Sunburst have been of good quality. Easter and calla lilies are slowing up and few are arriving on the market. The supply of valley is not large but meets the demand. Orchids and gardenias sold splendidly last week for corsage work. Violets are good and sell well. Freesia has arrived and moves fairly well. Carnations are not at all plentiful; the supply has been limited. Paper Whites, mignonette and snapdragon come in handy for basket work. Stevia is about through. A good potted plant business was noticed during the week.

Various Notes.

The nominating committee of the Rochester Florists' Association met at the office of the Lord & Burnham Co. January 7, W. T. Logan presiding. It was unanimously agreed to run two straight tickets for each office.

Charles H. Vick, of James Vick's Sons, is visiting Boston and Philadelphia in the interest of the seed trade.

Edwin C. Armbrust has given up his store on East avenue and returned to his former position with S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, with whom he was connected for some time. He had a good Christmas trade and enjoyed a large patronage, but the transient trade was poor in his location. Rather than move to another location, he resumed his former position at Buffalo January 11.

The grip has surely invaded this city; Miss E. M. Foster, Miss Brown, Miss Bishop, Charles Gow and Edward Gleude were all suffering from this contagious disease last week.

E. J. Murphy, of N. F. McCarthy & Co., of Boston, Mass., called on the trade last week.

Paul Campas reports business as being good. He expects to leave in a few days for Canada, on a hunting trip of two weeks' duration.

H. E. Wilson is growing some exceptionally fine lavender and white hyacinths, which are disposed of readily. Embellished with a handle and fancy trimmings, he finds them splendid substitutes for funeral designs, and the public is well pleased with such a large showing at such a nominal cost.

Y., son of George Arnold, formerly with James Vick's Sons, has entered into a partnership with J. G. Stettner, of Spencerport. This gives him more land, better adapted to the growing of flower seeds than he has had heretofore. The firm is specializing in growing the varieties used by the florists, giving special attention to the needs of the local florists. Mr. Arnold has had valuable experience in the selection and breeding work among annual flowers and he is an enthusiastic believer in stock improvement. Mr. Arnold has started to work up a trade in perennial seeds, as he feels there are good opportunities in this field. H. J. H.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

Business was good last week, but the supply of stock easily exceeded the demand; much of it was consigned to nearby markets.

The Knoxville Florists' Society held its annual midwinter banquet at the Atkin hotel, January 10. A full attendance was expected and several out-of-town florists were invited.

The Tennessee State Florists' Association will hold its annual meeting at Nashville, January 24, at the Maxwell House. The membership committee, Karl P. Baum, Prof. Bentley, of Knoxville, and W. H. Lewis, of Nashville, is doing everything in its power to have all the florists and nurseries of the state represented. The committee is much pleased with results so far, and everything seems to point toward a successful meeting. Members of the society congratulate C. L. Baum on his appointment as a director of the S. A. F., which, no doubt, will act as a stimulation to the local and state societies.

A. J. McNutt suffered a heavy loss from fire December 26, when a conflagration started in his section of the city market house. The flames ruined practically all of his store fixtures and burned some of his Christmas bills, which had been overlooked and left out of the safe.

Friends of Mrs. McNutt regret to hear of the death of her mother, Mrs. Clayton.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business last week was up to expectations. The supply hardly equaled the demand of the local retailers, and the shipping orders had to stand aside. Funeral work was exceedingly heavy. Prices remained high. While carnations were in somewhat better supply, the demand cleaned the market daily. Fancy stock is selling at $5 per hundred. Roses seemed plentiful, but the demand for them was strong and daily clean-ups were reported. Prices remained high on extra fancy stock. The supply of sweet peas and violets is small compared with that of former years. A good supply of Paper Whites is arriving and meets with a heavy demand. Romans have made their appearance and choice stock sells at $4 per hundred. Valley, too, was in heavy demand. The supply of calla and Easter lilies equals the call. Greens had a large demand, with bronze galax and asparagus in the lead.

Various Notes.

The meeting of the St. Louis County Growers' Association was held January 5, at the Eleven Mile House. Vice-president William Edwards conducted the meeting and much important business was disposed of. The coming meeting of the American Carnation Society was fully discussed.

T. C. Wilson, president of the Missouri State Horticultural Society, says he expects the attendance at this week's meeting of the society to be the largest in its history.

The grip seems to have a strong hold on many in the trade, according to the absentees reported. Some of the bosses, too, have quite severe attacks, but seem to be able to stick on the job.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club held a meeting at the home of W. S. Wells, January 6. A program for the January meeting of the club was made. After the meeting the officers were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Wells.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., was a visitor here January 7. He reports that Belleville florists were well pleased with business done during the holidays. His appointment as S. A. F. state vice-president for southern Illinois greatly pleased Mr. Guy.

The roses sent in by W. J. Pilcher, Werner Bros. and A. S. Cerny to the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. are of extra fine quality, especially Hadley, Ophelia, Richmond and the Killarney varieties. These have been selling at top prices.

Pierre Schneider, of the Oakland Floral Co., Oakland, Mo., is having his usual success with carnations. The cut is consigned to C. A. Kuehn, where standing orders dispose of large daily supplies.

Joseph Hauser, of Webster Groves, is cutting a fine lot of violets this season. Mr. Hauser has an excellent novelty in his new red dahlia, which he expects to put on the market this year.

Carl Beyer and August Hummert, on the finance committee, were out daily last week in the interest of the coming meeting of the American Carnation Society. They report excellent success for their efforts.

The Young Bros. Floral Co., on Waterman avenue, of which John and William Young are proprietors, reports that the demand since the holidays has kept up nicely. The show house is again filled with fancy blooming plants.

Jabez Gadd, well known in florists' circles, but now in other business, called on the trade last week and reported that he had handled 500 Christmas trees this year at good prices.

the Mission Inn Garden. President Charles Young and Secretary Fred C. Weber, Jr., say they are making great efforts to have all members present at this meeting, as matters of great importance will be discussed.

Frank X. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, has purchased property in the west end. He is one of the hustlers on the banquet committee for the meeting of the Carnation Society and Vincent Gorly, the other member of the firm, is on the decorative committee.

Henry Young & Son, on Maryland avenue, report a splendid run of trade since the holidays. A nice line of decorative plants was seen in their conservatory.

William Seegar, head of the Mullanphy downtown store, says that business has been remarkably good since the opening of the new store at Eighth and Locust streets. The window displays at this store draw large crowds of shoppers.

Oscar Ruff and Edwin Niebling, of the C. Bergstermann establishment, on South Grand avenue, have become expert bowlers. Their bowling scores in the South End Business Men's League have been sensational. J. J. B.

cause any decided recession in prices. Roses are off crop with the majority of growers and are quickly cleaned up at high prices. American Beauties vary in price from $5 to $60. There is not a large supply of the fancy grades. Red roses, such as Hadley, Richmond, Francis Scott Key, Black Beauty and Prince d'Arenberg are all in light supply and realize high prices. Ophelia remains a leader in popularity; also Russell, Shawyer, Sunburst and Mock. Both Killarney and White Killarney are eagerly snapped up. The demand for funeral work has been heavy of late, owing to an exceptionally heavy death roll. Carnations have broken somewhat in price, but growers remembering conditions a year ago are well pleased with returns. Cold weather always affects the sale of violets. Fancy flowers make $1, but a good many now go at 75 cents.

More bulbous flowers are now appearing, including a good supply of French and Guernsey daffodils, Campanelle jonquils, tulips, freesias, Roman hyacinths and Paper Whites. Small lots of anemones and irises are seen. Valley continues to sell well; also, calla and longiflorum lilies. Fine spikes of mignonette are coming in. Snapdragons sell well. More white and yellow are seen at present than pink. More sweet peas are seen, but the weather caused a heavy loss of buds. Calendulas are somewhat too plentiful, but pansies, yellow marguerites and blue cornflowers all sell well.

Cattleyas have softened in price, the best Trianae now making $6 per dozen. Gardenias are less abundant and the cold weather has hurt their sale somewhat. Demand for ferns and asparagus remains about the same. Among flowering plants, ericas, azaleas, cyclamens and begonias lead in favor. Some tulip pans can be had, but the quality is not yet of the best.

Florists' Bowling League.

A number of handsome silver cups and other special prizes have already been received for winners in the bowling contests now in progress. They are on exhibition at the Boston Flower Exchange. Some of the early donors are P. L. Carbone, Boston Cut Flower Co., B. F. Letson, J. M. Cohen, the Boston Plate Glass Co., the T. J. Grey Co. and H. M. Robinson & Co. Various Notes.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was held at Horticultural hall January 8. The retiring president, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, who retired after three years as chief executive, introduced Richard M. Saltonstall, who made an excellent presidential address. He spoke of the suggested internal reconstruction of Horticultural hall. Three noted architects had furnished estimates of the probable cost, which would be from $150,000 to $200,000. The directors, having considered the matter most carefully, did not feel that the society should go to this expense. The land values where the present building stands have greatly increased of late years, and it would be a better policy to wait a few years and build a new hall which would fill the needs of the society, on another site. Mr. Saltonstall advocated greater efforts to increase the membership, which now is 930. He thought the aim should be to add 100 new members a year. For the big show to be held in May, 1916, special prizes amounting to over $1,500 had already been promised, additional to the sum of about $4,000 on the schedules issued. The receipts from the two pay shows of the society in 1915 showed net receipts nearly $2,000 larger than those of 1914. The business report showed that receipts and expenditures practically balanced. The reports of the various committees were read and accepted and some discussion arose over the best plan to adopt to attract larger annual meetings.

son. He grows chiefly Matchless, Pink Delight, Enchantress, Beacon, Fenn and Loris, a rose-pink seedling.

James Wheeler's large carnation house, at Natick, had a severe shaking in the great gale of December 26. He has called in the Lord & Burnham Co., who were not the builders of his house, to so strengthen it that further trouble will be improbable, and this work is now well advanced. His yellow marguerites are looking well and he already has a good cut from them. In carnations his leaders are Pink Delight, Matchless, Alice, Beacon and Benora. The latter proves to be a wonderful producer.

N. F. Comley, of Burlington, is cutting a fine lot of high-grade Spencer sweet peas in several colors, and has a heavy pick at present of single violets.
His chrysanthemum crop is finished.

F. Macrae & Sons, of Providence, are sending in fine shipments of longiflorum lilies and valley to the local wholesale markets.

At Penn's last week, while general business was a little quiet, there was a tremendous avalanche of funeral orders that kept the two stores busy. Electric fans are used at the Tremont street store to keep the large show windows clear of frost.

planned to ask for the 1917 convention, will withdraw its claim in favor of Indianapolis, but probably will make a strong bid for the 1918 convention. Among Mr. Goddard's carnations some carried-over plants of Gloriosa are giving grand flowers. Pink Sensation and Good Cheer are each doing well, while Matchless, Rosette, Pink Delight, Beacon and Benora are his other leaders.

Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, is now cutting heavily of his new carnation, Morning Glow, and the flowers are all quickly snapped up.

William Sim, of Cliftondale, is one of our most wide-awake growers and invariably has something new up his sleeve. This season he has made a great hit with mignonette. His pansies are as fine as ever. Violets look well, but, as with other growers, the pick is not yet as he would like. He will have sweet peas in quantity next month.

Paul F. Brigham, of Westboro, is sending in some fine sweet peas to H. T. Capers. His great specialty is carnations. Of these he grows quite a variety, but finds Alice, Eureka, Matchless, Pink Delight, Beacon and Benora the best.

Robert Montgomery recently acquired a new delivery car. His roses never looked better and the quality is such that they are all cleaned up early each morning.

Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, will lecture at Horticultural hall, January 15, on "Vegetables for the Home Garden and Exhibition Purposes." Mr. Jenkins is a noted grower of vegetables and, being an interesting speaker, will undoubtedly have a large audience. There was a large attendance at E. H. Wilson's lecture on Japan, January 8.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is cutting large numbers of French Golden Spur narcissi; also La Reine tulips. He is finishing his cut of chrysanthemums, which have lasted unusually long this season.

Recent visitors were A. E. Thatcher and J. H. Stalford, of Bar Harbor, Me.; C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me.; Alex.

J. W. Foote has had a successful season with Bouvardia Humboldtii, in the culture of which he is a past master, and will give it increased space another season.

Do not forget the ladies' night of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, January 18, at Horticultural hall. A large accession of new members will be made at this meeting. For the annual banquet, January 9, at the New American House, tickets are already selling rapidly. W. N. C.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The K. & M. Pottery Co. has purchased a half-acre site near Fifty-second and Santa Fe avenues, and is building kilns for the manufacture of flower pots.

Marshfield, Ore.—Edwin G. Scott, doing business under the name of the Marshfield Florist Co., is the successor to the Drew Floral Co., having recently acquired the greenhouses and store. Mr. Scott formerly was part owner of a florists' business at Moscow, Idaho.

A HAYASHI HOUSE.

Hayashi & Co., of Elmhurst, Cal., are among the progressive growers for the San Francisco market. Their houses are of the best eastern type of construction and they seek to compete with the other establishments in their section on the basis of quality rather than price. The accompanying illustration shows one of their houses of poinsettias when ready for market this season.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

An abundance of funeral work turned what would have been a quiet week into a fairly good one—the first week of the new year. Had it not been for this—the weather having spoiled much of the transient trade—there would have been mighty little doing after the rush of getting out the plants for the Pasadena tournament of roses on New Year's day. Plant trade fell absolutely flat after the holidays, which was all the more unfortunate because of the fine stock on hand. Although a good deal of stock is sold for the decoration of the various floats for the above-mentioned festival, there is usually little profit in it for the retailer, as the disposition among the managers seems to be to buy from growers direct. The day proved dull and rainy, but this did not daunt the thousands of sightseers who make their annual pilgrimage to the Crown city the first of every year.

Later in the week brighter weather appeared and business picked up in plants and cut flowers. Among the scarce items were good roses and red carnations. There was plenty of the lighter colors in the latter and quite enough short roses. Violets are plentiful and help to offset the shortage in Cecile Brunner roses, which have become a staple in this market. Bulbous stock is coming in somewhat slowly owing to the cool weather, but the spikes of Narcissus Tazetta are magnificent for the time of year. Paper Whites are becoming a feature and a few yellows are seen. Valley is still an uncertain item, difficult to get one day and overplentiful the next. The absence of Roman hyacinths has been marked this year. Cut cyclamens help out with the scarcity of roses; also, incidentally, with the growers who were long on plants for the holidays, for the cut flowers bring often as much as the plants. Heavy, well flowered rhododendrons which failed to make the holiday market are selling freely now. Large ferns have been good property all through and even now are selling freely. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and of fine quality, especially Asparagus plumosus. Nursery sales are picking up since the rain and will undoubtedly improve from now on.

Various Notes.

The sympathy of many friends is extended to George Watson, who has received news of the death of his mother in London, England, at the age of 74.

At the January meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, W. W. Felgate took the chair in the absence of H. R. Richards, the retiring president. The subject for the meeting was "Roses," by Henry W. Turner, who handled his subject in an able manner. His remarks were, as may be expected, concise and much to the point, and created great interest among those present. The attendance was good and the election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. W. Felgate, of Sierra Madre; vice-president, James Taylor, of Hollywood; treasurer, James McGilvray, of Los Angeles; secretary, Hal Kruckeberg.

Large consignments of imported Japanese stock continue to arrive at the nursery of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. The fine Winter Cheer rhododendrons offered by this company are somewhat of a novelty at this time of the year.

Wright's Flower Shop reports bigger business and better stock than at any previous time in the history of the establishment. Large consignments of orchids arrive at the store daily from the Gardena greenhouses, phalænopsis being particularly good. These are largely used for corsage bouquets.

E. Hunt, of Ramona Acres, hopes to have his new greenhouses ready for planting to roses this spring. He intends to grow cut flowers of these and carnations.

Darling's Flower Shop turned out a beautiful float for Pasadena, a feature being a large number of azaleas cut off at the pot and used for bouquets. Vervæneana was the variety.

Polder Bros. report business as being good. John Polder now is handling the sales end of the business.

The Market.

A glance back at the year 1915 reveals the following features: The flower stores handled more stock than during any previous year. The number of sales was the greatest ever. There was a marked falling off in the demand for high-class stock and an increase in the demand for lower-priced goods. The total sales equaled in value those of any former year except possibly 1911.

The result is that the stores were unusually busy, taking care of a multitude of orders of a lower cash value, and the net profits did not show as high a per cent on gross sales as those for some of the former years.

Nurserymen and seedsmen have had a satisfactory fall—better than that of 1914—and they all seem pleased with the outlook for spring business. The growers have had no waste and, while the prices obtained on stock were lower than those of other years, they have done fairly well. All hands take an optimistic view of the future.

The first week of the new year has brought a normal condition to the trade after the holiday rush, and an average quantity of business was done. Roses and carnations continue to be scarce and their place is being taken by bulbous stock. Tulips, freesias and daffodils in limited quantities have appeared and there are plenty of Paper Whites and Romans to be had. A few Easter lilies are shown. Violets and orchids are scarce. A light snow fell New Year's day and continued with light additions throughout the week. The temperature did not drop below 24 degrees.

Various Notes.

The Portland Floral Society will hold its meeting January 18, at the Masonic Temple. The plan for the floral center at the rose festival will be shown and all who wish to put in an exhibit should be on hand to select their locations.

Several changes have been made by the officers of the Swiss Floral Co. since its leasing of the Burkhardt business. Charles Welty has taken personal charge and has moved his family to the premises at Twenty-third and Glisan streets. J. J. Bacher, who lived in the residence adjoining the range at East Seventh and Hancock streets, has moved his family into the residence left vacant by Mr. Welty, and has transformed the lower rooms of his old residence into an addition to his office space. Mr. Bacher takes personal charge of the east side range, where much of the stock offered at the west side store is grown. Considerable bedding stock is being prepared for spring trade. Mr. Bacher exhibited some good specimens of an imported pink poinsettia, the only ones seen in Portland.

C. R. Langstaff, whose disappearance was announced in last week's issue of The Review, has not returned and the flower store which he opened under the name of Henry Clemens, Florist, a corporation, was closed, and the stock sold under attachment. It is reported that Mr. Langstaff left other debts than those resulting from the florists' business and that his family, consisting of a wife and child of 5 years, are without means of support. Beyond allowing the use of his name, Henry Clemens had nothing to do with this company.

Clarke Bros. had the first display of potted tulips last week.

The Market.

The year opened with a heavy wind and rain storm, followed by rather severe weather; the cut of violets, bulbous stock, etc., has been greatly retarded. There are enough violets for the local trade, but it is hard to get enough good shipping stock. Some fine freesias appeared a few days ago, but the cut now is short, and Paper Whites and Chinese lilies are scarce, the latter bringing unusually high prices. Another fortnight, with passable weather, will bring plenty of all such stock. Callas in many places were frozen down. Carnations came through better than was expected. There is no real shortage of trashy stock, but the market cleans up readily and anything extra fine will bring 75 cents or even $1 per bunch. Retail business at present consists mostly of funeral work, which absorbs a good deal of the cheaper stock. Roses are given more prominence since mums went out, but they also are off crop with many of the growers, and good values are realized for most offerings. Beauties are somewhat easier, especially short stock, which is plentiful. Ophelia, Ward and Sunburst sell freely, and Killarney does unusually well. Baby roses are in cleaned up and the supply of primulas is light. Small poinsettias are going rapidly, the large ones being already sold out. Small heather is quite popular, and azaleas, still in fair supply, move well for the midwinter season. Potted ferns of all sizes do well.

Various Notes.

While the azaleas imported for the holidays arrived rather late on the Pacific coast, everything received by the San Francisco buyers was accepted and disposed of. More time was required, however, to get the stock to Los Angeles by rail. A local warehouse concern is now holding, on behalf of eastern brokers, shipments of Belgian stock amounting to over 1,000 plants, which were rejected by the consignees in the south and sent to San Francisco. They reached here in rather poor shape and several nurserymen who have been asked to bid on them have declined. It appears as if the plants are not wanted by anybody in this immediate vicinity, though it may be possible to find a buyer in some other part of the state.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. is cutting many orchids, which, with other flowers scarce, are in good demand.

Joseph Proietti, of San Lorenzo, has a good-sized crop of daffodils and other early bulbous stock due in a couple of weeks, and has arranged to bring in stock from several other growers in his vicinity. He will handle the stock in the E. W. McLellan Co. quarters.

F. Burns, of San Rafael, has been selling many dahlia tubers from last year's planting and reports a lively business at retail. Most of his Delice and Geisha dahlias have been sold.

A meeting of the creditors of the Luther Burbank Co. was held January 3, when it was decided to appoint a committee of five to work out a reorganization plan.

Domoto Bros. have cleaned out a fine lot of poinsettias and azaleas. Mr. Domoto has been working for some time with Japanese valley and says that some of the stock will fully hold its own beside the European valley.

The sweet pea show, to be held under the auspices of the American Sweet Pea Society, now is assured for next June, and an attractive lot of prizes have been offered, the list being now practically complete. Frank G. Cuthbertson, with C. C. Morse & Co., who is attending to the local arrangements, is looking for a suitable location.

On opening a temporary plant and flower store on F street, between Fifth and Sixth, Eureka, H. F. Perkins, vice-president of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, announced that after C. W. Ward's return to Eureka arrangements would be made to open a permanent downtown store, which would be the finest flower shop in the state north of San Francisco.

C. C. Morse & Co. have sent out their new 1916 catalogue, the mailing list amounting to 65,000. The catalogue contains 128 pages, well illustrated, and is considered the best they have ever issued. The back cover design shows a large colored print of the giant snapdragons from their bed at the exposition, together with a small view of the company's gardens at the exposition. H. S. G.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

It is a long time since there has been such a small quantity of cut flowers on the market as at present. All varieties are exceedingly scarce and, as usual when this occurs, seldom as it does, the demand is above the average. The weather during last week was exceedingly severe, with more snow than we have seen for a number of years, and, as a consequence, local flowers are few in number and the supply from outside points is limited. There still are a few poinsettias on the market and, while not bringing good prices, they tend to enliven the appearance of the stores. Bulbous stock is arriving in larger quantities, but it does not go far in offsetting the general scarcity of stock. The available supply of pot plants was well depleted by the Christmas trade, so that there will not be more than the market will require for the next few weeks. Several growers have no carnations in their houses, which condition is attributed to the poor prices on carnations during the last few years. At times like these, the stores scarcely feel the loss of this source of supply. T. W.

CARRYING OVER CYCLAMENS.

Can cyclamen tubers be carried over? Some of my plants are blooming well, but others are not blooming yet. Can I get another season's bloom out of them, or are they worthless? H. H.—III.

Cyclamens are not infrequently carried over. I doubt, however, if it would pay you to do so. It will be far better to sow seed next August. The seedlings will give you more satisfaction than any carried-over stock. On private estates, where large specimen plants are wanted, plants are often carried over and flowered in large pots. C. W.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE early catalogues, sent into the south, are pulling well, the mails of early January being as heavy as ever before.

MACE & MANSFIELD, seedsmen, of Greenville, O., have sold their good will and business to McCartney Bros., who took possession January 1.

BURNETT LANDRETH, of D. Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa., secretary of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, has gone to Cuba for a winter vacation.

EDWIN N. CRUMBAUGH, president of the Crumbaugh-Kuehn Co., seed brokers of Toledo, O., died December 29, after a long illness. He was 52 years of age.

KNUD GUNDESTRUP, who recently returned to Chicago after three years in Europe, has opened a seed store at 4908 Milwaukee avenue, near his former location.

WILLIAM H. BOWKER, of Boston, widely known as a fertilizer and insecticide manufacturer, died January 4. He was the first graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

THE Page-Clark Seed & Nursery Co., of Billings, Mont., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000. The trustees of the company are Hugh D. Page, S. T. Clark and B. E. Upton.

BECAUSE of the uncertainties of the season, many of the smaller seed houses have held their catalogues to a later date than usual, but the books of nearly all the larger mail-order houses now are in the mails.

THE Gate City Seed Co., of Keokuk, Ia., will rebuild in the spring, according to Alexander Davidson, president of the company, which recently lost its elevator, warehouse and offices by fire. The loss was estimated at $30,000, which was partly covered by policies aggregating $21,000.

THE Holland growers of spiraea clumps for forcing have had difficulty in disposing of the usual quantities the last few years. In addition to the curtailment caused by the war, it is considered that the plant has lost some of its erstwhile popularity. American seed houses still have moderate quantities of this season's imports on hand.

It seems evident that there will be large losses of valley pips whenever they are imported in steamers that do not have cold storage facilities. It was so in the season of 1914, when the German pips first came via Denmark and Holland, and it develops that considerable losses are being sustained again this season through heating of the pips on their journey via devious routes.

THE West Virginia pure seed law, which became effective January 1, requires that all seed packages be labeled as to contents; that the packages bear the name and address of the seedsmen, agent, importer or dealer; that a statement accompany the package giving the purity and germinating power of the seeds; that there be an indication of where the seeds were grown.

the committee, and on invitation, Henry members.

It was voted to hold the next convention, June 20 to 22, 1916, in Chicago, headquarters to be announced later. A tentative program was arranged and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved—That the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association in annual meeting assembled recommends to the association that, beginning January 1, 1917, this association and its members use the cental system exclusively by offering all grass, clover, garden and field seeds, potatoes and onion sets by the pound and hundred pounds and abolishing the listing or trading in quarts, pecks and bushels.

TEN MONTHS' IMPORTS.

Despite the great difficulties experienced by importers, our purchases and importations of foreign plants, shrubs, trees and vines during the ten months ending with October, 1915, show only a slight decrease compared with the same period of 1914, according to figures just made public by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of SEED TESTING.

Vitality or Only Germination.

The proprietors of this seed establishment are surprised, after correspondence with a number of seed merchants in all parts of the country, to learn how few make any practical germinative tests of the seeds they sell. They mostly pursue that fallacious and deluding system of testing in wet blotters or seed sprouting machines, which may be compared to incubators, both showing a sprouting capacity, but not a capacity for a continuance of growth, not an ability to sustain life and grow into a green plant, which alone indicates the germinative value of seed. This seed establishment has been making earth tests for over 100 years and is glad to record that some few others do the same, but nine-tenths in number of seed merchants in the United States are deceiving themselves and deluding the public.

The subject of seed germinative tests, that is the practical test of the power of a seed to project its delicate sprout through the surrounding earth and above the earth's surface into the daylight, is so crucially important to all seed purchasers that the United States Department of Agriculture could not enter into a better crusade for the protection of the agricultural public from misleading information than to take up the active promotion of the subject of the strength of seeds to make plants, for no practical test whatever can be made except in earth, in a greenhouse during inclement weather, or in the open field when the climatic conditions are favorable, but even in the open ground disaster often results to seed tests because of dashing rains—consequently a greenhouse test is the best, as conditions there are always normal.

Reports of seed vitality made in incubators or vitality-testing machine are never reliable, be they high or low, and generally are absolutely worthless for practical purposes. Consequently, reports of these misleading trials in testing machines or incubating ovens are nothing less than shams laid before the agricultural public. The machines are designed to get every sprout possible out of the seeds, and everything is counted. From a given sample there may be ninety-five white sprouts counted, when not over thirty sprouts are able to continue their growth under any circumstances whatever. Consequently, that particular lot of seed should only be counted as equal to thirty per cent strength and not ninety-five per cent. At a scientific station proper allowances might be made, but in the usual seed store everything is reported and relied upon.

No doubt some people will take up the defensive side of this subject, but we adhere to our statement that the returns from incubators or blotting pads are most unreliable, and we are surprised that many scientific institutions should adhere to that system, for

DEFERRED CONCLUSIONS

Time is the great avenger as well as educator; only the education is usually deferred until it is too late, except for advice—and nobody wants advice. Death-bed repentances may be legal tender for salvation in another world, but here they are below par, and regeneration that is postponed until man has no further capacity to sin is little better. Sin is only perverted power, and a man who has no capacity to sin has no ability to do good. Therefore if you would be successful in business, use your power for good purposes—reason with reasoning men and do not wait until you are good only to give advice while waiting to shuffle off this mortal sphere. Men of experience, men of capacity, smart growers in the business do not give advice unless asked. Avoid the fellow with inexperience and canned advice; but advice from an experienced grower is worth years of labor. You will find experienced lily growers using Horseshoe Brand Giganteum—they know by hard knocks that they are the best lily bulbs produced. If you get these bulbs it is so much saved, as it costs money to experiment with various brands of unknown value. Horseshoe Brand Giganteum are now ready for delivery at the following prices:

been making quality tests in the open fields and germinative tests under glass, over 25,000 such tests being made annually; never a test in cotton, or between blotters, or in incubators, all of which latter systems are unreliable, only delusive, unworthy of any experienced establishment.

D. Landreth Seed Co.

BURPEE'S FORTIETH YEAR.

This is the fortieth year of the Burpee seed business and to commemorate the anniversary a "Supplement" of eighty pages called "Forty Years of Burpee Service" accompanies the catalogue. Eighty pages! As much space as many a big house uses to list its entire line! But the Burpee "Supplement" is devoted exclusively to general publicity. Not a single sales offer in it, much less a price. The greater part of the text is reprint of write-ups of the Burpee business that have appeared in various publications, but there are scores of cuts showing how Burpee seeds are grown, tested and distributed. The cover and arrangement are tasteful but striking. Both are the work of W. F. Therkildson, who says he "feels a pardonable pride" in the book because it is "so vastly different from anything we have put out heretofore."

The covers and inserts of the Annual this year are manufactured by the offset method of printing. This process was first employed on the Silent Salesman's Assistant sent out last season as a follow-up. It proved so attractive that it was decided to use it this year in the preparation of the general catalogue.

Another unique piece of Burpee general publicity literature for 1916 is "A Fortieth Anniversary Souvenir" entitled "Best Ways to Cook Fresh Vegetables," a handsomely printed pamphlet of forty pages by Mrs. Anna B. Scott, a cooking expert and food economist of more than local reputation. The first edition is 50,000 copies.

While a busy man will give the "Supplement" a glance and forget all but the favorable general impression created, a busy woman will lay the "Souvenir" away against a time its practical recipes can be tried in her kitchen.

Another Burpee publication of the week is "Sweet Peas Up-to-Date," revised to 1916, by George W. Kerr. In addition to cultural matter, etc., it contains lists of all varieties in commerce, including in an appendix a list of the varieties introduced since the previous edition of the book, in 1914.

NORTHROP, KING & CO. PROTEST.

A petition in the form of a letter from Northrup, King & Co., of Minneapolis, addressed to Senator Knute Nelson, has been presented in the Senate by the latter, in protest against the proposed change in the postal laws affecting the rates on seeds. Such a change is contemplated in the bill recently introduced in the House of Representatives (H. R. 636) by Congressman Anderson.

Northrup, King & Co. take exception to the statement of Congressman Anderson that within the first two zones the postage would be considerably less. Under existing law merchandise sent by parcel post takes a rate of 1 cent per ounce up to four ounces, and above the latter weight pound rates apply, with a minimum charge of 5 cents. The rates at present applying on seeds permit of their transmission by mail up to eight ounces at the rate of 1 cent for each two ounces. Above eight ounces pound rates, corresponding to the present parcel post zone rates, apply. Thus it is readily to be seen that instead of a saving in the local zones there would be an increased cost to shippers of seeds. Beyond the first two zones there would be no difference over present rates.

They further point out that additional expense would be entailed by the extra labor which would be required in zoning packages weighing from four to eight ounces. This, at present, is unnecessary. A large proportion of orders for seeds received by seed houses, they state, are for quantities under the eight-ounce limit.

The bill would result in largely increased charges, as where it is now possible to mail two ounces for 1 cent, the new rate would be 2 cents, and instead of 2 cents for three or four ounces, the cost would be 3 and 4 cents, respectively.

In Your Search for New Things Start with Sutton's Seed Catalogue

IT will short-cut your search, as this year's 190 pages contain many choice new things.

Not freaks—or even quite what you will call novelties—but good sensible productions such as will find a hearty welcome in garden and greenhouse for years to come.

In Cyclamens we have one that is really quite a marvel. If you haven't posted yourself on our all-the-year-round Stocks, then there's an eye-opener for you.

And when it comes to Asters, we sincerely believe that you will find a list in our catalogue that will surprise you, not alone in numbers, but in unusualness.

We received from America last year many enthusiastic letters about our Asters.

So great is the cost of our 1916 catalogue of 190 pages that you can well understand why we are asking you to send 35c with your request for one. It will, however, be promptly refunded with an order for $5.00 or over.

We especially recommend this new forcer as the best yet introduced. For forcing under glass it has no equal; as a producer it stands alone at the top of the forcing list. The fruit is smooth, large, bright red. Ripens all over at once; an extremely early setter. The skin is firm, but still thin, making it an ideal shipper. Goetz's Best Yet is offered to all who desire something especially choice for greenhouse forcing. The success with Best Yet as a forcer with the greenhouse men will be most astonishing.

GOVERNMENT OPENS SEED BIDS.

The bids for supplying the government with seed for the congressional distribution of 1917, subject to the usual appropriation being made, were opened at the Department of Agriculture January 11. The oft-repeated formula was employed. The bids were opened and read aloud in the presence of interested parties, the quantities offered only being withheld. In spite of the scarcity of seeds this season, there were about the usual number of offers of surplus stock by growers. The seed dealers, as a rule, no longer bid for the government's order. The awards will not be announced for some weeks, but when made will aggregate about the same value and quantity as last year.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

L. Merton Gage, Natick, Mass.—A 16-page catalogue of the stock of the Sunnyside Gladiolus Gardens. Besides the standard varieties, which are carefully classified, some Gage novelties are listed.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.—"The Glory of the Garden—the Modern Gladiolus," an illustrated 16-page catalogue, with cultural directions and a discussion of the merits and uses of the flower. A list of "the cream of the world's best varieties" is followed by offers of various collections and mixtures.

Good & Reese Co., Springfield, O.—Spring trade list, "for florists, nurserymen and dealers only"; contains forty closely packed pages. The first half of the book is devoted to roses, with an alphabetical "ready reference list" of all varieties offered. Among the other stock listed are greenhouse and hardy plants, bulbs, vines and climbers.

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Wholesale catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, plants, shrubs, farm and garden implements, plant tubs, fertilizers, wire designs and other florists' supplies; 108 large pages, illustrated. Geranium Helen Michell is featured by means of a colored insert. The list of tools and other equipments is especially comprehensive.

The Burpee general catalogue, or annual, a book of 182 pages, was mentioned in The Review of December 30.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—"The 1916 Floral Guide," containing ninety-six pages, handsomely illustrated. The 37-page list of roses, in the first part of the book, begins with an alphabetical index of all the roses offered.

The roses are followed by cannas and miscellaneous plants, shrubs, fruits, flower seeds and bulbs, garden requisites, etc. Roses and other specialties, such as cannas, are shown in colors on the cover and elsewhere.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.—Thirty-second annual catalogue of "Sterling Seeds." Contains 188 pages, freely illustrated, and is notable for its comprehensiveness in all departments—seeds, bulbs, plants, nursery stock and sundries. One of the introductory pages draws attention to the seven different trademarks that are used on the company's packages.

Dreer's Reliable Flower Seeds

In spite of the war, we have received from many of our regular growers our usual supply of high-grade flower seeds and are ready to take care of your orders. We offer below a few items that it is well to sow early. For complete list see our Wholesale Catalogue, just issued. If you have not received one, we will be pleased to send a copy to any florist on request.

HENRY A. DREER, 714-716 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O.—"Seed Annual for 1916," offering "True Blue" garden field and flower seeds, bulbs, tools, etc.; 128 pages, illustrated. "With few exceptions," says a paragraph on the index page, "plants, shrubs and trees have been eliminated from this catalogue. On account of the increasing difficulty in satisfying the exacting legal requirements in many states, * * * we thought it best to discontinue the handling of nursery stock in connection with our mail-order business."

Reichardt & Schulte Co., Inc., Houston, Tex.—Seventeenth annual catalogue of seeds, bulbs, strawberry plants, vegetable plants and roots, sprayers, fertilizers, poultry supplies, garden implements and other requisites; ninety-eight pages, illustrated. Contains several planting tables or calendars, spraying formulas, etc.

Rocky Ford Cantaloupe Seed Growers' Co.,
Rocky Ford, Colo.—"Descriptive List of Cantaloupe and Other Vine Seeds," including watermelon and cucumber; twelve pages, illustrated, and cover. A booklet on cantaloupe culture and marketing is printed separately, for free circulation.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.
President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE nursery trade never was more optimistic than now. The feeling is that 1916 will be a banner year.

THE firm of Denton, Williams & Denton, of Dansville, N. Y., has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Further details are given under Business Embarrassments.

THE first carload of strawberry plants that ever crossed the continent recently was received by H. A. Hyde, of Watsonville, Cal. The plants were grown in Maryland and will be reshipped by Mr. Hyde to points in central California.

At the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association, held at Boston January 4, the elimination of the parasite evil was the principal subject discussed. G. Howard Frost was elected president, to succeed Charles Adams.

WHAT IS INTERSTATE COMMERCE?

Curtis Nye Smith, counsel for the American Association of Nurserymen, has put into a nutshell, as follows, what the United States Supreme court holds to be interstate commerce:

"(1) When goods are shipped f. o. b. by the vendor in one state to purchasers in another state. Method of payment for goods is not a determining factor.

"(2) When orders for goods are solicited in another state by advertisements, catalogues, traveling salesmen or other methods.

"(3) When, as a result of acceptance of orders secured by traveling salesmen, advertisements, catalogues, etc., the goods are delivered at sellers' risk and cost at purchaser's residence in another state, method of payment of goods not being a determining factor.

"In these circumstances or when shipment is bill of lading to shipper or order, draft attached, there is technically a retention of title in vendor until after arrival of goods in the other state, but the United States Supreme court has stated that this is merely an incident of collection of payment, the contract of sale being consummated in the vendor's state.

"(4) When vendor in one state ships goods to a factor or broker in another state for sale on commission, the title to remain in the ex-state owner until goods are sold.

"(5) When ex-state persons establish and maintain branch offices or agencies in another state, provided the agents merely solicit orders which are sent to the home office for acceptance.

"(6) And these branch offices may also act as distributing agents for the interstate shipment and delivery of the goods on orders previously sent.

"(7) When an ex-state vendor main-

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business last week showed a falling off and the usual after-the-holiday dullness was noted. While prices remain good, it is said by growers and wholesalers that they are much lower than they should be, considering the quality of the stock and the time of the year. This, it is claimed, is due to the low retail prices prevailing.

Exceptionally fine carnations are to be had at from $4 to $6 per hundred. There is a slight shortage of roses, particularly of white roses. American Beauty roses are so plentiful that they constitute a glut and can be had at low prices. There are plenty of good Richmond roses to be had at from $8 to $12

NEPHROLEPIS JOHN WANAMAKER

Introduced August, 1915

The Wanamaker Boston has more than made good. Everyone who has received early shipments from us has been greatly pleased with the variety and repeat orders have been coming in daily. We have a very large stock. A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis. The following prices are for immediate and spring delivery:

Philadelphia, New York and southern cities. Orchids are plentiful and have dropped to $6 per dozen. Gardenias are in heavier supply than they have been and the demand seems to be picking up. Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., was held in the rooms of the American Institute of Banking, at 1214 F street, northwest, January 4, at which time a motion-picture exhibition was given for the entertainment of the large number of members who turned out for the first meeting of the new year.

In accordance with a letter received from the secretary of the S. A. F., President George H. Cooke appointed Harry B. Lewis, chairman, Milton Thomas and M. J. McCabe to make necessary arrangements for the attendance of a large number of members of the club at the flower show to be held

William F. Gude announced that President Cooke had been selected as the District of Columbia vice-president of the S. A. F., whereupon the latter told of the honors conferred upon Mr. Gude in his selection as the Washington representative of the association, as well as chairman of its committee on legislation.

It was announced that at the next meeting of the club, to be held February 1, nominations for officers to serve during the ensuing twelve months will be in order. The election is due to take place in March.

It was with sincere regret that the members of the trade learned of the death of the brother of Henry Witt, of Silver Hill, Md., who was severely wounded while participating in an engagement against the Allies in Russia. PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

A scarcity of flowers of all kinds and top-notch prices featured the opening week of the new year. There was a general scurrying to secure needed supplies. Coupled with the shortage in supply was an unusually large quantity of funeral and social work. Many of the growers, however, are promising good cuts and after a few sunny days expect to place the market in a normal condition as regards the supply.

Various Notes.

Frederick B. Luther has added an automobile to his delivery department.

A fire January 4 caused considerable damage to a building owned by George L. Stillman, of Westerly.

William H. Covell, Jr., has resigned as a member of the Providence park commission, having been elected fire commissioner, defeating George Hunt. The latter is associated with his son in a florists' business on Burnside street.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, has been appointed state vice-president for Rhode Island by the president of the Society of American Florists.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society, on the evening of January 5 in the truck house of the Seawanhaka Greenhouses, was largely attended. The exhibition tables were well filled. After the secretary and treasurer had read their reports, former President Duthie occupied the chair and installed the officers for 1916:

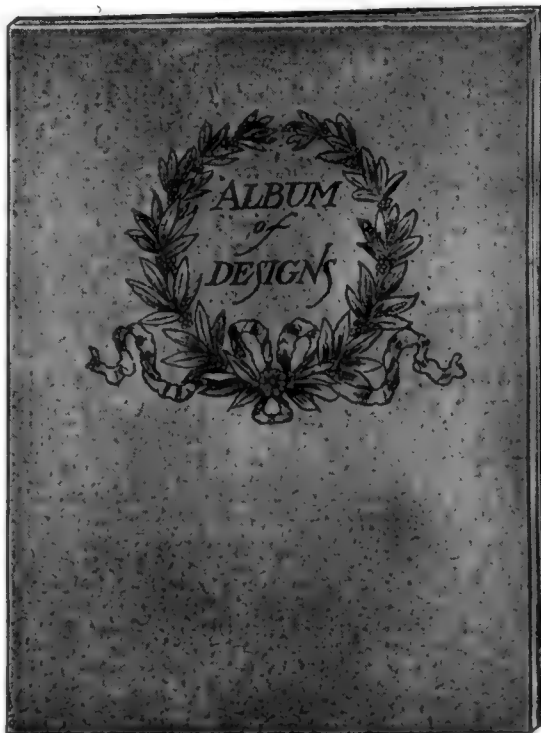

President, Alfred Walker; vice-president, John Sorosick; secretary, John T. Ingram; financial secretary, John Devine; treasurer, H. G. Vail; executive committee, Frank Gale, James Bell, William Richie, Duncan Beaton, Henry Gibson, Fred Phillips, David Hothersall, Frank Kyle.

Exhibits for Carnation night, January 26, will be twelve pink, twelve white and twelve carnations of any other color.

BELLE WASHBURN

THE BEST RED CARNATION

Winner of the Silver Medal at the last exhibition of the American Carnation Society, Buffalo, N. Y., January 27 and 28; First prize at the Illinois State Fair, at Springfield, Ill., September 22 and 23. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

During the present holiday season the Belle Washburn was shipped everywhere, from Texas to Winnipeg, and from Denver as far east as Pennsylvania. It sold at the highest price of any red Carnation and was the most in demand, being the premier red of any variety that was in the Chicago market.

The color is the most brilliant red of any Carnation now in the market. We have grown this variety for five years, it being one of our own seedlings, and we now have 30,000 plants hatched in our greenhouses at Greggs, of which 12,000 are for the cut flowers and 18,000 devoted to rooted cuttings. Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The continued high prices on cut flowers last week caused a great deal of complaint, because when prices pass a certain point people refuse to buy. Carnations last week sold at $8 per hundred, while good roses could be purchased for $7 per hundred. There has been an unusually large amount of funeral work, which has made the florists feel the high cost of stock more than usual, for cheaper flowers would have been used if they had been procurable.

There is a good sale of azaleas, ferns and other potted plants. The demand for Paper Whites has been good, but they are rather scarce. A large number of bulbs were planted for this season and both growers and retailers look for good business in this line. Some of the retailers had large decorations as a result of the organization of public bodies during the first days of the new year.

Various Notes.

J. Rose has installed benches in his new greenhouse in the rear of his store.

George Muller, of 435 Clinton avenue, has had an unusually large amount of funeral work, due to the high mortality caused by the epidemic of grip and pneumonia. The high prices on cut flowers leave smaller profit on this class of work.

McLaughlin & Murphy had a large number of large decorative pieces in connection with the organization meetings of several of the city and county administrative bodies.

J. W. Blakely, of Elizabeth, last week had two old photographs in his window that attracted considerable attention. One was a picture of Broad street as it looked forty years ago; the other was a picture of Broad street as it looked just after the blizzard of 1888.

The S. S. Rogers Nursery Co., which opened a store at 14 Branford place just before Christmas, reports a good business.

The first national convention of the American Academy of Arborists was held in the Newark city hall January 1.

H. C. Strobell & Co. last week made an unusual piece for the funeral of a prominent telephone engineer. The decoration stood nearly four feet high. It consisted of a base of lilies and green with a large circle at the top, in the middle of which hung a large bell, similar to the one on the advertisements of the Bell telephone. The bell and the circle were made of immortelles.

The Violet Floral Shop, of Elizabeth, reported a large amount of funeral work and many orders for flowers for the hospitals of the city. R. B. M.

Mechanicsburg, O.—Charles B. Wing, of the Wing Seed Co., takes much interest in the collection of irises his concern is working up and is gathering varieties from the ends of the earth.

Des Moines, Ia.—A number of the local florists convened last week for the purpose of forming a florists' society and to arrange for an annual flower show to be held at the Coliseum the first week of November. Applications were received from growers and florists of California, Florida and other states, offering to participate in a show if arrangements could be made for holding it.

ROSES

RED RADIANCE. A sport of Radiance that will be welcomed as a valuable addition to the list of greenhouse Roses and will be of greatest value for the garden. Grafted or Own Root, 2¼-in., $2.50 per doz., $17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1,000.

MRS. WM. B. HEARST. A clear, dark pink sport of My Maryland. The equal of Maryland in habit and growth, and far superior to it in color. Grafted or Own Root, 2¼-in., $2.50 per doz., $17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1,000.

HOOSIER BEAUTY. Deep, rich crimson in color. We have a large stock of this new Rose and can fill your order to your satisfaction. Grafted 2¼-in., $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100, $140.00 per 1,000; Own Root, 2¼-in., $1.50 per doz., $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1,000.

HADLEY. With both Hadley and the above-named variety we have to offer the two best red Roses in commerce. Grafted, 2¼-in., $1.50 per doz., $12.50 per 100, $120.00 per 1,000; Own Root, 2¼-in., $1.00 per doz., $7.50 per 100, $60.00 per 1,000.

OPHELIA, FRANCIS SCOTT KEY, and all the good standard sorts we offer for February delivery on early orders. We begin grafting early.

NEW CARNATIONS THAT ARE MAKING GOOD

GOOD CHEER. We planted Good Cheer heavily because we believed in it. Today it is the finest Carnation on our place. It is a clear rose pink—a Carnation that every grower needs. Rooted Cuttings, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1,000.

MATCHLESS and ENCHANTRESS SUPREME. Two leaders in Carnations. Early delivery. Rooted Cuttings, $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1,000.

ALICE. For freedom of flowering and as a money maker, Alice has made good. We cut from it earlier than any other variety. It is a quick plant maker. It is a good commercial shell pink. Plant Alice. December and January. Rooted Cuttings, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1,000.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

GOLDEN GLEAM Our Novelty for 1916

As a novelty of the year we are offering a seedling of our own raising. It is a bright, glistening yellow in color; medium dwarf in growth. Fully as good two to a plant as single. Matures Oct. 20th to Nov. 1st. Second crown buds were the best.

2¼-in., $1.50 per doz., $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1,000.

NEW 'MUMS OF THIS SEASON

WHITE CHIEFTAIN. For early delivery we offer fine stock of this high-class variety at $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1,000. This means January and February delivery, and we have ample stock for your requirements.

GOLDEN EATON. Better in color than Yellow Eaton. One of the finest of the new 'Mums. Early delivery. $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1,000.

This cancels the previous offers on these two varieties. Orders accepted previously will be filled as booked.

POMPONS

PEACE. We shall disseminate Peace in 1916. At this writing it is a very charming shell pink. It was shown as white last season at a later date. It is a beautifully formed and valuable Pompon. 2¼-in., $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100.

HARVEST MOON. Our introduction of last season. A fine, midseason, yellow Pompon. 2¼-in., $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1,000.

EUGENE LANGAULET. A fine, late yellow. Both good, and both money-making varieties. 2¼-in., $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1,000.

SIX GOOD POMPONS FOR ANY GROWER

MARY. White.

NESCO. Light pink.

DONALD. Light pink.

CELCO. Yellow.

BABY. Yellow.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

There was little change in market conditions last week. Stock remains scarce and prices are lower than they were during the Christmas season. The weather has been quite cold and there has been some sunshine, but not sufficient to increase the cut to any appreciable extent. The high prices occasioned by the limited quantity of stock work a hardship on those whose customers demand the cheaper grades and also curtail the sales of those dealing with the better class of trade.

The shortage in medium and short roses is felt most acutely and orders for this class of stock are being turned down daily. The cut is about normal, but the demand is much stronger than usual and the shortage, therefore, is much more apparent than in some other stock. Carnations are almost equal to the demand and are of good quality. Some are cut tighter than they should be, in order to supply the demand, and there is a daily clean-up at good prices. Violets are coming in more heavily and the market is easing up to some extent, due to the New York stock that is being imported to help out the Wisconsin-grown stock. Prices on violets are fair and there is no surplus. Both callas and Easter lilies are scarce and are bringing fair prices. Valley is a little off just now, but there is no trouble in moving the entire cut daily. Orchids are in fine shape and are moving readily.

Various Notes.

Mrs. F. Ennis, who operates a flower store in the Caswell block, has been confined to her home with the grip for about ten days. She is just able to be about again, January 8 being her first appearance on the local market.

H. V. Hunkel made a trip to Chicago January 8.

There will be a state conference of credit men here January 17, under the auspices of the Milwaukee association. The speaking program will consume the entire day and there will be a banquet in the evening, at which the national officers will make a few remarks. If more Wisconsin florists would join this association it would undoubtedly be beneficial to the trade. Any who wish to attend the conference and banquet can have reservations made by communicating with H. J. Seel, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., who will see that they are well taken care of.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., paid a short visit to Milwaukee January 6.

The Market.

We had several days of sunshine last week and they did much to improve the condition of the market by increasing the supply of flowers. Prices have dropped. Killarney is the most plentiful of roses. Other pink varieties are more abundant than red and white, which are unusually scarce. Carnations are in fair supply. There is a shortage in sweet peas; violets also are scarce. Easter lilies are in good supply and there is a variety of miscellaneous flowers, such as antirrhinums, Paper Whites, poeticus narcissi, baby primroses and swainsonas. Valley is rather scarce, as well as orchids.

A number of rhododendrons and late azaleas are being shown in the stores. The rhododendrons arrived just a few weeks too late to force in time for the holiday business. Some handsome Marie Legraye lilacs are appearing. Cyclamens are selling briskly, as are a few leftover poinsettias. Poinsettias have lasted remarkably well for customers this year and this will, no doubt, favorably affect the sales of poinsettias next Christmas. Begonia and primrose plants are selling well.

The new year's business has started under favorable conditions, as business has been booming in all departments of the trade. Florists are almost unanimous in their reports that business during 1915 far exceeded that of any of the last five years, and all are beginning the new year in an optimistic frame of mind.

Various Notes.

At the annual suffrage luncheon, at the Anthony hotel, January 8, there were covers laid for 180 persons. The decorations for the tables were Killarney roses in white Germanware vases. The work was carried out by the Flick Floral Co. Among the suffragette florists present were Mrs. Cecil Max, of Mobile, Ala., and her sister, Miss Margaret Vesey; Mrs. Aaron Shive, of the Flick Floral Co.; Mrs. Richard Blossom and Miss Margaret Flick.

The Doswell Floral Co. closed its south branch store at 1808 South Calhoun street January 1, having decided to concentrate its efforts at the Main street store and open an extra salesroom at holiday times.

Elaborate decorations for a large banquet last week were executed by W. J. & M. S. Vesey, consisting of Shawyer and Killarney roses in handsome vases. A feature of the decoration was a miniature aeroplane which flew from the musicians' balcony over the banquet tables to the head table, where it deposited a shower of roses over the place of the president of the company which was giving the banquet.

DORNER'S NOVELTY FOR 1916 New Salmon Pink Carnation

Color, light salmon pink, a little darker than Pink Delight and a more even color. Blooms are good commercial size, three inches and over, nicely formed and have never shown a bursted calyx. Stems always hold the flower upright. The habit is a quick productive growth and as a producer it stands highest among commercial varieties. Color does not fade. Fragrance is very noticeable. Having an excellent cerise pink and an improved yellow to offer in 1917, we have decided to disseminate the variety NANCY this year (1916). For a light pink that will produce quantities of bloom and is commercially good in every respect, plant NANCY. The stock is limited and orders will be filled in rotation as received. Price, rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The business done during the week was a great deal better than expected. There was a large demand for pot plants and basket work. The retailers have begun to realize that a line of pot plants must be kept on hand at all times, for about one-fourth of the business done is in the handling of pot plants or plants in baskets. Begonias and cyclamens were first in demand. In cut flowers, carnations were the best sellers. Roses cleaned up fairly well, but were a little irregular in demand. Stevia and bulbous stock sold readily.

Various Notes.

Henry Kusik purchased a marriage license last week. He is the last among the wholesalers to join the benedicts.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has been busy taking an inventory, both at the store and greenhouses. Business was good last week. Funeral work was plentiful. Stock was somewhat scarce, but a good wholesale business was done.

William Murray is now in the employ of his brother, Samuel Murray. He expects to remain in the flower business.

Arthur Newell had a good week in the general line of stock and has been selling an especially large number of plants in pots and baskets.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a pretty window display last week. A large standard bougainvillea was placed in the center of the window, surrounded by hydrangeas and made-up baskets.

The Walnut Hill Greenhouses have been sending in the finest stevia seen on this market. E. G. Bunyar says he grows stevia in preference to mums, because the stevia nets more money.

W. J. Barnes decorated the show rooms of the International Harvester Co. for the annual sales show.

Allen Sexton, manager of St. Mary's Greenhouse, reports business good. He deserves a good deal of credit for the way he has handled the place. It is in excellent shape and Mr. Sexton has only been there about six months.

Beginning and Ending

No matter how the proverb, "Beginning and ending," goes, every live florist knows that if he don't begin right and on time the odds are strongly against him.

By sowing seed of snapdragon now a good beginning is made, and plants can be had in bloom in 3½ and 4-in. pots for early sales. They will sell themselves and make more clear money than anything on the place. Get busy this month. Every seed that we offer was grown under glass, in separate houses, on our premises. The quality is the highest and our prices are as follows:

Seed of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, White, Yellow, Buxton, and Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

We have plenty of snapdragon plants that will make good at Easter and Memorial—the two big flower days. Plants now ready:

Silver Pink Seedlings, Nelrose, Garnet, White and Yellow, at $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1,000. Silver Queen, 50c each; $3.00 per doz.

Begin today. All orders cash or C. O. D. Free directions.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

The coal men are pleased with the present and optimistic about the future "The outlook for profitable business," they say, "was never better. The improved industrial situation gives every indication of full running time for all mines until April 1." These expressions of satisfaction seem to apply to the entire country, in spite of the fact—or is it partly due to the fact?—that railroad transportation in the east is still considerably obstructed. In the west, however, traffic is not seriously hindered, by car shortage or otherwise. The market is strengthened by the action of some of the large manufacturing concerns, which, it is said, are storing large quantities of coal in anticipation of a possible suspension of mining operations in April.

Smokeless coal, it is stated, "is gradually getting back to the position occupied before its recent somersault. Mine-run prices range from $1.25 to $1.40."

TO IMPROVE THE CIRCULATION.

In a greenhouse 20x85 I have three 2-inch steam mains. Each of these mains runs the length of the building and is connected to a 1-inch return. All the pipes are well above the water level of the boiler. While I am able to keep the house warm in the coldest weather, the circulation does not seem to be what it should. Would more returns for each main give better results? If so, how many returns should be attached to each 2-inch main?

W. M.—Wyo.

Although the statement is made that the return pipes are well above the water level of the boiler, this is not entirely definite and it is possible that the poor circulation referred to is because the returns are too near the water level. In a gravity system we prefer to have the returns three or four feet above the level of the water in the boiler, and would not expect satisfactory results unless there is a difference of two feet at the lower end of the returns.

Nothing is said about the amount of exposed wall space, or of the glass in the sides and ends of the house. It is also essential, if one is to make an accurate estimate of the amount of piping required, that some idea be given of the minimum winter temperature and the exposure to the prevailing cold winds.

If the returns are high enough above the water level to prevent the backing up of the drip water, we would expect to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather with the amount of radiation now in the house, provided there is no glass in the side walls. The addition of one return to each of the three coils would give a temperature of about 60 degrees, under the conditions mentioned. For 10 degrees below zero we would use two additional returns in each coil, making nine returns in the house.

return pipes two feet above the water-level, we would put in a steam trap. We do not favor the use of more than one main in a house no larger than 20x90, and instead of using three 2-inch flows we would use but one, with ten 1-inch returns, for 60 degrees in zero weather, using thirteen returns for 10 degrees below zero.

WANTS HIGHER TEMPERATURE.

I wish to increase the capacity of my heating system. I have four houses, each 23½x90, with a height of seven feet to the gutter and thirteen and one-half feet to the ridge. I also have one lean-to house, with a southern exposure; it is eighteen feet wide and fourteen feet high to the ridge. There are no partitions under the gutters.

I now have a hot water system, with the pipes all under the benches. As far as my present requirements are concerned, the system works splendidly, but I am planning to grow different stock and therefore wish to increase the temperature. With the present piping, I am unable to hold a temperature of more than 45 or 50 degrees in zero weather, and I wish to increase this to 60, 65 or even 70 degrees. Would one 1¼-inch flow through the center of each house, and four 1-inch returns under the gutters, be sufficient? If not, please state the amount of extra piping required. R. F. G.—Ill.

The description of the houses is so incomplete that we do not feel warranted in giving any really definite and unqualified advice in the matter. It will make considerable difference whether or not there is glass in the exposed walls of the houses, and we would be better able to offer helpful suggestions if a description of the present heating system had been given, since much depends upon the size and efficiency of the boiler and the piping, and whether it is an open or closed system.

The suggestion that 1¼-inch flows and 1-inch returns be used leads us to think that it is proposed to put in a supplementary steam system, or that in the present system the water is under pressure. The installation of one 1¼-inch and four 1-inch pipes would add 160 square feet of radiation to a 90-

THE HEATING PROBLEM SOLVED

Judging strictly according to mechanical merits, it's the METROPOLITAN PATENTED BOILER you want.

Because of their proven scientifically perfect construction, Metropolitan Patented Boilers will heat a given amount of water quicker, with less fuel and less attention than any other boiler on the market.

The remarkable heating efficiency and quick steaming qualities of these boilers are due to their large and effective heating surface.

Just a few points of Metropolitan Patented Boiler merit:—Smooth, perfect finished castings. Push nipple connections. Large fire box, providing ample combustion chamber, and permitting a sufficient charge of fuel to require attention only at long intervals. Deep ash pit, making the removal of ashes a slight task. Large flues, making the boiler easy to clean. Grates that are made for hard usage and long service. And above all, they are Fuel Saving, not Fuel Wasting.

We also make soft coal boilers which are smokeless, and save 50 per cent in coal.

foot house. This would add about 20 degrees to the temperature if steam is used, or would raise it from 45 to 65 degrees.

While it is possible to carry water under pressure at 212 degrees, or even higher, we do not favor doing so except during short periods of exceptionally cold weather. Moreover, we do not favor using a flow pipe as small as 1¼-inch or returns as small as 1-inch in 90-foot houses. If the heating system is under pressure we would suggest the addition of one 2-inch flow and four 1½-inch returns in each house.

However, our choice would be to use an open-tank system with three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns, for 60 to 65 degrees, in houses like those described, with an additional return for each two feet of glass in the exposed walls. Two flows and ten returns should answer for the lean-to, unless there is glass in the outer wall.

GOOD AND BAD CONNECTIONS.

I am installing a hot water heating system in a greenhouse 30x100. The boiler pit is at the west end of the house. I am using 4-inch pipe for the main flow and return. I shall use a gravity system and I intend to connect the expansion tank to the return where it connects with the boiler. The tank will be ten feet above the boiler. I intend to run one 3½-inch flow and one 3-inch flow to the east end of the house, one on each line of pipe posts, connecting these flows at the east end with six 2-inch returns on each side of the house. The return coils will drop back to the west end, where they will connect with the 4-inch return pipe.

Would it be advisable to connect the flows with the return coils at the west end of the house also, and put valves in the branches that would be used to make the connection, or would it be best to make only the one connection between the flows and the return coils, at the east end of the house?

M. W. B.—Kan.

Nothing will be gained by connecting the flow and return pipes at the west end of the house, as proposed. On the other hand, while it would make no difference whatever so long as the valves are closed, whenever the valves are open it would tend to hinder the circulation in the coils. In this hindrance we can see no object to be attained, unless it is to reduce the heat given out by the coils, and this can be done by closing the draft and opening the fire door of the heater, if necessary.

We can see nothing in particular to criticize in the plan outlined for installing the piping, although we would connect the expansion tank to the highest part of the main flow pipe. This may be done when the flow pipes run downhill, and will do away with the need for air cocks, besides giving a better circulation than when the flow pipes run uphill.

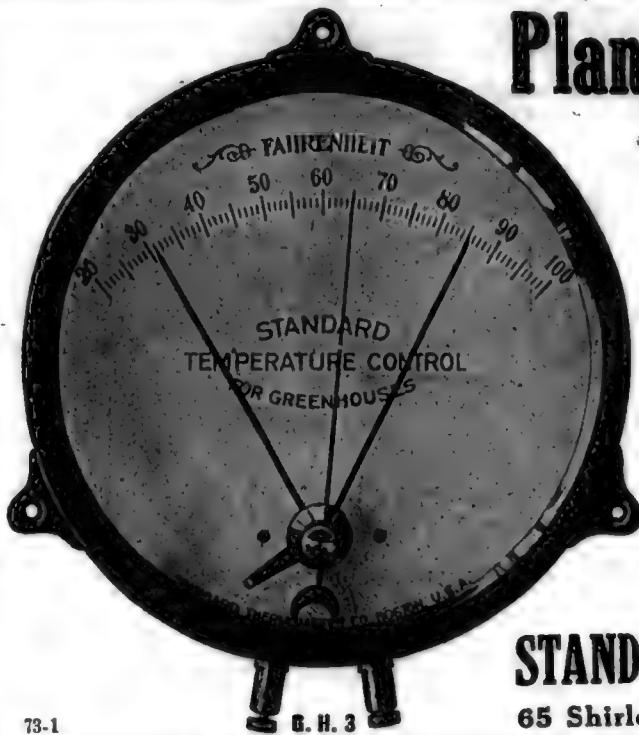

If the house is well built and has only a moderate exposure to prevailing cold winds, we would expect to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees with the two flows and twelve returns, unless there is glass in the side walls, in which case we would not expect to keep the temperature above 50 degrees in severe weather, except by heavy firing.

Wrought Iron Pipe, thoroughly overhauled, with new threads and couplings, guaranteed to give entire satisfaction. Pipe cut to sketch. It will pay you to correspond with us.

The Market.

There has been a large number of funerals lately, so business can be said to have been good. An epidemic of the grip is said to be the cause of the high mortality.

Roses, carnations and many other seasonable flowers are plentiful. Plants, including hyacinths, Paper Whites and primulas, are popular sellers as gifts to the ill.

Various Notes.

C. L. Niednagel's roses are in a fine condition. Ward and Killarney are especially good, with large crops of each coming on. A bench of Ophelia appears to be strong and healthy, but not many flowers were seen. Many Russell roses are being cut. Mr. Niednagel has material on hand for a small house.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting about enough stock to supply the demand. January 3 George Blackman celebrated his fifty-third birthday. A banquet, attended by the employees, was given in the evening. Miss L. Mexal, of the store force, has been confined to her home for a couple of weeks with an attack of the grip.

J. C. Elsperrmann still is unable to do much work. Business is excellent with him.

Karl Zeidler has had his share of the funeral work. Ludwig Weiss, formerly with J. Niednagel, is associated with Mr. Zeidler. E. L. F.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week's business commenced briskly, slackened during the middle of the week and became unusually active at the close. Practically everything cleaned up. The general supply is fair in size and the demand is about equal to it.

Rose offerings are fine and include excellent Killarney, White Killarney, Ophelia, Sunburst, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty and American Beauty. Carnations still are rather scarce, but are apparently sufficient for present needs. Easter lilies are plentiful. The line of small bulbous offerings includes Paper White narcissi, daffodils, freesias and Roman hyacinths. Valley is scarce and sells well, while violets, sweet peas and orchids are all fairly plentiful. Other offerings include callas, stevia, magnificum lilies, baby primroses and forget-me-nots. The supply of greens is sufficient for all present requirements.

Club Meeting.

The attendance at the club meeting of January 10, held at Labold & Newburgh's, was the best and largest that has been recorded for some time. Joseph Hill, Roy Rudolph, Henry Shepperd, Richard Koots and Otto Geiser were elected to membership. Joseph Hill gave an interesting talk on the coming American Carnation Society's silver anniversary meeting at St. Louis. The first steps toward a big fall flower show were taken when a preliminary committee was appointed to plan for the exhibition. This committee consists of C. E. Critchell, chairman; Joseph Hill, J. A. Peterson, W. Ray Murphy and Henry Shepperd. After the meeting refreshments were served.

Various Notes.

William Speck has been sending fancy narcissi and daffodils to C. E. Critchell.

At a recent meeting of the William Murphy Co., which took over the business of the late William Murphy, W. Ray Murphy was chosen president and manager; Miss Cora Pherson, assistant manager; Mrs. L. Murphy, vice-president; L. L. Murphy, secretary-treasurer.

William Taylor has been sending a fine lot of sweet peas to L. H. Kyrk.

WHITE FLY ON LETTUCE.

I am troubled with a little insect, something like a white fly, which works mostly on lettuce. Will you tell me what this is and how to get rid of it? I fumigate with tobacco stems twice a week, but this does not seem to affect the fly. C. H.—Ill.

Your undoubtedly have the real white fly, which is a bad pest on tomatoes, lettuce and some flower crops. Nicotine fumigations are of little avail in fighting it. The only certain remedy is hydrocyanic acid gas. The formula for this has often been given in The Review. Remember that this gas is a most deadly one and use extreme care when employing it. It is an inexpensive and valuable fumigant, clearing out all forms of insect life, and, when properly used, will not harm such crops as tomatoes and lettuce. It is much more liable to cause damage in a high than a low temperature.

C. W.

TOMATOES FOR SPRING CROP.

I should like to grow tomatoes to follow lettuce in the spring, but I have not had much success with them the last two years. Any information will be appreciated, as to the kind of soil, the varieties to grow and the training. Should the tomatoes be grown in boxes, to confine the roots and so hasten fruitfulness? I have some Lorillard started and at present the plants are about two inches high. Are they all right for spring growing? H. B.—Ohio.

For spring planting, tomatoes succeed best in solid beds. In late fall and in winter they fruit much better in a greatly restricted root run. For a spring crop give them soil which has been well manured with rotted cow or horse manure. Also, feed with liquid manure when the crop is well set. Train the plants erect to single stems. This necessitates rubbing off all side growths or laterals. Five or six good bunches of fruit are sufficient for plants to carry. Pinch the tops out when you have the requisite number.

Lorillard is still a fairly good forcing tomato, but there are others that are much better. There is nothing better than Comet. Other good sorts are Carter's Sunrise, Stirling Castle, Early Jewel and Lister's Prolific. Place your plants eighteen inches apart in the rows and allow eighteen to twenty inches between the rows, with wider paths at intervals. The Lorillard you have will be all right for a spring crop. Public notice is hereby given that Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., offer for registration the orchids mentioned below. Any person objecting to the use of the proposed names or registration is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Cattleya Percivaliana Aurora—Flowers very large and of fine shape. Sepals and petals rosy lavender. Lip large and flat, of same color as sepals and petals, with a small dark purple blotch in the center surrounded with orange yellow and purple veins radiating from the throat and extending well forward toward the edges.

Cattleya Percivaliana Spectabilis—Flowers handsome and well proportioned, five and one-half to six inches across, with purplish lilac sepals and petals. Lip large and showy, with the middle lobe of darkest purple bordered by a broad band of purplish lilac.

Cattleya Percivaliana Resplendens—Flowers six inches and more across. Sepals and petals purple lilac. Lip of intense purple margined with rosy lilac.

Cattleya Percivaliana Stanley Ranger—A very large and finely shaped variety with flowers measuring over six inches across. Sepals and petals purplish lilac. Lip very broad and flat, rose and dark purple with a broad fringe of lilac.

Cattleya Percivaliana Superba—Flowers five to five and one-half inches across, of good shape. Sepals and petals rosy purple. Lip dark purple rose and crimson blended with orange yellow, crimson and purple toward the throat.

Cattleya Percivaliana Grandiflora—Flowers six inches across. Sepals and petals rose purple. Lip large, rose and dark purple with orange yellow throat suffused with crimson.

Cattleya Percivaliana Gigantea—Flowers over six inches across, of fine shape. Sepals and petals reddish lilac. Lip dark purple with rose purple, margined with rosy lilac.

Cattleya Percivaliana Expanse—Flowers six inches and more across. Sepals and petals of a pleasing light rosy lilac. Lip rather flat and spreading two inches across, purple and rose purple with a broad margin of rosy lilac.

Cattleya Percivaliana Atropurpurea—Flowers reddish purple all over except the lip, which is deep purple.

Cattleya Percivaliana Oreol—Flowers of fine shape, five inches across. Sepals and petals rose purple. The greater part of the lip is orange yellow, veined with crimson, with a blotch of crimson purple in the center.

Note: In completing the registration of one of the new cannas registered by the Conard & Jones Co., one of the varieties was mentioned as Wyoming. The correct name is Windmar.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

MAKING THE MOST OF OUR CHANCES

Retailers who recall that Opportunity wears a long and pendulous forelock, but is extremely bald behind, will now make preparations for St. Valentine's day the same as though stock had been abundant this month. There will be plenty of flowers in February. Get ready now to sell them.

HAT flowers have been scarce in January is no sign there will be any shortage for St. Valentine's day. Quite the contrary, in fact. Given half-way decent weather, all the growers who went off crop around Christmas, or before, will be on again early in February. Then, too, there are the spring flowers, the sweet peas, freesia, jonquils, daffodils, tulips and others that come in heavily at this season. All these will be along as usual for St. Valentine's trade.

Get Ready Now.

If a florist has had more trouble getting stock than getting orders thus far in 1916, it is no sign it will be so forever. In fact, the general shortage of cut flowers in the last month indicates the opposite condition when crops come on again. There will be a splendid opportunity for profit available to the man who has planned in advance to take advantage of it.

St. Valentine's day will be the first and best of these chances.

Next to Mothers' day, St. Valentine's day has put more money into the pockets of the trade than anything The Review ever has exploited.

Just by way of refreshing memories, it may be well to look back to January 30, 1913, when The Review published a St. Valentine's Day Number in which it was conspicuously stated: "The purpose of this issue is to get 10,000 florists each to do at least a little something to attract the attention of the public to the appropriateness of flowers for use as valentines." That was the real beginning of St. Valentine's as a special flower day.

Perhaps that St. Valentine's Number of The Review fell short of its purpose to get 10,000 florists to advertise flowers for use as valentines, but the results really were surprisingly good. Hundreds took up the suggestions, with great success. Again in 1914 attention was called to the opportunity, many recruits joining the ranks of the pushers, while last year literally thousands lent their assistance. The way sales have jumped is a matter of common knowledge.

So far in 1916 retailers have made scarcely any attempt to get business. Stock has been too scarce. So the purpose of this article is to emphasize the fact that a change in market condition is due—that stock will almost certainly be plentiful by St. Valentine's day—that now is the time to prepare to advertise "For a Valentine, Send Her Flowers."

Don't let the St. Valentine's day sales fall behind for lack of realization that there will be plenty of flowers to sell.

Plan the Publicity.

Pretty nearly everyone in the trade realizes that the St. Valentine's day business, which has increased many fold in the last three years, like the Mothers' day business, has come as the direct result of advertising by retail florists. It shows how publicity pays.

Of course there are innumerable ways to advertise—the one way practically every retailer uses is the show window—but advertising by any method is of one of two kinds:

One kind is designed to enable the advertiser to increase his share of the business resulting from an established demand; it makes its chief appeal through price. The other kind is designed to awaken additional demand; it makes its chief appeal to sentiment.

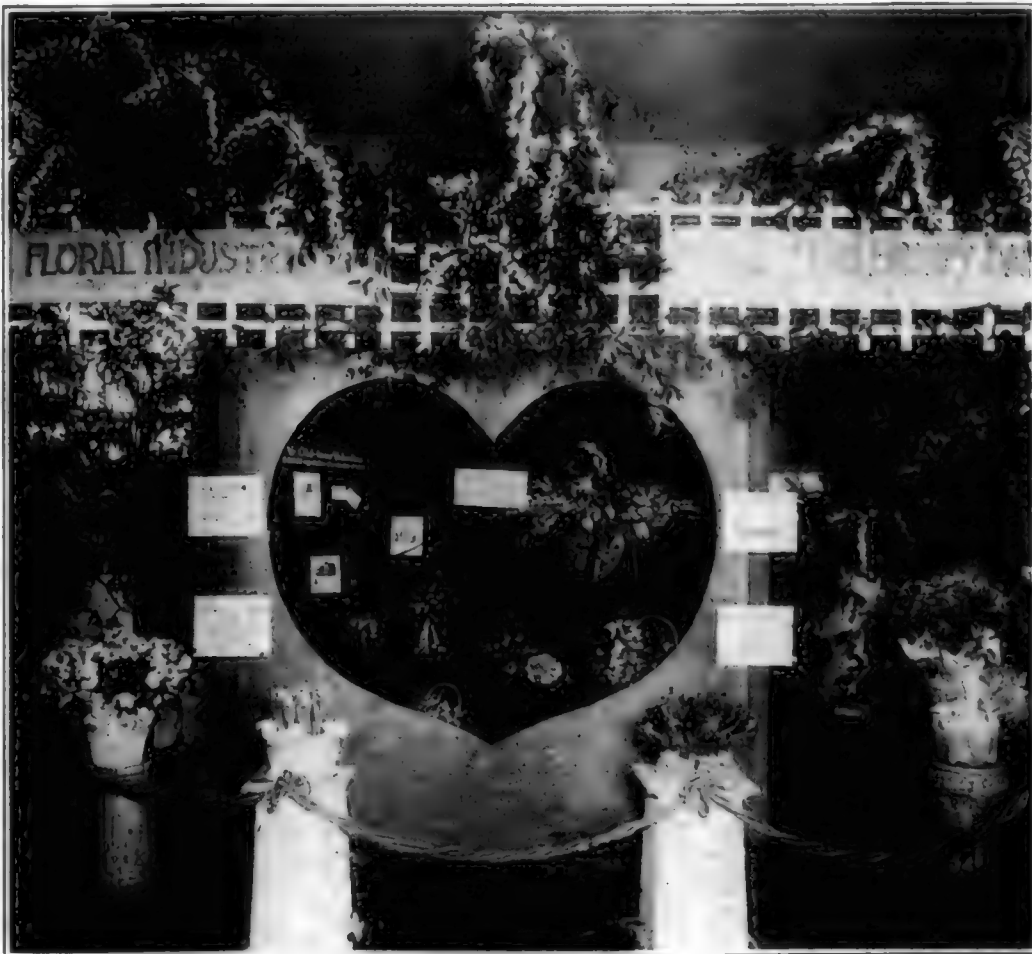

The More the Merrier.

Of course the florist who buys newspaper space does so with the idea of increasing his own individual sales, but advertising the appropriateness of flowers for use as valentines has the effect of stimulating business for all dealers in flowers—everyone in the trade reaps a benefit. Consequently, no florist should discourage a competitor's publicity efforts. Each helps the other.

Put one retailer's ad in a newspaper and results will be slow for him, while not felt at all in other stores. But let a dozen retailers in a city each use space in a paper and the showing is so strong it attracts wide attention; each gets far greater results than as though he advertised alone, and those who do not advertise at all get a share of the new demand the publicity creates.

Out of this situation developed the suggestion made in The Review's St. Valentine's Day Number in 1913, for coöperative advertising — advertising paid for by subscriptions from a number of florists in a community. This suggestion has been taken up in many cities and used many times with splendid effect, for experience has shown that, in the average city of a dozen or more florists, better results are to be had by pooling the funds than by individual advertising. Also, it has been shown that the best success has been had where the florists, instead of acting for themselves, called in the advertising manager of the leading paper, put the business in his hands and followed his advice. One of the things the newspaper man tries to avoid is getting his advertisers "scrapping" among themselves, as a cut price war such as frequently results where each uses a separate space usually results in quickly knocking the profit out of the business and so stopping the advertising. No advertising man worth trusting advocates cut prices; he prefers to work on quality at profitable prices, so he won't have to hunt a new job next day.

Some Last Year's Ads.

In this issue of The Review a number of last year's St. Valentine's day ads are reproduced, each much reduced in size. Several of these were used by Chicago retailers and give an excellent idea of the several ways of going at it. There also are some examples from smaller cities.

As illustrating the cooperative method, two ads are shown, both from not large cities. Referring to the one from Bloomington, Ill., A. Washburn & Sons wrote:

"This is the ad the Bloomington florists took for two days in one of our local papers, at an expense of $80. The results were most gratifying and brought a largely increased business.

"We read with interest the items relating to the selling end of the business and consider it one of the important parts of the paper. With the immense ranges of glass going up, it would seem that the problem which confronts the trade is one of selling rather than of production."

In speaking of the ad used at Topeka, W. A. Bolinger, of The Rosery, said:

"We are enclosing a copy of a half-page advertisement run by local florists in the Topeka Daily Capital. Four re-among the retailers went as far as a joint display at a bazaar that chanced to be running at the time. A picture of the booth is reproduced on page 15. The arrangement might easily be adapted to a show window.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW PLANS.

The National Flower Show committee held a 2-day meeting at Philadelphia, January 11 and 12, at which practically all the details of the show were completed. As a result of this meeting a radical change in the general layout of the show is presented. The bugbear of the committee—lack of floor space—has been removed rather unexpectedly through arrangements with the Automobile Association of Philadelphia, which has just held a most successful show in Convention hall, Phila-tailers and two wholesalers (whose names do not appear in the copy) equally divided the cost. The illustrations were furnished by the newspaper and the typographical arrangement made by them. The copy at the top was 'borrowed' from an article in The Review of January 21 and the verse below was once used, with the exception of a few words changed by necessity, by an eastern florist."

The Topeka ad is reproduced as an example of how not to do it. The illustrations are inappropriate for the purpose, all right, perhaps, for a clothier's ad but no good for flowers. It would be better to omit the cuts if they do not fit the goods to be advertised and rely on good, readable type display.

Show Window Effects.

If a florist feels he is not in a position to use newspaper space or to send out printed matter to his mailing list, he can at least trim his show window. The red heart-shaped boxes are indispensable in the store and with them alone a suggestion of St. Valentine's day can be given the window. Every store can do at least that much.

delphia, the building which is to house the National Flower Show, March 25 to April 2. As everyone who has visited the building knows, the irregular floor presents problems in the staging of exhibits likely to prove bothersome and, in addition, render the extensive stage area valueless for the chief purposes of the show.

The Automobile Association solved these problems most heroically by installing a complete, removable floor, which provided an even and almost level surface from the entrance to the extreme rear of the stage.

Through a contract made by the National Flower Show committee with the Automobile Association this floor has been secured for the use of the National Flower Show, and a certain shortage of space for exhibits has been obviated. Many other conditions which in the nature of them were causing the committee trouble are now so improved that the show can be installed without a hitch.

Secretary Young is greatly elated over the new order of things. Prospective exhibitors in the trade section who could not adapt themselves to conditions can now be suited to their complete satisfaction. Others whose exhibits were not of a nature to harmonize with the exhibits displayed to general view, and consequently were not considered when the shortage of space became apparent, may now find quarters well adapted to requirements. In fact, all reasonable demands can be met, and the secretary's discretionary powers are greatly increased.

The contract also covers the heating system put in by the Automobile Association and the decorations as used for the automobile show.

The committee was in session almost constantly throughout the two days, the sessions being held at the executive office of the National Flower Show in the Widener building, at Convention hall and at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. Those present were: Chairman George Asmus, of Chicago; Secretary John Young, of New York; Treasurer Wm. F. Kasting, of Buffalo, N. Y.; C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J.; Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass.; Patrick Welch, of Boston; William P. Craig, of Philadelphia. Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa., was absent through illness. A meeting of the committee in conjunction with the local executive committee was held on the second day, at which many of the chairmen of the local committees were present, including S. S. Pennock, Louis Burk, Wm. Kleinheinz, W. F. Therkindson and A. A. Niessen, secretary of the local committee.

At Convention hall the committee apportioned a large space to the left of the main entrance for the use of the ladies of the Garden Club of Philadelphia as a tea room, where light refreshments can be enjoyed and dancing indulged in. In connection will be a counter for the sale of flowers. The profits from both tea garden and flower stand will go to some charity or charities to be determined upon later. An adjoining space was set apart for use as a booth for headquarters for the Garden Club of America. The southwest corner of the building was set apart for a lecture room and excellent quarters for the aquarium exhibits were located beneath the stage.

At the meeting of the two committees favorable reports were forthcoming from the chairmen of the local committees. Mr. Kleinheinz announced the donation of several special premiums; Mr. Craig announced that Louis Burk had donated $300 to cover the two prizes in the commercial section for a group of orchid plants in variety. He also reported additional prizes amounting to $300 as coming through M. C. Wright. Secretary Young reported the donation of $100 from the Alphanu Humus Co. as a special prize.

The great interest already shown by the Philadelphia people in the show is most gratifying and augurs well for a splendid success. John Young, Sec'y.

Oconomowoc, Wis.—"Sylvester, Florist," is the unchanged name, but the firm now is Otto Sylvester & Sons. The boys will help increase the business, which has prospered steadily.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Next week, January 26 and 27, we will hold our twenty-fifth annual convention in St. Louis, Mo. Everything points to a successful convention and exhibition. If you have not planned to attend, you will miss a pleasant and profitable meeting. Delegations are coming from as far as New England and several thousands of blooms are entered from that section.

There will be a discussion on fertilizers for carnations which it would pay you to travel many miles to hear. Come and contribute your mite. That is not all there will be, either. The banquet will be held Thursday evening.

The exhibition and business sessions will be held at the Planters' hotel. Make your hotel reservations early.

The secretary will leave home Monday night. All mail that will not reach Indianapolis by Monday morning should be addressed in care of Planters' hotel, St. Louis, Mo. A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

SPLIT CALYXES.

Will you kindly tell me what is the most common cause of the splitting of carnations? I had no trouble with splits until the fireman was changed, a little over a month ago. I was running the carnation houses at a night temperature of 48 to 52 degrees, with excellent results, but since the owner put the new man on the job I have found three or four dozen splits every morning.

The required temperatures are marked on labels and placed beside the thermometers, but the fireman disregards these altogether and runs the houses at 54 to 57 degrees; once or twice the temperature rose to 62 degrees. I have made several complaints to the owner, but he refuses to interfere. Two of the houses run north and south and two of them east and west, but the trouble seems to be as great in one place as another. The owner says the difference in the light has something to do with the splitting, but I fail to see any proof of the correctness of his idea. T. E.—Mo.

Of course, every proprietor considers that he has the right to run his place according to his own ideas, but this is the first instance I have heard of, where the night man is allowed to run the temperatures according to his own judgment. There may be other conditions, not stated in your letter, to cause the splitting, but there can be no question about the variable temperature at least contributing its share. At this time of year, when all growth is likely to be soft, any check followed by a spurt in growth will cause splitting of the calyxes, and extreme changes in temperature will cause just such checks and spurts.

A COMPLICATION OF DISEASES.

Will you please tell us how the treatment we are giving our carnations can be improved? We have a few benches of the plants, mostly Light Pink Enchantress. and hard-wooded cuttings. Some of the cuttings were affected at that time with rust and stigmonose. Some of them were left in the sand for eight weeks or more before being potted, and then were poorly rooted.

We planted in the field in April, from 2-inch and 3-inch pots. We irrigated and cultivated, and also sprayed with Bordeaux mixture several times before housing. The plants had made a fair growth. We benched them in July, in extremely hot weather, using new soil prepared early in the spring, with about one-fourth cow manure. In benching, our grower used a flatiron, firming the soil solidly about the roots. This, we think, may have damaged the small and tender roots. Still, the plants took hold and grew nicely, and we lost only a few in each bench. Now, however, the plants are uneven and our cut of blooms is late, with short and weak stems, and affected with stigmonose, dry spot and dry stem, especially in the center of the benches.

We have sprayed often since benching, using Bordeaux mixture about every two weeks. We have given them three applications of slaked lime, and a thin sprinkling of wood ashes to stiffen the stems. We have kept them as much as possible on the dry side. We have cultivated the top soil and given them as much ventilation as possible, running the temperature between 48 and 50 degrees at night and at 70 to 75 degrees on bright days. We believe, as does our present grower, that the trouble started in the cutting bench, through the carelessness of our former grower.

Would you advise us to throw out the benches that are badly affected, and plant with lettuce, of which we should be able to take off possibly three benches at a wholesale price of 20 cents per pound, or plant with stock for Memorial day, of which we have never had enough? I. B. S.—Ore.

Judging by your letter, that grower of yours seems to have had some ideas all his own, about growing carnations. Nothing seems to have been done according to approved methods and one need not wonder why the results were unsatisfactory. Cuttings should not have been taken from badly diseased plants, and to leave them in the sand as long as eight weeks would ruin even good cuttings. Whether you tear out some of the beds and replant with other crops, is a question you will have to decide for yourself. If the plants are now making a good growth, it might pay you to leave them in. But if they are doing poorly, your beds may pay better in lettuce.

I am inclined to the opinion that you have overdone the spraying and the lime and wood ashes, and that might be partly the cause of the poor showing made. Instead of giving any more of these, go over the plants and pick off all the spotted leaves. Cut away any dried up branches or pull out the plants so affected. Then give the beds a light mulch of fairly well rotted cow manure. They will probably respond to this little feeding and you will soon see an improvement. A half inch of this mulch will be enough. When you propagate, select your cuttings carefully. Take cuttings of uniform size and in about the same stage of growth. Pot as soon as rooted and shift along as needed until planting-out time.

and this is the proper time to plant to get a fine crop of strings in the late fall.

Adiantums.

As the crop of fronds is removed from such adiantums as cuneatum and Croweanum, keep the plants dry at the root for two or three weeks. This rest is helpful. Necessary repotting should be done before starting the plants up into growth again. For compost at potting time use fibrous loam and sand with some leaf-mold added. Also, about one-sixth of the whole compost can be well decayed and screened cow manure. The popular idea that adiantums will not stand this manure in the soil is all nonsense. Try a batch with and without it and prove the difference. When well rooted, soakings of liquid cow manure are also beneficial.

Cyclamens.

Keep the young cyclamen seedlings in flats well stirred. They will be making good growth now and should be potted before they become crowded. Use a soil containing equal parts of leaf-mold and loam, with a little fine, decayed manure and sand added. Keep the plants on a light, sunny bench in a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. A spraying overhead on all bright days will be found advantageous. Old plants which are coming into flower and which it is desired to hold back as late as possible should be kept in a cold, airy house; 40 to 45 degrees at night will suit them.

Pennisetums.

The pennisetums are invaluable grasses for edging subtropical beds. If you did not carry any old plants over, which can be torn to pieces and repotted at this season, sow a flat or pan of seeds now. They germinate readily and, when of sufficient size to handle, can be potted off singly into 2½-inch or 3-inch pots in good loam which contains a little old manure. These will make good plants by bedding out time.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Pearson-McCarty Co. is reported to have discontinued business.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Spiræas.

It is as yet much too early to start any of the spiræas, or astilbes, for Easter, which comes at an unusually late date this season, but a few may be started in a brisk heat at any time. Even if the plants do not sell, the flowers will be useful for cutting and in funeral designs work in to good advantage. It is a little early to start such pink varieties as Queen Alexandra and Peach Blossom, but Gladstone and other white varieties can be started now.

Give the spiræas plenty of heat and moisture. Spread them out well as they grow and remember that the foliage is susceptible to injury from fumigation.

The pink varieties have generally arrived in quite bad condition from abroad this season, some varieties being worthless, so anyone who has carried over old stock in the field for a couple of seasons will find these clumps useful this season. We can grow just as fine spiræas as the Hollanders if we merely plant them out on good ground. Clumps will often be found so large at the end of this period that they can be divided into three clumps, each large enough for 6-inch or 7-inch pots.

Smilax.

Smilax is an old favorite not grown to anything like the extent of former years. It always sells well, however, when it appears on the markets. Sow the seeds now in pans in a warm, moist house. Pot off singly and later shift into 3½-inch or 4-inch pots. By the early part of June the seedlings will be excellent plants to set out in the beds

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Executive Committee Meetings.

An executive committee meeting of the American Rose Society was held at New York January 10, at which time the proofs of the Annual for 1915 were carefully gone over. The book is to be illustrated in colors and to go to every member of the Rose Society.

The prizes agreed upon for the exhibits of rose gardens at the coming exhibition at Philadelphia are: $500, first prize; $300, second prize; $200, third prize. Forty-one special prizes have been offered in addition to the regular schedule.

A motion will be brought before the annual meeting as to what action is best to take in regard to renaming roses with established names, and the committee upon the standard length of rose stems for commercial sale also will

WOULD GROW HIS OWN ROSES.

What varieties of roses would you advise a beginner to plant, and at what time should they be planted and how far apart? How many blooms can I reasonably expect per hundred plants the first season, and when is a rose plant at its prime? How many years are the plants profitable? Will roses, or any other plants, do well if planted in solid beds raised about eighteen inches, with heating pipes run close to the bed in the walk? In making this kind of bed, should it be filled in with cinders or with gravel? I planned to use about four inches of cinders, a layer of old manure and about six inches of good, sandy garden soil. Will it be necessary to feed the plants the first year? In the following years, what will be the best fertilizer to use? C. F.—Ohio.

A few good roses are Killarney, White Killarney, Ophelia, Sunburst and Hadley or Richmond. The planting can be done in May or June; sometimes it is done even later. Some growers prefer solid beds, others raised benches. As you are a beginner, I think it would pay you to buy your roses and devote your benches to carnations, chrysanthemums or some crops more likely to give you satisfaction. I do not think it pays small growers to bother with greenhouse roses. It is far better to buy them from the big specialists. C. W.

PROBABLY NEED FEEDING.

Please give us some information as to whether it would be advisable to feed our Killarney roses with liquid cow manure and cut out the blind wood, of which there is a considerable quantity. We also wish to know how many roses each plant should average per year. X. Y. Z.—W. Va.

If Killarneys or their sports have any quantity of blind wood, it is usually a sign that the plants are starved. Killarneys are heavy growers, needing frequent feeding, and liquid manure is one of the best means of feeding them, especially at this time of year. As a rule, if Killarneys are given enough feed, these blind shoots will start a new shoot from the second eye and give a good flower. So, unless the blind shoots are long and weak, I would only cut the top eye off. Treated in this way, the plants will give a crop at the time when roses are scarcest. A Killarney plant, if grown right, should report at the approaching annual meeting.

The next meeting of the executive committee will be held February 1, at Philadelphia, to go into the details of preparation for the annual show.

Premiums at Philadelphia.

AMERICAN VERSUS EUROPEAN.

Referring to Mr. Meader's letter in The Review for January 6, and Mr. Hendrickson's article in the issue of January 13, I trust I am not presuming too much to ask you to publish a few facts from personal experience, which I think may be of interest to your readers.

For several years prior to 1912 my export trade was nearly, if not quite, as large as my domestic trade, but more mixtures were required than named varieties, except such as Ceres, Augusta, Mme. Monneret, etc., and it was largely price and not quality which moved the immense quantities which were shipped.

In 1909 the tariff upon gladiolus bulbs was reduced from twenty-five per cent ad valorem to 50 cents per thousand, specific, with the result that foreigners began to pick up planting stock of American varieties where they could do so, realizing that with their cheap labor and practically no tariff, they could grow and return to us at prices below the reach of American growers, who were handicapped by the difference in the cost of labor.

In the meantime scores of gladiolus specialists sprang up about the country, who seem impressed with the idea that the growing of this bulb and flower will be "easy money," and, on the lookout for stock, they are attracted by the low prices quoted by foreign growers, and buy and offer for sale. This accounts for the seeming advance in popularity of foreign varieties.

I dare say, however, that if all gladiolus bulbs imported during the last three or five years could be tabulated under their proper names it would be found that the bulk of the stock was of American origin.

It is beyond contradiction that the best foreign varieties have come from V. Lemoine & Sons and Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., from whom at no time within my recollection could large quantities of their best varieties be purchased, hence could not be catalogued to any great extent in this country.

With comparatively few exceptions, varieties from other countries are lacking in one or more valuable attributes which contribute to a perfect and profitable plant. The one variety which has held its own is Brenchleyensis and this is on account of its earliness and color. For many years I have purchased European novelties as they have been introduced and I have failed to find that they have anything on the American breeders, taking into consideration beauty, form, foliage, strength and vitality, freeness from and resistance to disease. Arthur Cowee.

THE CONVENTION GARDEN.

The accompanying illustration shows the convention garden in contemplation at Houston, Tex., for the S. A. F. meeting in August, 1916, and was prepared from a drawing by George H. Kessler, landscape architect, who is doing work at Houston this year and whose services are available for the success of the garden.

A part of the drawing is designated as city blocks, to show the relative distance from the Rice hotel convention hall to the garden.

Those in the trade who wish to exhibit in the garden may address C. W. Brock or J. S. Kerr, Houston, Tex., or Secretary John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

January 15 the cold wave came out of the west, but prices remained steady, the only severe break being in orchids, which were selling at 25 cents each for selected stock. Roses were lower during the week, because of light demand and rain. The lower grades of roses have been most in demand and prices for these were strong, with no surplus for the bargain hunters. Prima Donna, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia are much in favor in millionaire row.

Carnations dropped during the week to 3 cents and advanced again January 15 to 5 cents. There seemed to be an abundance of them in the market, however, and lower prices are again anticipated. Lilies hold at 10 cents and valley at 4 cents for the selects. Gardenias are lower and so are the Paper Whites. Tulips, freesia and Golden Spurs are in good supply, with light demand. Daisies, pansies, lilac, wallflower, sweet peas, forget-me-not and all other seasonable flowers are sufficient in quantity. Violets are more abundant and lower in price.

Various Notes.

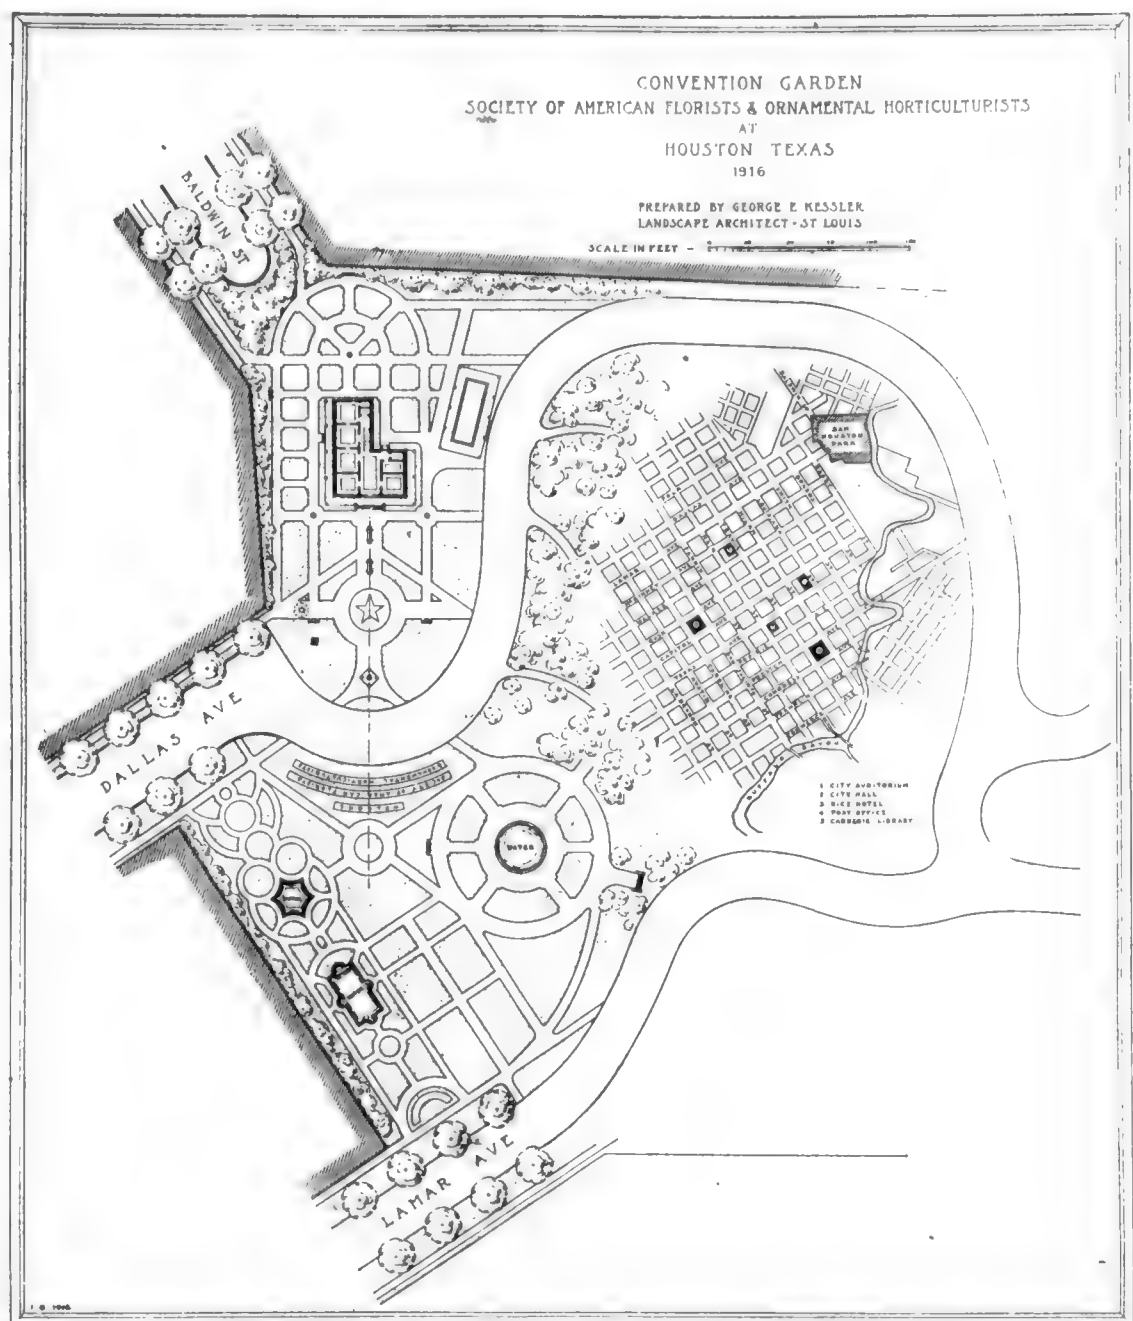

Adam Trepel, buyer for C. C. Trepel and manager of the retail store on West Twenty-eighth street, is ill with the grip. Thomas Martin, head salesman on the Traendly & Schenck force, is suffering from the same disease and Mr. Volkman, manager of Macy's flower department, is another victim. H. C. Riedel has been among the absentees because of the epidemic of colds.

Mrs. J. V. Phillips, of Brooklyn, is seriously ill.

George W. Chadwick, the Brooklyn wholesaler, is on the sick list.

Maurice Fuld delivered his three-hour lecture on perennials last week at Scranton, Pa.

A. J. Guttman will attend the carnation convention at St. Louis next week, with several exhibits.

The Houston Convention Garden is Ready for Planting.

J. K. Allen, who has been quite ill for some time, has recovered. The trade's sympathy is extended him in the loss of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Towle, of Paterson.

Woodrow & Marketos are remodeling their store at 37 West Twenty-eighth street. The landscape contracts already booked insure a busy spring season.

January 18 J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, lectured here before the Rumson Garden Club.

There will be a dozen or so New Yorkers at the annual dinner of the Morris County Gardeners' Society, at Madison, N. J., January 27. The committee in charge of the affair is Wm. Duckham, C. H. Totty and Arthur Herrington, each of whom classes as a New Yorker.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. is re-decorating and refitting its auction rooms for the first spring sale of nursery stock, March 14.

Among those who are to attend the St. Louis carnation convention from this section will be Eugene Dailedouze, of Brooklyn.

The stork called again last week on Angelo Dentale, Young & Nugent's salesman, and left another boy.

A. Herrington, of Madison, has recovered from a severe attack of grip and will lecture January 26, on the iris, before the International Garden Club, at 16 East Seventy-ninth street.

Joseph Trepel's annual ball for his employees and friends, held January 16, was a fine success. The attendance was large, the decorations were elaborate and the dinner and music were of the best.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has leased another five-story building, at 52 Vesey street, adjoining its present location. This will make three buildings occupied by the concern, one devoted to the seed business, the other two to the plant auction department.

Herman Weiss is no longer connected with the wholesale house of D. S. Arnold & Co., Inc. The business will be under the direct supervision of J. C. Arnold, treasurer, and H. W. Thomas, secretary.

Visitors.

Thomas Roland and Patrick Welch were over from Boston last week and Benj. Hammond was down from Beacon, attending a meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., was in the city last week, attending a special meeting of the American Dahlia Society, of which he is president. Messrs. Duthie, Stillman, Popp, Dick and Lane also were present.

Other visitors last week included: Thomas Page, gardener for W. H. Walker, Great Barrington, Mass.; Thomas Proctor, superintendent of the R. W. Paterson estate, Lenox, Mass.; J. Horace McFarland, horticultural printer, Harrisburg, Pa.; Joseph Margolis, of H. M. Robinson & Co., Boston.

Bowling.

The local bowlers made the following scores January 13:

Player.	1st	2d	3d
W. H. Siebrecht.....	144	137	152
C. W. Scott.....	160	150	151
P. Jacobson.....	150	142	149
H. C. Riedel.....	138	154	193
J. Miesem.....	148	155	161
P. J. Smith.....	143	136	154

The club anticipates some match games with other horticultural societies during the balance of the season.

J. Austin Shaw.

PITTSBURGH.The Market.

Pittsburgh is in the midst of a blizzard, with the thermometer registering zero in the city and 10 degrees below zero at Bakerstown. The quantity of stock is much short of the demand. Although the supply in most lines is equal to that of last year at this time, the unusual number of funerals is causing a shortage in everything. The wholesale house has no use for cooling boxes, as everything is cleaned out early in the day. The prices have held up well since New Year's.

Horticultural Society.

The Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania held its first meeting for this year in the East Liberty branch of the Carnegie library, with President David Fraser in the chair. James Scott, of Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. Y., was the speaker of the evening. He gave an interesting talk on the subject of organization for floricultural men. He also spoke on chrysanthemums, indicating the important points of difference between plants grown for commercial and for exhibition purposes. The latter subject was especially appropriate, as the society has decided to hold a chrysanthemum exhibition next fall.

Certificates were issued for the following exhibits: To Mr. McNamara, superintendent of the Pittsburgh Country Club grounds, for celery, beets, carrots and onions; to Mr. Murphy, of Sewickley Heights, for cyclamen; to Neil Forsyth, gardener at the J. J. Fisher estate, for Spiraea Venus; to Walter James, gardener for W. Henry Hilliard, for Farquhar's giant pink and white Primula Sinensis and Lorraine begonias; to Secretary Thomas Tyler, for orchids.

It was a splendid meeting. An invitation is extended to any and all friends to attend the next meeting.

Various Notes.

Geo. Marshall, of the McCallum Co., and Miss A. J. Thomas were married January 12 and left for Florida for an extended visit. They will be at home to their friends at their new home in Knoxville on their return.

Herman Orth, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., slipped off January 17 to take unto himself a wife, but did it so quietly that the boys have not found out her name.

Fred Burki has gone for an extended stay in Florida. He just missed this cold snap, which was just the kind of thing that he wanted to miss.

Samuel McClements has just returned from Atlantic City, where he went to recuperate after an extremely busy holiday season. He says Atlantic City is "such a quiet, restful place."

Frank Stafford, of the Randolph & McClements force, is still confined to his home. He has been ill since New Year's. Miss McKinley, of the same firm, has also been ill since New Year's. Clarke.

FAHRENHEIT OR CENTIGRADE?

A bill has been introduced in Congress to abolish the Fahrenheit thermometer scale, now in general use in this country, and substitute therefor the centigrade scale as the standard in United States government publications.

As the proposed change has an important bearing on the work of the Weather Bureau and many lines of commercial and other activities, the bureau desires to obtain an expression of opinion as to desirability of the change from the standpoint of business requirements.

With this end in view the Weather Bureau has sent to business firms a list of questions, asking whether business men favor the change; whether the use of the centigrade scale would affect business favorably or unfavorably, and whether the change would involve additional expense to business men. Answers to the questions should be sent to the Weather Bureau, Whitehall building, 17 Battery place, New York city.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

A. H. Woeppel, of Corning, N. Y., is ever ready to extend the glad hand to the traveling salesman. Just now Old King Sol would receive an extra welcome. Business was excellent, with a shortage in carnations but an abundance of plants. The cyclamen is superb.

W. A. Wettlin, of Hornell, N. Y., has just finished a handsome bungalow, warranted by a most profitable season. "Our stocks of asparagus, cyclamens, cinerarias and dracenas will be up to our high standard," remarked Mr. Wettlin.

The United States Cut Flower Co., of Elmira, N. Y., reports a banner season and an excellent crop coming on. Superintendent Richard King expects to represent the establishment at the Philadelphia show with some choice stock.

J. G. Barrett, of Troy, N. Y., has been busy with funeral work. Some splendid designs in standing crosses and wreaths on bases were noted.

Sambrook Bros., of Troy, find the additional space in the new store welcome, especially with the steady increase in business. George Sambrook was delighted with his tour of the western continent last summer and marveled at the progress of our craftsmen. John Sambrook has the sympathy of his friends in the loss of a splendid son. The young man was home on a vacation from Cornell, where he was studying landscape work, when he was stricken with diphtheria, which carried him off quickly.

Alfred Goldring, of Cobleskill, N. Y., says one of his most profitable crops is Bougainvillea Sanderiana, planted at a north wall of a house. It blooms freely and continuously and is fine for bouquets. It is valuable for the man who grows for his own trade.

Joseph Traudt, of Canajoharie, N. Y., was an interested guest at the annual supper of the Albany Florists' Club and caused some of the boys to open their eyes when he spoke of the business transacted at the home of the Beechnut products. W. M.

BALTIMORE.The Market.

Almost an entire week of cloudy weather had the effect of keeping the supply of stock still short of the demand. Roses, especially the short and medium grades, were in good demand, but longer stock was only salable after the supply of other sizes had been exhausted. Carnations are still in short crop, with everything in sight bought up. Valley is none too plentiful, but the demand is only fair, the high price no doubt causing the use of other flowers where a substitution can be made. Lilies, both callas and Easter, were sold up well, owing to the heavy demand for funeral work. Single and double violets were only in fair demand, with plenty in sight. The weather has had its effect on peas, by causing many to drop the buds, and those coming in are not of extra good quality; neither is the supply any too large. Cattleyas have been moving slowly, but gardenias have been selling well. Some bulbous stock is coming in and is bought up eagerly. Freesia is more plentiful and sells well, but stock in general is scarce, business good and prices rather high.

Various Notes.

The Leo Niessen Co. had some of the first jonquils of the season this week.

John McCormick has been marketing some fine bouvardia and some good Roman hyacinths.

P. B. Welsh this week shipped the first tulips of the season to the Pen-nock-Meehan Co.

At the next club meeting, January 24, there will be a lecture, "Landscape Gardening," by F. G. Pratt.

The C. E. Akehurst Co. is cutting some fine carnations in the White Marsh greenhouses, the Enchantress and Mrs. Akehurst being specially worthy of mention. The recently installed auto truck is giving efficient service.

F. W. O. Schmitz, of Prince Bay, N. Y., was a visitor during the week. W. F. E.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

John A. Bopp, who recently purchased the flower store of Fred Ruppert, at Cumberland, Md., reports that business is unusually good. Mr. Bopp has not been active in the retail end of the business for a number of years, having devoted most of his time to the wholesale.

That 1916 will be a good year for the florists is the opinion of John Paul, of Cumberland. His business has taken wonderful strides during the last few months and is improving every day.

Mrs. W. F. Zane, of Wheeling, W. Va., was confined to her bed last week with a severe attack of the grip.

John Deickmann, of Elm Grove, W. Va., is one of the best rose growers in this section of the state. His Richmond roses are exceptionally fine.

John Hellstern, of Wheeling, W. Va., who has been on the sick list for about three months, now is recovering rapidly and is able to be about again.

Although Frank Seibert, of Wheeling, is no wagon builder, he can build a wagon that puts a smile on the face and a twinkle in the eye of his son.

A. Langhans' flower store at Wheeling is showing new creations in table decorations, new fish bowls and other novelties. Mr. Langhans finds an ever increasing demand for this sort of goods.

The Florists' Society of Knoxville, Tenn., at the Annual Midwinter Dinner, January 10.

George Stanley Wehrley, manager of the Virginia Flower Shop, is making a feature of the dollar box. He finds that this brings in the loose dollars which ordinarily would not be spent for flowers.

Albert Lash, of Warwood, W. Va., who recently completed a greenhouse, will add another to his range in the spring.

The H. Weber & Sons Co. stores in West Virginia, at Clarksburg and Fairmont, report an unusually good trade.

The Huntington Seed & Floral Co., which recently opened a store at Huntington, W. Va., has built a small greenhouse in the rear of its store.

B. Dudley, of the J. W. Dudley Sons Co., who should be an authority on business conditions in West Virginia, having three stores in West Virginia and one in Ohio, says that business this year is beyond expectations. Mr. Dudley last week visited his branch store at Huntington and the trade at Charleston.

W. T. U.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The Market.

Business last week was good and could not help it, for orders for funeral pieces were unusually numerous. Roses, carnations and Paper Whites were conspicuous by their absence—they were exceedingly scarce. Tulips and hyacinths have made their appearance. Flowering plants continue to enjoy a good demand.

Various Notes.

At the P. R. Quinlan greenhouses the men are cutting a good batch of roses. There is a bench of splendid calla lilies and a good lot of tulips coming into crop.

Charles Browne, who was rushed last week with funeral work, said it was almost impossible to buy roses or carnations.

The Baker Floral Co. is finding a ready sale for a fine lot of cyclamens.

There was a handsome display window consisting of cyclamen and azaleas at the Chester Harris store last week.

Jonquils and tulips were near the top of the list of the good sellers at the store of Henry Morris last week.

Out at the Peter Kay greenhouses the Gorgeous carnation held the center of the stage. All other stock is in first-class condition.

Alfred Bellamy, superintendent of the Oakwood cemetery, is busily engaged in preparations for the plant business this spring.

H. F. B.

THE KNOXVILLE DINNER.

The Knoxville Florists' Society held its midwinter banquet at the Atkin hotel January 10, and it proved to be one of the most enjoyable gatherings the florists of that city ever held. There were about fifty persons present, most of them members of the society. Dr. Sam Boyd, an honorary member, presided and did so well that he will probably be made permanent toastmaster. Among the guests were John Van Zonneveld, of Sassenheim, Holland, and Judge Robert P. Williams. Mr. Van Zonneveld spoke of business conditions in his country and in the United States. He stated that while business in the old country is suffering greatly from the effects of the war, the florist is still making a legitimate living, and that in the United States the florists' business is flourishing—as it never did before. Judge Williams spoke strongly on the value of coöperation and commended the Knoxville florists for the advancement made along this line. Prof. G. M. Bentley, a member of the Knoxville Florists' Society, and secretary of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, spoke in behalf of the state society and insisted on everyone who could possibly do so attending the state florists' meeting in Nashville January 24. He announced that R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., vice-president of the S. A. F., would be present and make an address. C. L. Baum and A. J. McNutt made interesting talks along kindred lines. Karl Baum gave an interesting lecture on his recent trip through the west. Brockway Crouch furnished some fine music with his violin.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Prices are unusually high and most flowers are scarce, particularly carnations. There are a few bulbous flowers to be had, among which are Paper Whites, Golden Spurs and the first freesias. Funeral work has been heavy and flowers have sold well despite the high prices.

Various Notes.

George Read, a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and a grower at the Peckham Floral Co. establishment at Fairhaven, has returned from his honeymoon.

Joseph V. Pierce & Co. have had a flower stand at the armory during the automobile show last week.

William H. Davenport has leased a new location at the corner of Purchase and Middle streets. Undoubtedly Mr. Davenport now has the best stand in the city.

Peter Murray, of Fairhaven, is doing a good deal of outdoor work in the way of trimming trees and shrubs.

Julius, the Florist, made some attractive bouquet novelties for the leap year dance held at the Wamsutta Club, January 14.

Manuel Sylvia reported a large quantity of funeral work last week.

Post & Gray report business as being good. A heavy week of funeral work kept them busy.

GIGANTEUM FOR EASTER.

I am a grower on a retail place and have a number of giganteum lilies that were potted November 1 and placed under a bench. January 1 I put them in another house on top of a bench and they are now six inches high and have a night temperature of 60 degrees. Do you think they will come too early for Easter, and, if so, will it hurt them to move them into a cooler house?

F. H. L.—Ind.

Your plants are not much too early. In order to be sure of their being in flower for Easter you want to see the buds so that they can be counted by March 15. Giganteums succeed far the best if allotted a temperature such as you are now giving yours from start to finish. I would prefer to leave the plants where they are until the buds are well advanced. You can open them in a somewhat lower temperature if this is found necessary, and when one or two flowers are open they can be kept in a comparatively low temperature.

WILL THRIVE IN SAME HOUSE.

Does Hittinger's Belmont lettuce require different treatment from Grand Rapids? H. B.—Ohio.

Hittinger's Belmont makes a solid head, while Grand Rapids produces more curly leaves and a much smaller head. Belmont succeeds well at 45 to 50 degrees at night, but should not go higher. Grand Rapids will do well in the same temperature, but seems to stand a little more heat and be improved thereby. C. W.

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

I should like to get some information in regard to the growing of tomatoes under glass, with particulars as to the temperature, the most profitable varieties to use, when to plant, how far apart to plant and the proper way of pruning. Also, please tell me the approximate yield during the season. R. F. G.—Ill.

Tomatoes may be planted over a long season under glass. For a Christmas crop, the seed must be sown about August 1. For a spring crop, which you probably have in mind, the seed can be sown now, while for a summer crop, to precede the outdoor one, the sowing may be done as late as March. Suitable winter varieties are Comet, Lister's Prolific, Carter's Sunrise and Best of All. For later work, Comet, Chalk's Early Jewel and Bonny Best are good.

If you prefer tomatoes of larger size, try Livingston's Stone. For winter and spring crops the smaller-fruited sorts are preferable.

A night temperature as near 60 degrees as possible should be given tomatoes. They must also have a dry atmosphere at all times. It is best to grow the plants to single stems, rubbing off all side growths or laterals as they appear. For a late spring or summer crop, the plants can go in rows eighteen to twenty inches apart, allowing the same space between the plants. Paths twenty-four to thirty inches wide should be left at intervals. The plants can be supported by cane stakes, but a better plan is to attach a piece of soft brown twine to each stem, fastening this to overhead wires running directly over the rows. As a rule it is best to pinch the plants after they have made five or six bunches of fruit. The weight of fruit per plant depends on the season and also on the kind of culture the plants get. It will vary from six to ten pounds per plant, sometimes more, but not infrequently less.

In winter the plants fruit best in a restricted root area, but after April they succeed better in solid beds and in ground that is well enriched. At this latter season, especially, they also need watering with liquid manure. The plants must be fumigated to keep aphids in check. For green or black fly tobacco extracts answer, but for white fly hydrocyanic acid gas is necessary. A cold, drafty and clammy atmosphere will develop mildew. It will not appear if you keep your house warm and dry. You cannot expect to make a complete success of tomato growing the first season. Do your best and try again. C. W.

OBITUARY

Henry Behrens.

The death of Henry Behrens, of Middletown, O., occurred January 12. Mr. Behrens was born in Germany and was 83 years of age. When only 17 years old he came to this country and found employment in greenhouses at Cincinnati. When he reached his majority he went to Middletown, O., and started in the florists' business for himself, continuing to be actively engaged in the business for nearly sixty years. When he was 80 he turned the business over to his son, Henry Behrens, Jr., who is continuing it. Another son, Theodore J. Behrens, was raised in the business and now is employed by the George Wittbold Co., Chicago. Two daughters also survive.

John Jacob Ehrhardt.

John Jacob Ehrhardt, for many years a florist of Brooklyn, N. Y., died January 12 after a brief illness at his home, 1953 Broadway. He was born in Brooklyn forty-nine years ago and is survived by his wife, two sons, Henry and William; two daughters, Charlotte and Mildred.

Alfred W. Baxter.

Alfred W. Baxter, a prominent florist of Waterloo, Ia., died suddenly January 4, at the home of friends, 139 Hoyt street, New York. Mr. Baxter was in New York on a visit when stricken. The remains were sent to Waterloo for interment. The deceased is survived by a stepson, E. A. McCullough.

Abner Branson.

Abner Branson, pioneer settler and nurseryman of New Sharon and Oskaloosa, Ia., died at Oskaloosa January 8, after several months of illness from cancer. Mr. Branson was 79 years of age and had been a resident of Iowa since 1853, coming to the Hawkeye state only seven years after it had been admitted to the Union. He at one time was president of the State Horticultural Society and had been an officer of the Iowa Nurserymen's Association.

During the latter years of his life Mr. Branson was totally blind, having lost his eyesight through an accident. His blindness, however, did not retard him in his work at the nursery. He is survived by four daughters.

W. B. Durie.

W. B. Durie, for many years doing a general florists' and nursery business at Rahway, N. J., while he was principal of a school in Jersey City, died January 16, aged 75 years.

Prof. Durie's venture into the florists' field was first as a recreation, but soon his two sons and his foreman and manager found enough local patronage to utilize all the stock that can be grown under 10,000 square feet of glass and on ten acres of scientifically cultivated land. He still was young mentally, and physically active, when he retired from pedagogy a few years ago, leaving a position at the head of a corps of seventy teachers, since which time he has devoted all his energies to the business. He has been a resident of Rahway for nearly fifty years and was widely esteemed. The sons will continue the business.

Albert McCullough.

Albert McCullough, one of the leading figures in the seed trade of the United States as well as in the business life of his home city, died January 13, at Christ hospital, Cincinnati, following an operation for an intestinal disease.

Mr. McCullough, born in 1851, was a native of Cincinnati, his paternal grandmother having been the first white girl to have set foot at that place. Upon the completion of his school career Mr. McCullough embarked in the seed business with his father, J. M. McCullough. When his father died Mr. McCullough and his brother, J. Charles, assumed charge of the business, but later the latter established the J. Charles McCullough Seed Co. Albert McCullough then incorporated the company of which he was the head at the time of his demise.

Although Mr. McCullough was principally known in the trade as a seedsman, his business included wholesale cut flowers and everything in the line of horticultural supplies for both the wholesale and retail trade. He was a pioneer member of the Society of American Florists and a charter member of the Cincinnati Florists' Society. His membership in the American Seed Trade Association dates from 1884, the second year of that organization's existence. He took great interest in its affairs and served as secretary-treasurer for three years, 1886 to 1889. In 1890, at the Saratoga meeting, he was elected president, and again at the Chicago meeting in 1900, the honor of two terms in the presidency never having been given any other man. For nearly a quarter of a century he was chairman of the association's membership committee and thus in large measure shaped the course of the seed trade's organized efforts. He became its first president when the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association was formed.

At the time of his death he was a director of the Fourth National Bank of Cincinnati. He formerly was president and a director of the Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of the nominating committee last year. He was a familiar figure at the affairs of the Queen City, Hyde Park Golf and Business Men's Clubs.

Surviving him are his widow, two daughters, Misses Ella M. and Josephine McCullough; a son, Harrie B. McCullough, who is secretary and treasurer of J. M. McCullough's Sons Co.; a brother, J. Charles McCullough, and one sister, Mrs. M. T. Drake, Palm Beach, Fla.

Funeral services were held at the residence on Cypress avenue, Pleasant Ridge, January 15, Revs. W. L. Schmalhorst and Gervaise Roughton officiating. There was a large attendance, including many members of the trade, and an elaborate showing of flowers sent as a tribute to his loyal friendship and sterling worth. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery.

MAMARONECK, N. Y.

The Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society held its first meeting of the new year in its home in the Isaac Hubbard hall, January 14. The principal features of the meeting were the installation of officers for the ensuing year and the competition for the prize offered by Mr. Grierson for the most meritorious exhibit. Thomas Ryan captured the prize with a fine vase of Carnation Pink Sensation. The color was good and the blooms were of unusual size. The thanks of the society were accorded the following exhibitors: James Stuart, Euphorbia jacquiniæflora; William Graham, Carnation Princess Dagmar, Violet Princess of Wales and Cauliflower Snowball, P. W. Popp, Narcissus Grand Soleil d'Or.

The officers of the society are: President, W. J. Sealey; vice-president, Owen A. Hunwick; secretary, J. B. McArdle; treasurer, Robert Williamson; corresponding secretary, P. W. Popp; executive committee, William Whitton, Oscar Addor, John T. Burns, Anton Peterson, Thomas Ryan.

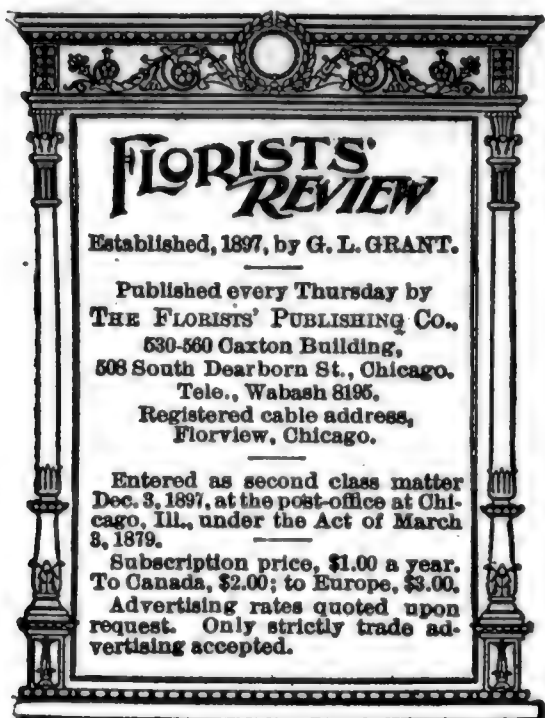

Resolutions on the death of George Lander, Jr., were adopted and ordered spread on the books. It was voted at this meeting to hold the annual summer and fall exhibition as in the past, location and dates of the exhibition to be decided upon later. A committee was appointed to arrange the details for the annual entertainment and dance. The date of this affair will be announced later, as well as the location of the hall. A communication was received from William Kleinheinz, of Ogontz, Pa., chairman of the exhibition committee of the National Flower Show which is to be held in Philadelphia in March. Mr. Kleinheinz makes an earnest plea for support and undoubtedly the society will be well represented at the show. A communication from the secretary of the coöperative committee of the National Association of Gardeners offered the members of the society copies of the splendid essays read at the convention of the association at Boston. The offer was unanimously accepted.

During recess Messrs. Stuart and Popp entertained the members with an account of the proceedings of the gardeners' convention. The next meeting will be held February 11. A sociable session is in order and a large attendance is expected.

Providence, R. I.—January 17 Crosswell Whittier shot and killed his sweetheart, Melissa M. Budlong, 22-year-old daughter of James A. Budlong, and then fired two bullets into his own head. He died several hours later at the Rhode Island hospital. The police believe jealousy the cause of the shooting. Both the Budlong and Whittier families are well known socially in Providence and Cranston. Mr. Budlong, father of the slain girl, is a member of the firm of James A. Budlong & Son, market gardeners and florists.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

F. R. PIERSON, president of the village of Tarrytown, N. Y., will be 61 years of age Saturday, January 22.

STRANGE what a difference a few weeks of good business makes. The trade never was more optimistic than now. The clouds have all rolled by.

ONE of the reasons why the price of flowers should be maintained all along the line is that the cost of labor is bound to advance in this trade as it is advancing in other trades.

FLORISTS are prone to forget that a sale is not complete until the money is in the till—that a purchase is not complete until the bill has been paid. Don't let your interest in growing, selling or making up result in neglect of office detail.

THE Classified ads in The Review show an increase each season, the number and space this January being nearly thirty per cent gain compared with a year ago. And, it should be remembered, each and every one is charged for at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line; none are printed free as a bonus to the advertiser who uses display space.

SUPPOSE every person in any way connected with the trade—grower, wholesaler, seedsman, plantsman, supply house, retailer—suppose each one puts up a big sign beginning February 7—a sign that all who see may read—saying this, and nothing more, "Let flowers be your valentine." Would it triple, or only double the demand that day? Think it over. Do your part.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

"WATCH YOUR STEP."

When certain florists subscribed to "the Review" and later found it was not the Florists' Review, as they thought, the Farmers' Review declined to refund the money, its manager, named Ellenbaum, stating, "The receipts are plain; it's the subscribers' lookout."

The Florists' Review does not do business on the Ellenbaum principle, but it warns its subscribers against paying money to strangers for its account.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

President MacRorie has appointed Thomas H. Joy, of Nashville, Tenn., state vice-president for Tennessee, in the place of C. W. Crouch, who resigned.

The following become members of the executive board by affiliation, as representatives of their respective organizations:

Henry Weston, Hempstead, N. Y., president of the New York Florists' Club.
S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, president of the American Rose Society.
Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., president of the American Carnation Society.
George Burton, Chestnut Hill, Pa., president of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia.
Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind., president of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

THE RIBBON MARKET.

Ribbons have come into such general use in the flower business that the trade will be interested in the following summary of the situation by an authority in the ribbon business:

"There is less unsold merchandise in first hands than at any time during the last decade; all stocks are cleaner than ever before; the value of goods woven is at least twenty-five per cent above the prices ruling three months ago; and the value of goods to be woven is subject to so many probable additional advances in the elements of cost that manufacturers are not yet sure of their figures.

"In this connection the trade should remember that during the low mark months of last year most ribbons were being sold at cost or even below. The recent advance, therefore, is partly a reinstating of values. In fact, all classes of merchandise are moving up to a normal profit-paying basis.

Ribbons are merely falling into line. There is none, however, who can say with authority that the spring of 1916 will bring ribbons into general use again and tax the mills to their full capacity as did the spring of 1914; but all believe that great improvement in demand is close at hand and that January buying will lift the market to a higher level of values than has been known for years and, if indications are correct, to a higher pitch of activity."

SENT TO SIX STATES.

It is one of the oddities of human nature that the man who can do business away from home, bringing outside money into his town, has a standing unattainable by means of even the best of service to his own community. So it has come about that orders from outside are everywhere specially welcome—and specially impressive.

Get yours by means of a classified ad in The Review. Like this:

The Review has entirely cleaned us out of tulip bulbs, our stock having been shipped into six different states as the result of the ad in The Review.—The Crest Nursery, Riddle & Peterson, proprietors, Piqua, O., January 5, 1916.

The man who can keep up a constant supply of good stock can do a steady mail-order business through classified ads in The Review. There seems to be no limit to the demand.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

So pronounced has the general scarcity in the Chicago market become that the daily papers are commenting on it. Wholesalers are still obliged to fill orders short, and a large number of them are confining their activities to their regular customers. The unusually high death rate continues, creating an abnormally large demand for stock for work. However, several of the larger growers say that the crisis in the market conditions has passed and that gradually increasing ease may be expected.

Beauties, which have been holding out during the last two weeks as the longest item on the market, are rapidly approaching their annual shortage. Already a marked scarcity is noted. Other roses continue as short as ever, but reports are reaching the market that several rose crops will be ready for cutting in the near future. It now is possible to supply most of those who can use the more costly grades; the scarcity is in the medium and, especially, the short stems.

Carnations, too, continue scarce, though an increase in the supply of white is in sight. Jonquils and tulips are rather more plentiful than they were, but so great is the general shortage and so voracious the demand, that this fact is scarcely noticed. Excellent sweet peas are reaching the market, but most of them are sold before they are well unpacked. Violets, Paper Whites and valley go in much the same way. The funeral work affords a sufficient outlet for Easter lilies. The demand for orchids is strong enough to keep the prices well up. Violets are the weakest feature of the market. There have been numerous losses through freezing en route from the east this week.

Galax and ferns continue the long items on the green goods list. Other

The Trade's Bankers.

The annual bank elections have just been held and there is an interesting sprinkling of trade names in the reports. The trade holds two bank presidencies, one vice-presidency and a number of directorships.

E. C. Amling was unanimously re-elected president of the State Bank of Oak Park.

Joseph J. Budlong was re-elected president of the Lake View Trust and Savings Bank, in which, it is said, he is the largest stockholder.

Albert F. Amling has been a director and vice-president of the Maywood State Bank for several years.

The name of Peter Reinberg appears in the lists of directors of two banks, one national, one state. The former is the Ravenswood National; the latter, the Lincoln Trust and Savings.

The Bowmanville National Bank has J. C. Vaughan as one of its directors.

Just a Suggestion.

There are five wholesale florists in the Lemoyne block, passed by all the north and west bound elevated trains, affording an unobstructed view to close to 300,000 passengers a day. Suppose these wholesalers "chipped in" a couple of dollars apiece and across the front of the building a big banner read for a week, "Let flowers be your valentine." How much would it increase the demand in the stores of their customers, the retailers throughout the city?

The Wabash avenue and Randolph street sides of the Atlas block both afford nearly as good an opportunity.

Various Notes.

Growers should be warned, say Erne & Klingel, that the express companies have given notice they will not entertain claims for frozen shipments unless the packages are wrapped on the outside.

George P. Hofle, of Norby & Hofle, Des Plaines, Ill., has gone to Iowa on a wedding trip.

NOTICE

While the present phenomenal scarcity continues, probably for the next two weeks, be sure to get in your orders early in the morning, or day before shipment is to be made; then we have a better chance to fill them from our own Growers' stock. If, however, your order arrives after our supply has been exhausted we will not turn you away without stock, unless all Chicago is sold out.

Pekarek, of the California Floral Co., 3402 West Twenty-sixth street, took first prize for his successful impersonation of a Chinaman.

At Maywood the Weiss & Meyer Co. has six houses of Beauties and will make no change in its planting this year. Instead of investing the Christmas profit in new glass, as many will do, this concern will put in a new watering system during the approaching summer.

The extent to which the retail business has developed, and the attention to detail involved, is indicated by the statement that for the last two years A. Lange has at all times had from forty to fifty names on his payroll.

It is the idea of N. J. Wietor that Killarney Brilliant will give an increasingly good account of itself; he believes the disseminator overpropagated it and weakened the stock. In support of his contention he points to young plants in the establishment of Wietor Bros., much stronger than the original plants.

A new plan case, with a capacity of 2,000 drawings, has been installed in the office of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

A mezzanine to be used for the storage of shipping boxes has been built in the north wing of the J. A. Budlong salesroom. The architect and builder is Roswell Schupp.

not have power to hold C. L. Washburn to his fireside. On the contrary, it stimulated him to make a thorough inspection of the Bassett & Washburn greenhouses, in the course of which he walked from Greggs to Hinsdale, Ill.

Space recently vacated in the building at the rear of the office of the Raedlein Basket Co. brings an opportunity long sought by this concern. As soon as possible Curt Raedlein will move the basket makers into these new quarters.

Thanks to a particularly rugged constitution, John Poehlmann, president of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., is gaining ground, though not yet strong enough to sit up. He is, however, well enough to see friends who call at the north side German hospital.

The authorities in charge of supplies for the allied armies in Europe, in looking about for some one capable of handling the water supply in such a manner as to assure the soldiers of chemically pure water, selected Cass L. Kennicott, of Chicago, one-time city chemist, and a cousin of H. B. Kennicott, of Kennicott Bros. Co., as the logical man. Mr. Kennicott has not determined whether or not he will accept the position.

Bentley has returned to the city more than ever enthusiastic over the Shawyer rose. So well satisfied is he with this variety that he will add another house of it, dropping a house of Killarney Brilliant to make room.

F. H. Gelderman has returned from a trip to Washington with a badly smashed hand. The injury is the result of getting that member caught in the door of a Pullman car. Mr. Gelderman, who is manager of L. Baumann & Co., went to the national capital on business connected with importations for his concern and while there attended the Pan-American reception at the White House.

Alterations in the supply department of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. have resulted in moving the closed-in office to the right front and the building of a room in the left front for the accommodation of ribbon supplies.

Victor Young is justly proud of his first job of decorating since he opened his own store, at 1239 North Clark street. For several years he has done the decorating for the annual dinner and dance given by the Butchers and Candlestick Makers, an exclusive society organization. This year's decoration consisted of the two large ball-rooms and fifty tables at the Germania club.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The opening day of the week, Thursday, January 13, was the third day of mild rain. Its effect on the market was trying. Business slackened and the buyers felt that now was the time to lower the unusually high prices. These prices were more apparent on the poorer grades of stock than on the better grades. The stock that everybody could use was high—out of proportion to the fancy stock that few wanted. Carnations fell a point; roses sold slowly in some quarters. January 14 and 15 saw a rush that came with the clear, cold weather, putting the market back where it was the week before. Carnations regained lost ground. Both carnations and roses were short of the demand. The extremely cold weather that followed kept the market at a high level, with only a few weaklings. Gardenias, violets and cattleyas were all dull, with light demand and low prices. It was extremely odd to find buyers who were unable to obtain white carnations or short-stemmed white roses taking gardenias as substitutes. Daffodils are eagerly sought, freesia is selling well and tulips are improving. Besides the yellow and white tulips, we now have a few of the orange Couronne d'Or. Easter lilies and callas are scarce and high. Daisies, both yellow and white, are in fair demand. Poinsettia is completely over, after a wonderfully good season. Nearly all the peas now offered are of the Spencer type; the early blooming or ordinary varieties are less and less grown. White lilac is in demand. Greens are becoming scarcer.

National Flower Show Plans.

Wednesday, January 12, saw a great meeting of the National Flower Show committee at its headquarters in the Widener building. Every out-of-town member of the committee was present. To meet them, some fifty of the local committeemen gathered. One great step in advance was made, a step that overshadowed all the others in importance. This was the leasing of the new floor, the heating apparatus and the decorations left in Convention hall by the automobile show. The price paid for these advantages was $2,500. The new floor alone is said to have cost the automobile show $6,000. Against this liability the committee has already leased these improvements to John Wanamaker for one night for $500. There are further plans, not yet completed, that are expected to reduce the cost of the improvements for the National Flower Show. This arrangement supersedes the proposed plan of heating the building by a vacuum expert. The national committee praises the work of the local committees, saying that the show arrangements are in a remarkably good shape at this time.

The Florex Gardens.

Visitors to the greenhouses at North Wales unite in their praise of the work of Raymond Mayhew. It is clear that the president shares this view, for he pats Mr. Mayhew on the back, remarking cheerfully that he is a good boy. There is an air of growing about the place that is encouraging at this season; things are doing well. There are changes at the Florex Gardens since a year ago that are of general interest. Roses are replacing carnations to a marked degree. Grafted roses are not so popular as of yore. Prima Donna rose is being pushed and it is responding to the pushing. Snapdragon is becoming an important side crop and is looking extremely well.

Various Notes.

Ira Keen is believed to be slated to succeed Alfred B. Cartledge, Jr., as buyer for Pennock Bros.

Clarence E. Keyser spoke before the Germantown Horticultural Society January 10, on "Work of the Horticulturists in Landscape Gardening," in the library at Vernon Park.

Milton H. Bickley will erect a greenhouse 60x350 on his place near Chester, Pa. Mr. Bickley is a new man in the business, whose enthusiasm is rapidly bringing him to the front. It is understood the house will be planted to carnations.

M. J. Callahan is doing a fine business in his handsome West Philadelphia shop. He is quick and artistic, two qualities that take with flower-lovers.

H. Bayersdorfer says that he will have a wonderful lot of novelties in a few days. With 150 men in the factories and in the store he says the goods will be forthcoming.

Mrs. J. Max Nitzschke is assisting her husband in pushing the interests of the Forrest Flower Shop.

Myers & Samtman will erect a greenhouse 63x300 on their place at Wyndmoor, near Chestnut Hill. It will be of steel and cypress truss construction. The Lord & Burnham Co. has the contract. This company will install its improved ventilating apparatus, which raises the sash with six turns and closes it on a cushion without a jar. This house is nine feet wider than the size the company usually builds, in order to fill the lot evenly. It is Myers & Samtman's first truss house, planned so that the posts shall come on the walks and not interfere with the steel cars that will bring in and remove the soil. The new house will be planted to American Beauties.

Bernard Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., says that the January business so far is the largest in the history of this house.

Recent visitors included George Asmus, of Chicago; Samuel McClements, of Randolph & McClements, Pittsburgh, Pa.; William F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; David Grillbortzer, Alexandria, Va.; Patrick Welch, of Boston, Mass.; Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J.; D. M. The Market.

There was a considerable change in market conditions last week. Stock of all kinds, with the exception of double violets and orchids, was scarce and prices were correspondingly high. Carnations jumped from $4 to $6 per hundred and there were not enough of them to go around. The greatest scarcity is in the lighter colors and these are in large demand. White and pink roses of all varieties form a considerable shortage. Prices are ranging from $6 to $15 and dealers find it difficult to get adequate supplies of the better qualities. While there is a good quantity of Radiance coming in, the demand is so heavy as to cause an early clean-up. Mock is selling well. This flower is in good condition and is bringing top prices in the various grades. Amer-little sale for them as yet. They are not of good quality at present.

Various Notes.

Fred Burki, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was a visitor during the week, stopping over while en route to Florida points, where he will spend the next three or four weeks, or, as he said, possibly more if he likes it. During his short stay in Washington he motored over to Anacostia, where he looked over the greenhouses of the Gude Bros. Co., and expressed himself as highly pleased with the trip. He stated that the stock he examined was good for this time of the year. Other visitors were C. W. Tolman, of Bangor, Me., and George W. Evenden, of Williamsport, Pa. Joseph Goudy, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, made one of his periodical visits to the local stores.

Miss J. Ballinger, manager of the Z. D. Blackistone store, is again on the job, following a week's absence. Miss Ballinger was suffering from an attack of the grip.

George H. Cooke had a fine decoration at Richmond last week, on the occasion of a reception at the executive mansion. Large quantities of American Beauty and long-stemmed Radiance roses, orchids and other high-grade flowers were used in the work. Mr. Cooke superintended the work in person and added the many novelty features to the decoration of which he is a past master.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade continues brisk and funeral work is heavy. Stock is scarce. Roses are cleaned up daily, as well as carnations. American Beauties have some demand, but their quality is poor. Paper Whites have a good call for funeral pieces. Valley, lilies, Roman hyacinths and lilacs are not sufficient for the demand. Yellow jonquils are having a good call, but the supply is short. Calla and Easter lilies are short. There is a good sale for blooming plants, such as azaleas, cyclamens, primulas and lilacs.

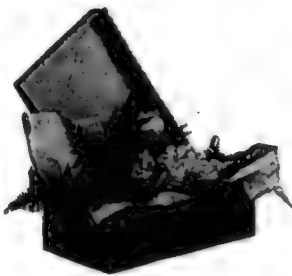

Various Notes.

Alfred Pahud, Sr., has taken a position as plantsman with the Bertermann Bros. Co.

"Sprinkleproof" Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., of New York, made a short stop at Indianapolis last week.

Secretary Baur, of the American Carnation Society, is organizing a party to go to the carnation convention at St. Louis next week. Mr. Baur states

The monthly meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of J. Staack, but owing to the extremely cold weather the attendance was small. In the absence of President Bills, C. Sorensen, vice-president for Moline, called the meeting to order. Because of the poor representation at the meeting it was decided to call all committees on the Illinois state show, to be held March 7 and 8, to meet at Mr. Staack's office January 18. R. M. C. Rohlf was added to the show publicity committee. J. Staack, C. O. E. Boehm and L. Stapp were appointed a committee to arrange a list of topics for monthly meeting discussions. The next regular meeting will be held at the home of the secretary, Bettendorf, Ia. William Goos, Sec'y.

The Market.

Last week saw the appearance of the first bulbous stock of the season, outside of Paper Whites. All the growers in the neighborhood have large quantities of bulbs for both early forcing and the Easter trade. In two or three weeks a considerable quantity of such stock probably will appear, and from that time on it will make a better showing from week to week. The demand for Paper Whites continues, and many growers who planted but few of these bulbs this year, owing to the glut in the market last year, wish they had put in a larger supply.

Carnations and roses are a little cheaper than they were a week ago, but the quality is not what it ought to be and the prices are still higher than usual. There continues to be an unusually large amount of cloudy weather, and to this fact the slowness of the growth of the carnations is attributed. This undoubtedly affects the roses also. Azaleas are selling well and there is a good demand for Boston ferns. Asparagus took a jump last week. Valley and violets are still high-priced and have a tendency to short stems. Orchids are plentiful and are reasonable in price. Potted cyclamens form part of the window display of many stores. Potted begonias in flower also are plentiful. There continues to be an unusually large amount of funeral work, as a result of the epidemic of grip and pneumonia. General business conditions are encouraging and this should mean a good business all through the season.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club will be held this week at the Krueger auditorium. Officers will be elected for the ensuing year, and plans for the ladies' night program will probably be announced.

There was a special sale of Paper Whites at the flower department of Hahn & Co. last week at 50 cents a dozen. A year ago they were selling for 29 cents a dozen. Business is reported as excellent and the outlook is encouraging.

Henry Hornecker, of East Orange, states that he is surprised at the way business has kept up since the holiday season. He reports an unusually large sale of baskets and a fine demand for azaleas.

J. H. Harvey has been ill with the grip at his home for more than a week.

F. A. Kuehn states that there is a large amount of funeral work at present.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

A slight improvement in the supply of flowers was noticeable last week, but the quantity did not reach the normal. As a result prices have maintained a slightly higher level than usual. There is but little relief in sight for the next few days. On the other hand, there has been a decided increase in the demand for decorations and funeral pieces. The deaths are unusually numerous. Roses and carnations, which are most in demand, are especially short.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Market conditions last week showed no improvement over those of the week previous. Stock remains scarce and it is next to impossible to take care of orders as they should be handled. The weather man decided that we were due for a cold spell and we got it to the extent of 15 degrees below zero. As the cold was preceded by rain, which turned into soft, heavy snow, the glass on the greenhouses has a coating of ice that goes a great way toward keeping the cold out. No trouble has been reported in this locality and things are moving nicely. The sun has come back, but does little good in increasing the supply of stock, on account of the extreme cold.

Roses remain quite scarce and the shorter grades and even the medium stock is cleaned out early each morning. Carnations have increased somewhat in supply, but continue to move at high prices. Conditions indicate that the present shortage will stay with us for some little time and relief from this state of affairs is still quite distant.

Various Notes.

Alfred Schiller was operated on for intestinal trouble January 13 at St. Joseph's hospital. It is reported that he is getting along nicely and will probably leave the hospital within three or four weeks.

Walter Holton, with the Holton & Hunkel Co., left work Saturday, January 15, to undergo an operation for stomach trouble. He has been ailing for some time and his friends all hope that this operation will bring him back to excellent health.

Richard Salm, of French & Salm, Union Grove, Wis., and Mr. Benke, of Loeffler & Benke, Watertown, were visitors last week. H. J. S.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Miss May S. Beach, daughter of James E. Beach, was married January 7 to Carl Dalgaard.

The Market.

The extremely cold weather of last week put the local market in such condition that the demand far exceeded the supply. All consignments were short of the usual quantity. The retailers had a busy week in funeral work and have not been able to get the desired stock in this market since the first of the year. The promised large crop of carnations right after the holidays did not come. While good quantities of carnations were received daily, the demand was such that all were cleaned out early each day, with the top price for extra fancy at 6 cents.

Roses are in short supply and advance orders have cleaned them up each morning. The quality is fine and prices are holding up to top notch. These conditions make it easy for the wholesaler to dispose of all stock in the bulb line, and Paper Whites, Romans, valley, freesias and lilies also clean up before the day is half over. The local growers say they need more bright weather. A week of it would change conditions greatly. Galax, asparagus and smilax were in extra demand last week.

Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club met January 13, in Odd Fellows' hall. The meeting was by far the largest ever held in this hall. The count at the opening of the meeting was seventy-five. President Bourdet presided, with all the other officers present. All the committees made reports, that of the Carnation Society meeting being the most interesting. J. F. Ammann responded by saying that the chairmen of the various committees were doing great work and the success of next week's meeting is assured.

The committee reported favorably on the applications for membership by Fred C. Weber, Jr., and Stephen Beer, and their election followed. The following florists made application for membership: Edwin Juengel, Fred G.
Grossart, L. P. Jensen, Carl Doerflinger, H. W. Endress, Richard Jaenicke and Albert Senger.

H. C. Irish introduced Prof. J. C.
Whitten, of the State University of Missouri, at Columbia, for a talk, which was most interesting to all the members. A vote of thanks was extended to Prof. Whitten. Treasurer
Smith reported the finances of the club in healthy condition. The question box again brought out interesting discussions at the close of the meeting. The next meeting will be held February 10.

Horticultural Society.

The Missouri State Horticultural So-members present. Mayor Kiel welcomed the members with a few well pointed remarks, which were responded to by Prof. J. C. Whitten, of the State University of Missouri, after which President T. C. Wilson delivered an ad-

Jacob Stocke, of St. Louis, on "The Vegetable Gardening Profession" and "The Forestry Problems for Missouri."

On Thursday the attendance was larger. The paper by W. W. Ohlweiler on "Hardy Ferns, Shrubs and Herbaceous Plants for the Missouri Home," and the paper by Adolph Jaenicke on "Novelties in Fruits and Flowers," were highly interesting. Frank A. Weber's paper on "Storing Fruits for Home Consumption" was also pleasing to the members. On Friday, the last day, L. A. Goodman's apple-judging demonstrations were among the interesting features.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, H. C. Irish, St. Louis; honorary vice-president, L. A. Goodman; vice-president, G. T. Tippen; second vice-president, A. D. Kilhan; secretary, H. S. Wayman, Princeton, Mo.; treasurer, W. T. Folurney, Marionville, Mo.

Miss Goodman, President Irish and Secretary Wayman were appointed a committee to select a state flower for Missouri. During the meeting there was a nice exhibition of apples grown in Missouri.

Various Notes.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle spent a pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred C. Weber, on Berlin avenue. The cold weather did not seem to have any terrors for the ladies, as all the members were present. Mrs. Theo. Miller will entertain the circle at next month's meeting.

The local seed houses are busy with their spring catalogues, which will be mailed out soon. Among these firms are the St. Louis Seed Co., the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. and C. Young & Sons Co. They report a splendid sale of fall and winter bulbs.

J. F. Ammann reports that everything is in readiness for the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, which will take place here January 26 and 27 at the Planters' hotel. Chairman W. C. Smith, of the exhibition committee, has his plans all ready.

Joseph Marx, representing the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., came into our midst last week after a long absence. He is a great favorite with the local trade.

Lechner Bros. had an exhibition of bulbs last week at the Planters' hotel during the meeting of the Missouri Horticultural Society and reported good business results from it.

C. Young & Sons Co. furnished the big floral decorations for the Imperial ball, which is a yearly event for the bon-ton society people. The company has had the decorations for this ball for a number of years and each year the display is becoming more elaborate.

The cold weather last week, with the temperature below zero, taxed the capacity of the boilers at the local greenhouses. Some of the smaller growers had a hard time keeping the frost out. A few consignments to the wholesale market came in frozen.

George Angermueller reports that his shipping trade in florists' supplies has kept up remarkably well since the first of the year.

Mrs. M. M. Ayres, former head of the Ayres Floral Co., made friendly calls on the trade last week. She has nothing at present to report as to her future plans, but admits being somewhat lost in not being able to handle flowers.

Windler's Flowers, on South Grand avenue, is doing a lot of street car advertising, from which good returns are received. The latest is a sign reading "Windler's Flowers are Love's Right Bowers. Grand and Shenandoah."

Max Herzog, the south end florist, had a bouquet to make last week which contained 500 carnations. With carnations up to 6 cents wholesale, he had a pretty good job on his hands.

letier, Charles Juengel and the Diener Floral Co., in the southern part of the city, report an exceedingly busy week in funeral orders and other lines of work.

The stork paid a visit to the home of John Connon, in Webster Groves, and left a fine baby girl just before Christmas. Last week Mr. Connon's mother-in-law, Mrs. Watson, died at his home.
The funeral took place Thursday, January 13.

The retail florists held a meeting at the Mission Inn Garden, January 17, and discussed the work before them for next week's American Carnation Society meeting, in which they are to play an important part.

A large number of suburban florists were seen at the wholesale market last week. Among them were J. F. Ammann, George Madsen, M. F. Widmer,
E. W. Guy, W. E. Ogle, W. J. Pilcher,
Joseph Hauser, A. S. Cerny, Hugo
Werner, Chas. Meyer, W. A. Rowe, A.
Jablonsky, Phil Goebel, Jr., W. J. Edwards, F. Vennemann, Gus Hartmann, John Connon and Edwin Denker.

Vincent Gorly and Marion Uhlschmidt, of the firm of Grimm & Gorly, are daily buyers at the wholesale market. They say the cold weather cut off a great deal of transient trade last week, but business was good, nevertheless.

The Market.

There is no great change to report in market conditions. Flowers continue scarce and prices in nearly all cases are as high as ever. The arrivals are not large, both carnations and roses being off crop with nearly all of the growers.
The demand is not brisk. The extremely high prices have seriously affected retail business and were it not for heavy calls for funeral work there would be little to buoy up the market. Neither growers nor retailers remember any such previous spell of scarcity and high prices in January. While prices are double or treble those of a year ago, many growers say their receipts are no larger. The rose men in this respect have an advantage over the carnationists.

The call for Beauties is not robust, owing to high prices. Specials make $50 per hundred, a small number of fancies going a trifle higher. Russell, Hadley, Richmond, Ophelia and Stanley make $6 to $25 per hundred. Yellows are not abundant and sell well, Sunburst being easily the best seller. Killarneys sell remarkably well, there being no trouble in getting $6 for short stems. Carnations continue to sell splendidly, the majority making $4 to $6, with fancies at $8. Violets remain about the same. Sweet peas vary from $1 to $2.50 per hundred, the latter being the price on the best Spencers.

Longiflorum lilies are in good supply and there are quite a few speciosums. Callas make $2 per dozen. Some fine mignonette is coming in. This sells at from $6 to $12 per hundred. The supply of bulbous flowers increases, but clean-ups so far have been easy. Daffodils have made $5 and $6, and tulips $4 per hundred. Paper Whites continue to make $3 to $4 per hundred. Pansies sell well, making $1 to $2 per hundred, but they are quite short-stemmed. Specialists should endeavor to breed a race with longer stems. Yellow marguerites vary from $2 to $4 per hundred and lily of the valley from $2 to $5. Stevia continues to sell well. Cattleyas are somewhat weaker, but gardenias are scarce. The best flowers easily make $6 per dozen. There is not much demand for green stock.

Club Meeting.

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club January 18 at Horticultural hall, the occasion being ladies' night and the annual installation of officers. The new officers all had something of an optimistic nature to say.

The committee on resolutions on the late W. Atlee Burpee, of Philadelphia, consisting of W. N. Craig, Duncan Finlayson and Robert Cameron, gave its report. The resolutions were adopted and ordered spread on the records.

President James Methven appointed the following committees for the current year: Exhibits—Kenneth Finlayson, chairman; Robert Cameron, James Wheeler, William Downs, S. J. Goddard, F. E. Palmer, T. H. Westwood, D. Finlayson, Julius Heurlin, Alex. McKay, Donald McKenzie, A. A. Pembroke, W. H. Judd, Eber Holmes, Charles Sander. Entertainment—George W. Hamer, chairman; W. J. of the club to be sound. The secretary's report showed the largest attendance in 1915 to have been 410, the smallest eighty-four, average 160. There were thirty-three new members admitted during the year. Four field days were held; at Waverley in March, the Arnold Arboretum in May, Newport in July and Lexington in September, with an average attendance of seventy-eight. During the year there were fifty-four exhibits made at meetings and two reports of highest merit, seven reports of merit, six cultural reports of merit, five honorable mentions and thirty-four votes of thanks were awarded.

An excellent entertainment was provided and much enjoyed, followed by a collation and dancing. Tickets for the banquet at the New American House, February 9, sold at a lively rate. It was announced that February 15 the annual carnation night of the club would be held. There was some discussion over the transportation to the Philadelphia show, also on the desirability of starting a class in floral art for the benefit of retailers' assistants.

Guttman & Raynor, New York, made a fine display of its novelties, including Mme. Paul Euler rose and Laura Weber and Peace carnations.

Nine new members were received during the evening and at the close the secretary announced that the attendance was 400 persons, a showing any florists' club could be proud of.

The Bowling League.

The standing of the league up to and including games played January 13 was as follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Score
Galvin's	38	10	1263
Flower Market	33	15	1232
Carbone's	31	17	1251
Zinn's	22	26	1286
Flower Exchange	19	29	1297
Robinson's	19	29	1265
Pansies	19	29	1179
McAlpine & McDonald	11	37	1217

Montgomery had the highest single and triple scores; 110 and 297, respectively.

Various Notes.

C. B. Johnson, of Woburn, who bought the Woburn establishment of Arthur Griffin, is one of our largest and most successful carnation specialists. His houses are always kept in perfect condition. Especially fine with him this season are Matchless, White Wonder, White Enchantress, Beacon, Benora, Ward and Pink Delight. Some 3-year-old plants of the last named are eye-openers. Alice is largely grown and well liked. Smaller batches are planted of several novelties. Many thousands of cuttings have already been potted and more recently planted in beds. Mr. Johnson has bought material for a new house, 46x225, and may decide to build another of similar size. All his flowers are handled by Moses Leibman at the wholesale flower market.

Newman S. Wax, the oldest of Boston's pioneer retailers, who formerly operated a store on Winter street, celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday January 11, and was remembered by a number of his confreres. Mr. Wax is in good health. His sons, Martin and Samuel Wax, constitute the well known firm of Wax Bros. Business at the Tremont street store continues good, although prevailing high prices are detrimental to business. Wax Bros. had a large decoration at the Beaconsfield, January 11, for the Parry-Knowlton wedding. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids and valley, the bridesmaid's was of pink orchids and the maid of honor carried Sunburst roses.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, are handling large quantities of Guernsey Golden Spur narcissi, La Reine, Yellow Prince and White Hawk tulips and Paper Whites. All these are in strong demand.

Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, handles as many high-grade carnations as anyone in the market and he has had no trouble of late in getting $8 per hundred for all his best blooms. He will go to the St. Louis convention and carry blooms of a number of his novelties, but owing to the long journey he is doubtful of scoring high on the exhibition tables.

Peter Hylan, of Randolph, this season is growing a new forcing tulip named Christmas Scarlet. It can be flowered for the holidays, but, unfortunately, lacks substance. He has quantities of Guernsey Golden Spurs, La Reine tulips and calendulas.

The Welch Bros. Co. reports a good demand for flowers, but an inability to secure sufficient stock to fill orders. The members consider the present high prices injurious to business.

P. J. Donahoe, of the Boston Rose Co., is receiving fine shipments of Beauty roses from Scarborough, N. Y. He says the high prices on Beauties hurt trade in them. From the Montgomery Co., Hadley, Mass., splendid Hadley, Russell, Sunburst and Ophelia are being received.

John McFarland is sending in fine shipments of valley, which are handled now at the Coöperative Market by Maurice Hambro for H. M. Robinson & Co.

H. W. Vose is still sending in some nice chrysanthemums, the only ones now seen here. He has a lot of excellent cinerarias of the large-flowered type.

J. Newman & Son, on Tremont street, are being kept unusually busy with funeral orders. There is a heavy increase here in the death roll as compared with that of a year ago.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report an exceptionally strong demand for flowers, but great difficulty in securing flowers to fill orders, though they have good shipments of carnations and roses daily.

W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, is cutting some splendid white snapdragons, Purity freesias and yellow marguerites. Carnations are doing remarkably well, especially Alice, Pink Delight, Beacon, Benora, Matchless and White Wonder.

At the Penn stores business is good. One of the windows at the Tremont street store January 18 was typically Scottish, in honor of Robert Burns, whose great celebration here comes January 25. They have received a great quantity of heather from Kilmarnock, Scotland, for distribution.

The sweet pea show, to be held at Bar Harbor, Me., in July, is already attracting attention here and a large representation from this section is planning to attend it.

Some beautiful acacias are features in Carbone's windows this week. Business in all departments here is reported as being exceptionally good.

Wheeler & Co., of Waban, have a grand show of Cattleya Trianae now. They have a splendid house of phalaenopsis. Quite a few of P. amabilis are now coming into bloom.

Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, Mass., delivered a splendid practical lecture at Horticultural hall January 15, on "Vegetables for Home and Exhibition." Mr. Jenkins is a noted vegetable grower and the large audience greatly appreciated his lecture.

Member Florists' T. D. Assn.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Stock cleaned up finely last week. As an addition to the regular business there was a great deal of good funeral work, owing to the death of several prominent citizens. There still is a scarcity of good roses, especially for shipping; much of the stock arriving is too fully developed for long distance work. Jonkheer J. L. Mock is becoming more and more of a favorite with the better class of retailers, while Hoosier Beauty and Hadley are extremely popular among the reds. Bulbous stock is coming in more freely and since the last writing white Roman hyacinths have appeared in quantity, helping out the valley situation. A number of fine carnations are in, all colors being included, while the violets were never better than this year. Doubles are not extra popular, but the beautiful Undine, wherever shown, is far and away ahead of Marie Louise, its flowers being larger and holding their fragrance longer. Cecile Brunner roses are not any too plentiful and the pretty yellow George Elger helps out for corsage bouquets.

Outside of these items, good cut flowers are scarce and retailers are looking more to plants for good window displays. This is a healthy sign, for it has long been a recognized fact that when customers can obtain good plants at reasonable prices they are going to keep on coming. Ferns have sold remarkably well in the larger sizes; also small made-up pans and baskets. In the principal cafes and hotels there is a disposition to use bright-flowering plants rather than the ubiquitous kentias, aspidistras and Boston ferns. This is also a good sign, as it familiarizes the public with the beauty of this class of stock and leads to inquiries about the plants and to subsequent business.

Greens continue plentiful and good in quality.

A slight frost January 11 and a rather heavier one January 12 led to a good deal of smudging among the citrus fruit growers, but apparently little damage was done. Heavy rains previously had soaked the ground well, but put a stop to balling operations in the nurseries; consequently, orders are piling up.

Various Notes.

The second quarterly smoker and banquet of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, held at the Bristol cafe the evening of January 8, proved a great success. About sixty participated in the excellent supper, after which a few speeches, many good stories and an occasional visit from the cabaret performers livened things up. There was a good representation from the Pasadena association, including President Shields, prince of story-tellers and king of good fellows. President W. W. Felgate made his first appearance and worthily upheld his reputation. Business is entirely dispensed with on these occasions, which are given over to good times. Unfortunately, the weather was stormy, which led to the absence of many well known persons, including Vice-president Taylor, but everyone enjoyed every minute of the time and some wanted to buy tickets for the April smoker, "lest they forget."

J. Dieterich has been confined to his bed with a severe cold and grip. At this writing he is out again, but looks far from well.

Walter Garbett, of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., says he is well pleased with the way business is panning out and thinks his change is going to be a good one. A new delivery car has been put on and is of great assistance in getting out rush orders.

Morris Goldenson has been a big buyer of azaleas, rhododendrons and other choice plants this season. Manager J. Gordon has made some elegant window displays of them, and says medium-priced plants make a cheaper and more lasting window display than cut flowers; also, they give greater satisfaction to customers.

Karl von Leekwick, a Belgian gardener who has been in the city for some time, is expecting his brother from Europe shortly. The latter's business has been ruined by the war and he and Karl are going to try their fortunes in business here.

The California Rose Co., of Pomona, is going to move from its old quarters to other acreage near the city limits, the present ground having been under roses for a long time and now being subdivided.

The L. A. Floral Co. is constantly enlarging its scope and shipping more and more stock to distant points. A constant study by the management to obtain the class of flowers that ship well and the utmost care and up-to-date methods of packing for long distance shipping account for this.

J. W. Wolters had an effective window decoration last week with Primula malacoides and Rhododendron Winter Cheer.

A greatly increased demand is noted by the Germain Seed & Plant Co. nursery department for small, bright plants of salvias. Bonfire and Glory of Stuttgart are two of the best sellers. Notwithstanding the late arrival of the early-flowering azaleas, this firm is entirely sold out of all but Easter varieties. Rhododendron Winter Cheer has been a fine seller this season from Christmas on. Sales in deciduous and citrus fruits are starting in well.

S. Murata & Co. report business improving, and the store is a busy place at all times. An exceptionally fine grade of Roman hyacinths is being handled here. Mr. Murata has also been handing the cigars around, the occasion being the arrival of a fine baby girl.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Last week's weather was a succession of storms and frosts, and counter trade was dull, but the monotony was relieved by a fair run of funeral work and a few good decorations. Several kinds of the more expensive flowers are in good supply, while the commoner varieties are scarce. Most of the orchid growers are getting a magnificent cut now, both of cattleya and phalaenopsis, with a few of the other varieties. White phalaenopsis, it is expected, will replace some of the valley, which is scarce and rapidly growing scarcer. Gardenias are coming in fairly well and their quality is fine. There are enough good American Beauty roses for all requirements, but the general cut of other roses is light, the Chinese and Japanese growers bringing in hardly anything. What does appear is of good average quality and cleans up closely. Many fine cut poinsettias still are arriving from Los Angeles and find more demand than might be expected. The run of funeral work has made Easter lilies a little scarce, but more of them are expected soon. Carnations are in limited supply, but the slow demand prevents much firmness in prices for ordinary stock. Good violets are scarce, most of those that escape frost being water-soaked. Spring bulbous stock is coming slowly. Freesias are doing unusually well in quality, but few are appearing; Paper Whites, daffodils, Chinese lilies, etc., are not yet much of a feature.

Greens of many kinds are plentiful. A good deal of eucalyptus is used, and acacia will be in bloom shortly. Some pussy willow has appeared, but it is not much used. A few nicely forced tulips and hyacinths in pots are seen, but no more of them are expected for a couple of weeks. Many of the late azaleas are arriving and sell rather well. There are a few rhododendrons, but nothing extra in quality. Many camellias are being sold and good cyclamen is plentiful. A few small hydrangeas are well received.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The principal feature of the meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, held January 8, was the annual election of officers. Eric James, who was nominated for president, expressed the desire to withdraw in favor of H. Plath, incumbent, but was prevailed upon to accept the office. The secretary cast the ballot of the society for Mr. James. The other officers are: Vice-president, Thomas Fenton; recording secretary, W. A. Hofinghoff; financial secretary, H. Maier; treasurer, J. A. Axell; trustee, John McLaren; librarian, Prof. Gregg; ushers, Messrs. Raymond and Pos. The vote on the flower show committee resulted in the election of Messrs. Plath, MacRorie, D. McLaren, Pelicano, Maier, Taylor, Kittellwell, Gill, Rossi and Podesta. The new officers were then formally installed, and the retiring president, Mr. Plath, was given a rising vote of thanks for his conscientious service to the society during his term of office.

Next in importance was the discussion of life membership, the committee, consisting of Messrs. MacRorie and James, reporting in favor of a fee of $25, of which $20 should go to a sinking fund. As members wanted further enlightenment as to what the fund was to "sink," that matter was referred back to the committee. A motion establishing life membership on payment of a fee of $25 was passed. President Daniel MacRorie, of the S. A. F., was the first to pay the life membership fee, putting it down immediately on passage of the motion.

An interesting announcement was made by Mr. James, to the effect that there are now 105 members of the society as members in good standing of the S. A. F., entitling the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society to official representation in the national body.

Action was taken with a view to increased social activity in the society for the new year. Owing to Mr. Keegan's success in getting up a smoker last month, it was suggested that he be authorized to repeat the performance every few months, and a committee was appointed to look into the matter. A committee was appointed to decide on the advisability of holding a dance in the near future.

The evening's exhibits included a hybrid odontoglossum in a 6-inch pot, awarded 99 points; four sprays of white phalaenopsis, by the MacRorie-McLaren Co., 98 points; three schizanthus plants, by F. Pelicano, 85 points.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society gave a social on the evening of January 6, at the home of Mrs. H. Plath, and not-

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

This column could be more appropriately headed "The Weather," for the worst storm since 1909 visited Portland last week and brought business nearly to a standstill. A snowfall of 9½ inches, accompanied by a strong wind which wafted low temperatures from the snow-capped Cascade mountains, caused the trouble. The official thermometer up to the time of this writing has registered a minimum of 16 degrees, but in various exposed sections a record of several degrees lower was unofficially reported. So far no damage has resulted, except to the fuel piles.

The severe weather brought on an epidemic of colds and croup, and the death rate was increased so that there was an unusually large quantity of funeral work, with no more than sufficient stock to meet it. Carnations, roses and valley were scarce. Violets could hardly be had at all, as the California crop was affected by frost and the local growers cut but few bunches. Paper Whites, Romans, freesias and other bulbous stock were fairly plentiful, or the shortage of blooms would have been serious.

Various Notes.

The preliminary plans for the 1916 festival center have been completed and accepted by the festival board of governors. Julius Dossche, of the committee on exhibitions of the Portland Floral Society, has been appointed assistant to J. O. Convill, who is in charge of the festival center.

Great satisfaction is expressed over the act of government officials in opening several thousand acres of land in the Cascade reservation for public use. The tract lies along the Columbia river canyon and is accessible from the Columbia highway. The act was the result of the efforts of the Portland Chamber of Commerce and it adds a large area of scenic territory to the tracts already donated to public uses in the same region. S. W. W.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Tacoma Florists' Club has elected the following officers for 1916: President, J. W. Milton; vice-president, A. Jacobson; secretary, George Seaverns; treasurer, A. A. Hinze; trustee, W. Miller. The bowling team expects to match its skill with the bowlers of the Spokane Florists' Club in the near future. There also will be a match between the five oldest members of the club and the five youngest members.

The Smith Floral Co. has moved to larger quarters on Broadway.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kandel, Cleveland, O.

THE death of Albert McCullough, one of the trade's best known members, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

WILLIAM J. FOSGATE, of Santa Clara, Cal., stopped in Chicago January 15 on his way home from a successful eastern trip.

JOHN T. WILCOX, formerly of Chicago, but now engaged in growing seeds near St. Anthony, Idaho, was a Chicago visitor this week.

ALL warehouses of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, are busy getting out onion set orders for the southern trade. J. C. Leonard went to Rhinelander, Wis., January 14.

THERE is nothing like carrying your home weather about with you. A. E. McKenzie, of Brandon, Manitoba, Can., came to Chicago last week on the crest of the cold wave.

JOSEPH J. BUDLONG, head of the L. A. Budlong Co., widely known onion set grower at Chicago, was reelected president and director of the Lake View Trust and Savings Bank at last week's annual meeting.

THE W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is reported to have purchased of E. S. Thompson, Benton Harbor, Mich., the stock of a new dahlia of the Alexis type, white with lavender center, which it has named Mrs. A. H. Goodwin. It is illustrated on the back cover of the Barnard catalogue. The understanding is that the stock of about 300 plants brought $250.

TENDERS TO THE GOVERNMENT.

The law requires the public opening of bids on government supplies, but with the tenders of the seeds to be used for the congressional distribution the custom is to give as little publicity as possible and still comply with the law. The fear apparently is that the market will be affected. The name of the bidder, the kind of seed and the price—so much is read and no more. The quantity offered is withheld. No one is permitted to examine the bids or to correct his notes.

The following is a stenographic record of the reading at Washington, January 11, 1916; prices being cents per pound unless otherwise stated, except on sweet corn, beans and peas, which are per bushel:

ARCHIAS SEED STORE, Box 34, SEDALIA, MO

You might ride all day long among our test plots, and would yet have as much again to see.

If any seed will grow, Sutton's will -- you can depend on High Germination and be sure they are True to Name.

YOU can depend on Sutton's Seeds, because Sutton & Sons test their seeds more exactly than anyone else. This is not a bragging statement. Those of you who have visited our plant at Reading, England, and ridden along our miles and miles of test plots, know all this full well.

From every single batch of seeds we receive we grow a test, to check up germination, quality and trueness to name.

It's an expensive method, but it's the only way our hundred years in the business have proven to us is sure.

Our 1916 catalogue contains 190 pages. In it you will find many fine, new things, and many things long known over here, but yet little known in your country.

If you are in search of unusual things to liven up your sales, send us 35c for the catalogue. We will return this amount to you with your first purchase of $5.00.

One of the recent purchases of the State Nursery Co. was an entire crop of Grimm alfalfa. Concerning this purchase, F. B. Carpenter, county agricultural agent, made the following statement: "The purchase by the State Nursery Co. of Dr. W. M. Williams' entire crop of 3,232 pounds of Grimm alfalfa seed brings the merit of this variety of alfalfa under wide discussion. In 1857 Wendelin Grimm brought over from the duchy of Baden, Germany, about twenty pounds of what he called 'everlasting clover.' He settled in Carver county, Minn., and in the spring of 1858 planted this seed. The variety proved unusually hardy, withstanding severe winters and long, dry spells better than any other lucerne or alfalfa. The hardness of the plant is due to its sunken crown and its extensive root system. For the last ten years the superiority of Grimm alfalfa has been well known, but the seed was difficult to obtain. At the present time Dr. W. M. We especially recommend this new forcer as the best yet introduced. For forcing under glass it has no equal; as a producer it stands alone at the top of the forcing list. The fruit is smooth, large, bright red. Ripens all over at once; an extremely early setter. The skin is firm, but still thin, making it an ideal shipper. Goetz's Best Yet is offered to all who desire something especially choice for greenhouse forcing. The success with Best Yet as a forcer with the greenhouse men will be most astonishing.

Montana State College before cutting, at threshing time, and after it was cleaned. Seed to be sealed must conform to high standards, both as to purity and germination. But three sacks of Dr. Williams' entire crop were rejected; the rest was registered and sealed November 29 and turned over to the State Nursery Co."

GRASS AND CLOVER.

"The situation in respect to grass and clover seed is so peculiar," says the Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co., "that an accurate idea as to quality cannot be obtained by purity and germination test alone. In many cases to say that seeds have ninety-nine per cent purity does not signify much, as often seeds with ninety-eight per cent purity are worth 1 to 2 cents per pound more than the seeds having ninety-nine per cent purity.

"Regarding the crops, with the exception of redtop and Kentucky blue grass seed, the crops of all seeds have been short and prices are ruling high. In regard to red clover, we have to look to Europe again for our supplies. The imported red clover this season comes mostly from France and Italy, and the seed is not alone handled in the eastern states, but considerable quantities of it also find their way to the far western sections. The fact of the matter is that there is little good American red clover seed in the market. The different natural grass seeds grown in Germany and Russia are, of course, extremely scarce. Only a few small lots came through.

Dreer's Reliable Flower Seeds

In spite of the war, we have received from many of our regular growers our usual supply of high-grade flower seeds and are ready to take care of your orders. We offer below a few items that it is well to sow early. For complete list see our Wholesale Catalogue, just issued. If you have not received one, we will be pleased to send a copy to any florist on request.

prices on several chemicals. "War, even on bugs, is a costly undertaking," remarked Benjamin Hammond, who has been fighting off an attack of the grip for several weeks.

The H. H. Gordinier & Sons Co., of Troy, N. Y., regards the seed situation as problematical, some of the growers finding it more profitable to grow a crop of rye than beans, for example. Like many other catalogue houses, this house is hedging on prices, but it is a difficult matter to have the customer appreciate the situation.

The Bingham Seed Co., of Bingham, N. Y., finds the season opening up well, although field seeds are high in price and seed corn only fair in quality. Manager N. L. Boyce remarked that instead of urging early

"VIA ROTTERDAM."

The greater part of the seeds, bulbs and plants from all of Europe now come, as the forwarders say in their advice of shipment, "via Rotterdam." The following are the trade items in the manifest of the Ryndam filed at the New York customhouse and are typical of the manifests of the boats from Holland:

American Express Co., 1297 barrels seed; 24 cases plants; 65 cases bulbs.
J. E. Bauer, 34 bags seed; 4 cases trees.
H. F. Darrow, 5 bags seed.
O. G. Hempstead & Son, 5 cases shrubs.
Peter Henderson & Co., 217 bags seed.
P. C. Kuyper & Co., 4 cases trees; 72 cases shrubs; 35 cases roots.
Lunham & Moore, 92 barrels seed.
McHutchison & Co., 4 cases trees.
Maltus & Ware, 5 cases bulbs.
M. D. T. Co., 5 cases roots.
O. F. Meyer, 9 cases roots.
J. Roehrs Co., 5 cases shrubs.
A. Rülker & Sons, 65 cases roots.
Stump & Walter Co., 25 cases roots.
Tice & Lynch, 51 bags seed.
J. W. Vandiver, 72 bags seed.
Vaughan's Seed Store, 1 case roots.
C. H. Wyman & Co., 18 cases bulbs.

The Dutch bulb consignments on board the Ryndam, probably the last of the 1915 crop, augmented the total number of cases received to date through New York to 35,384. The total for 1914 was 34,139.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Danish Seed Import, Minneapolis, Minn.—Wholesale list of Danish seeds, "for market gardeners and florists." This makes a trio of this season's catalogues from this company. The first was a 16-page list for seedsmen and dealers; the second was a 16-page preliminary list for gardeners and florists. The present list is illustrated and has been enlarged to twenty-four pages.

Ralph E. Huntington, Painesville, O.—An attractive, well printed catalogue of seeds, bulbs, plants and shrubs; forty-eight pages, illustrated, and bound in a tasteful green cover. Aster seeds have first place in the book, as being among the first in importance. Other specialties are dahlias, gladioli and perennials.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.—A carefully compiled, discriminative catalogue of this company's three specialties—roses, carnations and chrysanthemums. The usual effort evidently has been made to prepare, not an all-inclusive list, but a selection of the best in both novelties and standard varieties.

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.—General catalogue of seeds, particularly vegetable and farm seeds; which constitute the company's great specialty; also bulbs, vegetable plants and roots, strawberry plants, implements for garden and farm, fertilizers, insecticides, poultry supplies, plant tubs, window boxes, etc. Conspicuous among the seeds are some novelties in lettuce and tomatoes.

Wm. Henry Maule, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.—Thirty-ninth annual issue of "The Maule Seed Book," containing 176 good-sized pages, fully illustrated. The book starts with thirteen pages of vegetable specialties, "not all new sorts, but all deserving of careful attention." Then follows the general list of vegetable and farm seeds, occupying nearly 100 pages, and last are the flower seeds, bulbs, plants and nursery stock.

W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., Boston, England.—Trade catalogue of flower, vegetable and farm seeds; ninety large pages, clearly printed on enameled paper and excellently illustrated. For the first half of the book, or a little more, cream-tinted paper is used, and this section is entirely occupied by a list of novelties and specialties, among which sweet peas are prominent. At the end of the book, following the general lists, seed potatoes and root seeds are featured.

Black's Seeds, Albert Lea, Minn.—A catalogue of vegetable, flower, farm and grass seeds, poultry supplies, etc.; thirty-two pages, with no illustrations.

L. L. Olds Seed Co., Madison, Wis.—The receipt of a preliminary, 32-page catalogue from this company was announced in The Review of December 30. The present book contains ninety-six pages and lists an extensive stock of seeds, bulbs, plants, roots, fruit trees and other nursery stock, garden implements and miscellaneous supplies.

Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.—A comprehensive and accurate catalogue, offering practically complete assortments of stock in all three departments—seeds, plants and nursery stock; contains 192 pages, well illustrated. Nearly all lines of seed are well represented; there is a good list of roses; both greenhouse and outdoor plants are largely offered; the nursery department comprises extensive lists of both fruit-bearing and ornamental stock.

THE FLORISTS' MANUAL, by Wm. Scott, the greatest book ever written for florists, sent by The Review for $5.

PLEASE cut out my ad of privet, the 18 to 24-inch, as I am all sold out of that size. The Review certainly does bring the answers.—Charles L. Smith, Pennsgrove, N. J.

WE have disposed of nearly 100,000 carnation plants this spring. Please discontinue the ad in The Review. The plants were fine, but we think much of the success in moving so many of them was due to your valuable paper.—The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

THE death of Abner Branson, of New Sharon and Oskaloosa, Ia., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, was reelected a director of the big State Bank of Chicago at the annual meeting last week.

THE Elkon Nursery Co., Huntsville, Ala., is a new concern. The proprietor is E. Elkon, who until recently has been propagator in the ornamental and rose departments of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries. He also has been with the Chase Nursery Co., Chase, Ala., and Ellwanger & Barry, Rochester, N. Y. In starting in business for himself, his intention is to grow stock for the trade.

FLORIDA NURSERYMEN PROTEST.

A petition signed by a number of nurserymen of Florida has been sent to the state's plant board, protesting against the rules on canker-infected zones. The petition reads as follows:

We, the undersigned, growers of ornamental and flowering shrubs, plants, vines and non-citrus trees, present this petition to the plant board of the state of Florida for its earnest consideration and decision, as follows:

We ask an amendment or change in the rule in which a canker zone is declared, which will permit growers of ornamental and flowering shrubs, plants, vines and non-citrus trees who are in a zone the same privilege to sell their stock as the citrus fruit growers and market gardeners in the same zone enjoy; provided that their stock is found by the inspectors to be free from all injurious insects, pests and diseases.

In support of the above article we respectfully present for your consideration the following reasons:

That an undue hardship is placed on the nurserymen affected; also on the growers who desire to replace destroyed citrus trees with ornamental and flowering shrubs, plants, vines and non-citrus trees.

Your present ruling destroys a profitable industry and does not permit the grower to attempt to cover his loss.

At present, only one non-citrus nursery—having avocado and mango nursery stock—is outside the quarantine area. Hence under the present ruling, we are unable to develop groves to replace the ones destroyed.

If ornamental and flowering shrubs, vines and non-citrus trees before leaving a zone were sprayed with the regular bichloride solution the danger of carrying citrus canker would be no more than it is from your inspectors—and your inspectors claim there is none—and the danger would be far less than from the fruits and vegetables under present ruling which are sold in our local market from infected groves into non-infected territory.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The continued good business is most encouraging to everyone, even though there is a shortage in some lines. A better and more prosperous year is convincingly shown all around. There has been a steady demand for flowers for the last two weeks and each day has found the wholesale houses about clean by afternoon. A little more sunshine would do wonders at the present time. The weather was cold last week, but even at low temperatures consignments arrived in good condition. The scarcity of stock keeps up prices, but quality is the main factor. The latter is unusually good and it is not difficult to dispose of any grade of flowers. American Beauties have not been in great demand, but other roses, such as Ophelia, Russell, Sunburst, Ward and Francis Scott Key, have sold immediately on arrival. Little is seen of the shorter grades, which at this time would come in useful for funeral and design work.

Carnations keep up their good standard in quality, but not in quantity. The whites and light shades of pink are none too plentiful. Reds and dark shades hang quite a lot. Yellow and white daisies, bouvardia, mignonette, stevia—all move well. Calla lilies sell well. Valley is fairly plentiful, but there has been no big demand for it. Cattleyas and cypripediums sell nicely, but gardenias are scarce. Violets move slowly, not so fast as usual. There still is a good demand for palms and ferns. Potted bulbous stock sells well.

ROSES

RED RADIANCE—A sport of Radiance that will be welcomed as a valuable addition to the list of greenhouse Roses and will be of greatest value for the garden. Grafted or Own Root, 2½-in., $2.50 per doz., $17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.

MRS. WM. R. HEARST—A clear, dark pink sport of My Maryland. The equal of Maryland in habit and growth, and far superior to it in color. Grafted or Own Root, 2½-in., $2.50 per doz., $17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.

HOOSIER BEAUTY—Deep, rich crimson in color. We have a large stock of this new Rose and can fill your order to your satisfaction. Grafted, 2½-in., $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100, $140.00 per 1000; Own Root, 2½-in., $1.50 per doz., $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

HADLEY—With both Hadley and the above-named variety we have to offer the two best red Roses in commerce. Grafted, 2½-in., $1.50 per doz., $12.50 per 100, $120.00 per 1000; Own Root, 2½-in., $1.00 per doz., $7.50 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

CARNATION NOVELTIES

MISS THEO—(Littlefield & Wyman.) We have 4000 plants of Miss Theo growing here at Cromwell. We can verify the assertion that it is the most prolific Carnation on the market today. The color is true rose pink. The flower is well formed, but not large. It will be a profitable variety. Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

NEBRASKA—We can fill your order for this new scarlet. It appears to us to be one of the finest of the novelties of the year. Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

RED WING—From observation of this variety growing, we believe it is well worth a thorough trial. It looks prolific and the flowers are of fine quality. Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

ALICE—By far the finest light pink Carnation from the standpoint of freedom and profitability. We have excellent stock for February delivery. Rooted Cuttings, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000. We cannot accept orders for Good Cheer for earlier than March 15th delivery.

THE BIG FOUR

OPHELIA, DOUBLE WHITE KILLARNEY, KILLARNEY BRILLIANT and MRS. AARON WARD—The four best greenhouse Roses for general growing. $12.50 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

These varieties are better grafted than own root. If wanted on own roots, the price is $7.50 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

MRS. GEORGE SHAWYER and LADY ALICE STANLEY—On their own roots, $7.50 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

GOLDEN GLEAM OUR NOVELTY FOR 1916

As a novelty of the year we are offering a seedling of our own raising. It is a bright, glistening yellow in color; medium dwarf in growth. Fully as good two to a plant as single. Matures Oct. 20th to Nov. 1st. Second crown buds were the best. 2½-in., $1.50 per doz., $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

LAST SEASON'S NOVELTIES

Rooted Cuttings, $7.00 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

CRYSTAL GEM—A fine, pure white. Midseason.

EARLY FROST—The best early white variety. We have a big lot ready for delivery.

GOLDEN QUEEN—The best yellow since Chrysolora. This is the general opinion.

MARIGOLD—A fancy 'Mum for the careful grower. When well done, it is the best yellow variety in commerce.

MODELLO—Bronze, maturing in early November. Handsome as a Cactus Dahlia.

WHITE CHIEFTAIN—For early delivery we offer fine stock of this high-class variety at $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. This means January and February delivery, and we have ample stock for your requirements.

GOLDEN EATON—Better in color than Yellow Eaton. One of the finest of the new 'Mums. Early delivery, $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000.

A NEW POMPON

PEACE—A beautiful shell pink; one of the finest varieties ever offered. 2½-in., $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100.

SINGLES

RAMONA—Deep, rich bronze in color. One of the finest varieties ever offered. Exhibited in the winning five vases at Cleveland. 2½-in., $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100.

DUSTY MAID—Orange-bronze in color. Well-built, semi-double flowers carried well apart on spray. The finest variety for Thanksgiving. 2½-in., 2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100.

The Cromwell Gardens Set and the Mount Greenwood Set are offered in our catalog. Look them over. They are improvements on existing varieties and worthy of general growing.

Asparagus Plumosus Nanus

We make a specialty of seedlings. We offer now 50,000 seedlings ready for potting. Big, strong seedlings. Big value at $8.00 per 1000; 2500 at $7.50 per 1000; 5000 at $7.00 per 1000.

We deliver anywhere, all charges paid, for 50c. per 1000 in addition to price quoted.

NEPHROLEPIS JOHN WANAMAKER

Introduced August, 1915

The Wanamaker Boston has more than made good. Everyone who has received early shipments from us has been greatly pleased with the variety and repeat orders have been coming in daily. We have a very large stock. A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis. The following prices are for immediate and spring delivery:

2 1/4-inch pots, strong plants $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.
4-inch pots, strong plants, $25.00 per 100; $225.00 per 1000.

reports good business during his entire trip.

George T. Boucher reports a continuance of the good business which started at Christmas. He had a fine display of heather in his window, together with a good assortment of bulbous plants.

Henry P. Neun reports satisfactory business. He is cutting some fine stevia at his greenhouses. This is a great help at this time, owing to scarcity of the finer flowers.

A pretty window display was seen at Wilson's last week, consisting of delicate combinations of yellow, pink and lavender flowers in baskets tied with chiffons of the same colors. A canopy effect of yellow and lavender chiffon was drooped from the top of the window.

The annual election of officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Florists' Association was held at the home of Mrs. William L. Keller, January 11. The officers elected were: President, Mrs. Fred Vick; vice-president, Mrs. H. Winfred Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Suhr; secretary, Mrs. George B. Hart. It was decided to change the day of the monthly meetings to Wednesday instead of Tuesday. The members expect to meet at the Elm bowling hall for the February meeting.

The Rochester Florists' Association held its annual meeting Monday, January 10, on which occasion the election of officers took place. The chair was taken by President Charles H. Vick. About thirty members were present. The officers elected for 1916 were: President, Charles H. Vick, reelected; vice-president, Harry E. Bates, reelected; treasurer, George T. Boucher; secretary, Ambrose H. Secker; trustees, John Dunbar, Jacob Thomann, Hugo Teute. Ambrose Secker gave an interesting paper on "Retail Advertising for the Local Florists," and George B. Hart spoke of the old-fashioned flowers which were coming into prominence. Songs were given by George T. Boucher, with Prof. Wagner at the piano. The music was followed by refreshments.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business was exceedingly active last week, but there was marked scarcity of cut flowers, notably roses and carnations. This shortage has been due to the exceptionally low temperature, the thermometer registering at times several degrees below the zero mark. The weather has been dark, with only an occasional day of sunshine, and the florists are forced to pick the carnations when only half open. The conditions regarding roses are only a little better. The smaller flowers have not been so vitally affected by the weather.

Spencer sweet peas are arriving in fine quantities and they are of excellent quality. Violets are plentiful. Cattleyas are more plentiful than they were the week previous. Lilies are in good supply and a variety of spring flowers are appearing on the market, including Golden Spur narcissi, freesias, tulips, jonquils, antirrhinums, pansies, primulas and Paper Whites. There also are a few daisies and forget-me-nots. Lilacs are selling well, mostly for corsage work. Killarneys are the most plentiful of the roses, but many of them are off color because of the dark weather. Shawyers are next in numbers. The yellow varieties are in good supply, such as Sunburst, Hillingdon and Ward.

The demand for funeral work last week was heavy. Decorations for large receptions have been numerous and corsage work has been proportionately heavy, while there has been a big call for loose flowers for the hospitals. Adiantum and smilax are rather scarce, but there is a good supply of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri.

Various Notes.

Miss Mildred Flick spent last week at Toledo, O., the guest of her aunts, Miss C. B. Flick and Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop.

The Doswell Floral Co. is cutting fine Spencer sweet peas and single violets. This company is experiencing a great shortage of carnations at present and the roses are in almost the same condition.

The Flick Floral Co. has been busy with large funeral orders.

A. J. Lanternier & Son have been showing an excellent line of blooming plants.

The Fort Wayne Flower Shop, which recently closed its doors at 828 Calhoun street, has rented a store room several doors north of its previous location. This store has been remodeled to suit its needs and a fine show window has been installed.

SWAS-TEEKA

CANNAS

Give your customers that "come back" feeling

IT'S mighty good business to have old customers come back, year after year, and tell you how pleased they were with last year's seeds, bulbs and plants.

That's the kind of trade we cater for, and that is why Swas-teeka Cannas will help you build up your business.

Our newest triumphs for 1916 are particularly fine. Big, distinctive blooms that call for admiration—and get it. Here are a few of the best:

	Per 12	Per 100
CITY OF PORTLAND, Pink (3½ feet)	$3.50	$25.00
GOLDEN GATE, Yellow (4 feet)	3.50	25.00

The New Rose, MRS. BAYARD THAYER,

that we are offering this season, will make a fine addition to a class of large-flowered roses which is rapidly coming to the front, since we introduced Mrs. Charles Russell, of which the new claimant is a sport. The color is a most beautiful clear rose pink, inside of petals a shade lighter. The foliage heavy and smooth and carried on strong stems. It won the American Rose Society medal, over a strong class of competitors, at the Cleveland Show, scoring 90 points

The Market.

The demand for flowers since the first of the year has been exceptionally good—the trouble is to get the stock. Instead of increased stock after the holidays, the conditions are reversed this year. There certainly is no chance for anyone to complain, as everything in the shape of a flower sells at a good price. Everyone from the grower to the retailer is getting his share.

Beauties are fine and scarce; other varieties also are scarce. Killarney is somewhat pale in some instances, but it sells readily. There seems to be much funeral work at present and all kinds of roses are necessary. Carnations have not caught up yet. The growers are in hopes of more sunshine in the near future. Single violets are not so plentiful, but they are much in demand. Double violets are sufficient and sell well. Sweet peas, jonquils, narcissi and freesias are clearing rapidly. Mignonette is much in demand and good stock can be had. Yellow daisies are in evidence and orchids are plentiful. Cypripediums and gardenias are experiencing a great demand.

Greens of all kinds are clearing fast. Croweum and asparagus are selling nicely.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ehmann, of Corfu, were in town last week.

Friends of Edward Walthers regret to hear of the death of his oldest daughter.

At Palmer's branch store last week general business was a little dull, but there was an unusual quantity of funeral work. This company made a bride's bouquet of 300 valley and eighteen white orchids. A. E.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The monthly meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held January 11, at the residence of George Backliffe, of Holyoke. Aubrey Butler, the newly elected president, presided over a somewhat smaller attendance than usual, several of the members being victims of the grip, but there was no lack of vitality among those present. After an unusually interesting business session, Harrop Sinclair, of Smiths Ferry, gave a

MUMS - - FOUR WINNERS

Japanese Anemone C. L. HUTCHINSON

In this variety we have the ideal Anemone. The color of the petals is a pure white and the center a bright yellow, making a beautiful contrast. It is a good grower, splendid dark foliage, and, the best of all for pot work, needs no support.

Japanese Anemone MARIE POOLE

Very distinct and beautiful flower, which is very large, and the color is a combination of bronzy salmon, flushed with pink; the high center is bright orange yellow. One of the oddest and most novel flowers ever introduced. Good pot plant.

Single Anemone MRS. CARRIE RYERSON

Creamy white; very good habit; needs no support. An excellent variety for Thanksgiving. Makes good pot plant.

Single Anemone THOMAS DUNN

A very free bloomer, good foliage; ten to twelve flowers on spray, open at once. Color yellow, under petals bronzy yellow. Splendid keeper. Blooms for Thanksgiving and is good two weeks or more afterwards. Needs no support.

DORNER'S NOVELTY FOR 1916 New Salmon Pink Carnation NANCY

Color, light salmon pink, a little darker than Pink Delight and a more even color. Blooms are good commercial size, three inches and over, nicely formed and have never shown a bursted calyx. Stems always hold the flower upright. The habit is a quick productive growth and as a producer it stands highest among commercial varieties. Color does not fade. Fragrance is very noticeable. Having an excellent cerise pink and an improved yellow to offer in 1917, we have decided to disseminate the variety NANCY this year (1916). For a light pink that will produce quantities of bloom and is commercially good in every respect, plant NANCY. The stock is limited and orders will be filled in rotation as received. Price, rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

withstanding the wet and disagreeable weather the affair was a success. There were nearly thirty present, including quite a number who came from a considerable distance across the bay and down the peninsula, and all felt well repaid for their journey.

Various Notes.

Dr. Parker, the Santa Cruz orchid grower, made a special trip to San Francisco to attend the meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society. He states that he had a large crop of orchids last season and cleaned them out by the close of the year.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. did a big shipping business in phalænopsis during the holidays, besides supplying quite a lot of stock to the local trade. The company now has several large houses coming on and the cut is beginning to come in well. The stock includes some good oncidiums.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been elected treasurer of the Downtown Association, in which he has always taken a prominent part.

N. Peterson, of the Peninsula Nursery, is bringing in a nice cut of carnations and his stock is in strong demand by the first-class trade, bringing a premium above the regular market. His stock of rooted cuttings is showing up well and many orders from nearby growers have already been received.

Alfred Hammersmith, a salesman at Joseph's, has the sympathy of his numerous friends in the death of his mother last week.

Mrs. Brett is a new member of the sales force at Joseph's.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, says there has been quite a lot of snow there since Christmas. He reports a good business, both in funeral and other work. He says the camellias, which are popular at Sacramento, are now blooming in great shape.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business was up to expectations last week. The supply, however, fell far short of the demand. Funeral work was heavy and caused the big demand for stock. Pot plants sell well and in most cases take the place of the high priced cut flowers. From reports the cut of carnations will be heavy next week and bulbous stock, too, will be in larger supply. Roses are at a premium; some exceptionally fine stock of these was seen. The supply of carnations increased slightly. The supply of lilies and stevia slackened somewhat, but violets, sweet peas and bulbous stock were plentiful. There was a good demand for bulbous plants.

Various Notes.

The zero weather that was with us all the week made it hard for delivery, but there was more sunshine, which helped to make the cut flower end look better, as every grower reported an increase in the cut during the last of the week.

E. H. Frandsen, of Independence, met with bad luck. Trouble in the heating system caused by the low temperature resulted in the loss of a house of sweet peas and part of two houses of carnations.

Jacob Hepting is cutting over 1,000 carnations a day. He reports business better than ever.

Harry Smith is sending in some excellent sweet peas. The stems are about a foot long and there are several flowers on each stem.

Adolph Mohr is getting ready for spring trade. He has about 25,000 geranium plants in 2-inch pots. He also has a number of Cincinnati and Lorraine begonia cuttings ready to pot.

T. J. Noll reports a scarcity of stock. "Not enough to fill the orders," he says. Roses especially are a scarce item.

I have at last succeeded in securing the name of Henry Kusik's better half. It was Miss Anna Surma, of New York.

The Rosery reports business good and plenty of funeral orders. The place is now being filled with bedding plants for the spring trade.

J. Stevens is cutting about 5,000 carnations daily and obtains a fair price for them. He expects to grow about 100,000 carnation plants in the field next summer. He has almost 9,000 lily plants for Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newell have left the city to spend a week at Excelsior Springs.

William Foith has a big crop of carnations in bloom. He reports a big business in funeral work. Basket trade has been good.

J. B. Masson is resting his rose crop for a large Easter cut. He says that Kaiserin and similar varieties pay him better than the other kinds.

Arthur Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was in town displaying his line of chiffons and florists' supplies. W. J. B.

Greenhouse Heating.

TOO MUCH NIGHT FIRING.

Kindly give me your opinion on the following heating problem: The present system is arranged for low-pressure steam, but it requires too much attention during the night and the temperature is too fluctuating. As I do all my own work and attend to the firing at night, I thought that it might be a good idea to change to hot water, using 2-inch returns. Do you think it advisable to use a mercury generator? I have made several inquiries in reference to a generator, but have been advised not to invest in one.

I am enclosing a sketch of my house, which is of Lord & Burnham semi-iron construction and runs east and west. It is 30x200 and fifteen feet high to the ridge. The side walls are five feet four and one-half inches high and contain thirty inches of glass above a concrete base. The boiler is at the west end of the house, in a pit eight feet deep. It is a Lord & Burnham steam boiler, No. 840. The piping consists of a 4-inch overhead main and nine 1 1/4-inch returns. All the piping must be arranged along the side walls and outer columns, owing to the use of ground beds. Kindly let me know how many mains and returns will be required, and of what size, for a hot water system. I wish to use the same boiler, with the steam trimmings taken off. I have been using pea coal for fuel.

W. M.—N. Y.

We would not expect to keep up a temperature of more than 50 degrees in a house 30x200, with thirty inches of glass in each wall, by means of a 4-inch main and nine 1 1/4-inch returns, using low-pressure steam, in zero weather. Two additional returns would be needed for 55 degrees.

It would have been easier to keep up steam at night if run-of-mine or steam lump coal had been used, with pea coal for banking the fires at night. However, the work of night firing is greatly lessened, except in places large enough to warrant employing a regular night fireman, if hot water is used as the heating medium.

For the house described, we would put in a second 4-inch flow pipe and would carry the flows on the center rows of posts, eight or nine feet from the ground. The pipes should have a slight fall away from the boiler and 1-inch pipes should connect the highest point of each main with the expansion

Judging strictly according to mechanical merits, it's the METROPOLITAN PATENTED BOILER you want.

Because of their proven scientifically perfect construction, Metropolitan Patented Boilers will heat a given amount of water quicker, with less fuel and less attention than any other boiler on the market. The remarkable heating efficiency and quick steaming qualities of these boilers are due to their large and effective heating surface.

Just a few points of Metropolitan Patented Boiler merit:—Smooth, perfect finished castings. Push nipple connections. Large fire box, providing ample combustion chamber, and permitting a sufficient charge of fuel to require attention only at long intervals. Deep ash pit, making the removal of ashes a slight task. Large flues, making the boiler easy to clean. Grates that are made for hard usage and long service. And above all, they are Fuel Saving, not Fuel Wasting.

We also make soft coal boilers which are smokeless, and save 50 per cent in coal.

water systems, and may be used to advantage under the following circumstances: First, when the amount of radiation is too small to maintain the desired temperature with an open-tank system, in occasional cold periods; second, when the size of the pipes, either flows or returns, is too small for the length of the house; third, in cases where it is not possible to place the return coils above the top of the heater; fourth, as may be seen from the foregoing statements, when it is desirable, in order to lessen the first cost of the system, to reduce the size or number of the pipes, or both, below what would be necessary with an open-tank system.

The use of a mercury generator makes it possible, virtually, to place the water in the system under pressure and thus raise the boiling point so that it will be as warm as low-pressure steam, or even warmer. This has a tendency to increase, to the extent of ten to twenty-five per cent, the expenditure for fuel, and, since the increase in the temperature may only be obtained when the water is heated above that in an open-tank system, it will require about the same attention in the way of firing as a low-pressure steam system if the full benefit of the generator is obtained.

The use of a mercury generator, or some other method of placing a hot water system under pressure, seems to be entirely logical and especially helpful in sections where the winter temperature is fairly even, but where once or twice during the winter, for a day or two at a time, it may drop 10, 20 or even 30 degrees below the usual minimum. In such a case, instead of go-to heat the house in ordinary winter weather, and then by connecting a mercury generator it would be possible to withstand the coldest weather.

By putting in a by-pass when installing the generator, the piping may be used as an open-tank system, but in a minute's time the water may be placed under pressure. The extra labor of firing and the additional cost of the fuel will, if anything, be less than would be required for maintaining a forced circulation with an open-tank system, while there will be a considerable saving in the first cost of the system.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

The demand for stock is exceedingly heavy, but, unfortunately, everything was cut so closely at the holiday season that everyone has to go short, in roses particularly. In other years the bulbous stock proved of great assistance to growers at this time of the year, but as there is only a small percentage of bulbs flowering this season, the market is severely handicapped in consequence. On their arrival in the fall, the bulbs appeared to be above the usual standard, but something serious must have happened to them shortly after they were taken out of the ground, and the results so far seem to augur unfavorably for all concerned.

Orchids continue in strong favor and large quantities are being cut every day. Violets also find a ready sale at $1.50 per hundred for first-class stock.

Various Notes.

Several of the old benches at the Dale Estate have been demolished, and new ones erected in their places. The entire propagating department has been altered in this fashion. Cold weather has set in for the first time this season and the temperature reached 8 degrees below zero last week. Men continue to leave their work to join the various new regiments being formed, and the problem of labor apparently is going to be a troublesome one in the early spring.

Even the little "lean-to" greenhouses such as the one illustrated above, which we built at Plandome, Long Island, are planned and erected with the greatest care, as they require all the fine details that make for the successful operation of the professional growers' structures.

The reputation we have gained for fast work is only to be equaled by our reputation for fine work, and the particular feature of our service is, that we can give both at the same time.

We owe our success not only to the efficiency of our methods, but also to the quality of our work.

WE KNOW WHAT TO DO AND WHAT NOT TO DO

If you contemplate building a greenhouse write us—we can save money for you.

Hard to Estimate Its Value

MR. BIRD E. SMITH, Victoria, Texas, writes us:

"As to the value of the Skinner Irrigation System, it is difficult to estimate. With such a system of irrigation, plants grow rapidly and bloom profusely. During the extreme drought of the summer of 1913, irrigated an acre, and not only saved all of my plants, but also had flowers in bloom during a time when there were no flowers elsewhere."

There is an EASY and EXACT way to fold Dirt Bands.

The Directions how to do this after two years of experiment we reduced to 37 words and received a Copyright on the Directions in 1914. There is no other EASY and EXACT way to fold them and no one can print these Directions as we have a Copyright on them.

We also Copyrighted in 1914 the next and only other two fairly exact methods.

Our Square Paper Dirt Bands are the original of all that are on the market today. All others being sold are imitations of these we advertise, and some of the imitations being sold are made of cheap paper, costing only about half as much as our heavy stock. We sell no experiments. Ours have been tried out by long use in the greenhouse. They will stand up in any wet and heat as long as wanted. Samples FREE.

DIRT BANDS—Experience in Using Them

H. B. WEAVER

Carnations Mignonettes
Sweet Peas Cut Flowers United Phone.
Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, AND STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

H. B. Weaver.

Mr. Weaver grows carnations, mignonette, sweet peas, asters, etc. He ordered 5,000 Dirt Bands the first year, 60,000 the second year, and 70,000 last year.

Dauphin, Manitoba, Can., Dec. 4, 1915.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons, Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: * * * We would say that we used all the Paper Pots we got from you to raise tomato plants.

Our weather is often very severe late in May, therefore we have to keep them inside and we were certainly very satisfied with the splendid results obtained from the Paper Pots.

In fact, WE DID NOT HAVE HALF ENOUGH TO FILL OUR ORDERS. WE CHARGED EXACTLY TWICE THE AMOUNT we did other years and yet our CUSTOMERS INSISTED ON HAVING THOSE IN PAPER POTS.

In our hot sun they never wilted. We reserved a few for Primulas and certainly have some fine ones.

It was easier to keep them watered and growing during the hot months.

Wishing you success.

Yours truly,

Blackadar & Co.

MRS. W. T. BARBER

Florist.

Reidsville, N. C., Nov. 2, 1915.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: I used some of your Paper Pots last spring, which were highly satisfactory.

I grew Roses, Salvias, Verbenas, Petunias and Geraniums in the Paper Pots for retail trade.

THEY NEARLY DOUBLED MY SALES.

I always had fine thrifty plants to send out and I delivered them in the pots, which insured them reaching my patrons in good condition.

I never had a complaint of flowers dying or wilting.

I buy some of my plants, which I set right in the pots.

They are ready for delivery within a few days. When plants are set out there is no collecting pots or watering to be done.

I intend to use them altogether next season.

Yours very truly,

Mrs. W. T. Barber.

Two thousand Florists use our Paper Pots and Dirt Bands. Both the Panama-Pacific and San Diego Expositions used large quantities of them unsolicited.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

The seventeenth annual dinner of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held at the Florence Inn, January 11, and was in every way equal to any of the former delightful affairs given by the society. At 7:30 Secretary E. W. Neubrand announced that dinner was ready. The feast was served in one and one-half hours, so that by 9 o'clock all was ready for the speechmaking, which is a feature of these dinners.

The members of the society and the guests were welcomed by President Featherstone, who pointed out that his position was not an enviable one, for he had three clergymen on his right and an undertaker on his left, while he himself represented the cemetery. Frank R. Pierson was the first one called upon. He supplemented the welcome of President Featherstone and spoke of the society. He said that he had seen many flower shows last year, but none better than the one at Tarrytown. The society has 207 members and $2,380 in its permanent fund. Last year it paid out $776 in premiums.

After Mr. Pierson's address the toastmaster read letters of regret from J. Austin Shaw, J. A. Young and others. Dr. Carroll Dunham, of Irvington, the next speaker, gave an interesting talk on plants and trees. Mr. Dunham was followed by W. R. Bull, who gave many "pleasant words." Mr. Bull, in speaking of Tarrytown's wealth, referred to Mr. Pierson's beautiful flower shop. He said he brought a shrewd New Englander over one day to look at it and when he explained what it was, the New Englander replied: "Well, there must be a lot of easy guys around here."

The speechmaking continued until 11:30, when everybody joined in "Auld Lang Syne." The evening was voted one of the most enjoyable affairs the society has ever held.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade was heavy last week, with funeral work in the lead. Stock is scarce and carnations have set a new record for high prices. The stock that does arrive is good in quality and is cleaned up early every day; there is no possible chance for a surplus. Roses have slackened in supply, but the demand is heavy and they are cleaned up daily. Beauty has been a scarce article and the prices have been high. It is risky to take any advance orders for Beauties.

Narcissi have been helping out wonderfully in funeral work and great quantities of them are disposed of at good prices. Jonquils are scarce and the few that come in are picked up early. Romans are moving nicely, principally in funeral pieces. Lilies have been scarce, both calla and Easter, and the demand has been quite heavy. Sweet peas have fallen off in quantity and there are not enough of them to go the rounds. Violets are meeting with a good sale. Valley is cleaned up quickly. A few tulips are making their appearance and are soon disposed of. Potted plants are moving nicely.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Social Club held a Dutch lunch at the residence of O. A. Munk, January 17. The club has been having several affairs and reports good times and good attendances.

The Columbus Floral Co. reports stock scarce and everything sold out early.

Frank C. Vierick has moved to a new location at 150 East State street.

The Livingston Seed Co. says its buyers have to scramble for stock daily and that it is hard to fill all orders.

Stephens & Son report heavy business. Mrs. Stephens is getting along nicely after her operation for appendicitis. J. M.

Reading, Pa.—The members of the Reading Florists' Association recently held a meeting at the store of Giles, the Florist. It was decided to pay visits to the different stores and greenhouses in and about Reading. The next meeting will be held at the establishment of J. C. Bauder.

The Market.

There is a pronounced shortage of flowers on this market. All lines seem to have been affected by the cold weather and receipts are below actual requirements.

The cut of roses fell off greatly at the end of last week. Relatively speaking, carnations are in fair supply, but many more could be used to advantage. Easter lilies, too, are short, as well as valley. The latter meets with a good demand. Double violets are fairly plentiful and the sweet pea supply shows signs of improvement. Other offerings include Paper White narcissi, daffodils, callas, freesias, single violets and orchids. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell, J. A. Peterson and R. Witterstaetter expect to go to St. Louis for the American Carnation Society meeting. Max Rudolph, Henry Schwarz and Gus Adrian state they may go.

B. George, Jr., has been ill during the last fortnight.

The Bloomhurst Floral Co., of Lockland, O., has been sending some excellent carnations to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

C. E. Critchell has been having an unusually heavy call for wild smilax for this time of the year.

Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade during the early part of the week.

The Wise Course

When contemplating the building of a Greenhouse, the wise course is to avoid extravagance and delay, by hiring an organization which features economy and speed.

Our past is an open book, so is our present, and we invite you to investigate both.

Put Your Greenhouse Problems up to us.

We go anywhere in the U. S. to submit plans and prices.

With Sunken Path

SMALL, READY-MADE GREENHOUSES

Covered Top and Sides with for Hot-beds and Cold-frames

With Plant Benches

These Sunlight Sashes as adjusted on the greenhouses are removable at will. They may be transferred to Cold Frames or Hotbeds and are incomparably superior to all others for such use.

They are complete in themselves, for they have two layers of glass enclosing an air space that is a better protection than mats and shutters, and does away with buying and using these extra covers. Besides, the plants get all the light all the time and are stronger and earlier, also far more profitable.

The Sunlight Double-Glazed Sash, as thousands of the best florists and gardeners testify, is simply perfect.

DON'T TAKE ANY CHANCES

There is no need of you, Mr. Florist, taking any chances if you feed the "Magic Way."

One plant food will not do for all plants and vegetables. A strong man can't thrive on the food that a weak man can.

Therefore, each distinct plant you are growing needs a special plant food, if you are to obtain the most cuttings and the best quality.

Tell us what you are growing, and how much bench space you devote to each of the different plants.

We'll tell you how to build up the physical condition of your soil, how to keep your soil in sweet condition, and how much of the Special Magic Plant Foods to put in each 1000 square feet of bench or potting space you devote to growing Roses, Carnations, Sweet Peas, Violets, Greens, Lettuce, Cucumbers, Tomatoes, etc.

Write us now—today.

We'll ship direct from our Factory—at "Factory to Consumer Prices."

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

A well attended meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, January 12, at 2 p. m., president James MacDonald presiding. Chairman Ernest Brown, of the dinner committee, reported that all arrangements for the annual dinner had been completed. The dinner will be given at the Oriental hotel, Glen Cove, January 25, at 6:30 p. m.

A communication was received from M. O. Ebel, secretary of the National Association of Gardeners, offering on behalf of that body to supply the society with an essay on some subject of interest to the profession for each month of the year, so that the essays could be read at the monthly meetings. It was unanimously decided to accept this generous offer.

The essay received from Mr. Ebel for this meeting was: "Is Gardening a Profession?" by W. W. Ohlweiler. The paper was interesting and the essayist handled his subject in masterly style. It was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated by all present, and if the society is to consider this essay as a standard for those which are to follow we are assured of an interesting and instructive course of lectures for the year.

Valentine Cleres, George Hutton and George Wilson were appointed as judges of the exhibits and made the following awards: Twelve sprays of freesias, Harry Goodband, first; three poinsettias, Robert Jones, first; three heads of lettuce, Robert Jones, first; plant of Primula malacoides, exhibited by John Everitt, cultural certificate. James Duthie exhibited six plants of Primula malacoides Townsendii, an improved form of Primula malacoides, which was much admired and was awarded a certificate of merit by the judges. This primula, which originated with Mr. Duthie, forms a more compact plant than the older type, the individual florets are much larger and the color is a most distinct and pleasing shade of pink. Mr. Duthie reports that the seed of the variety, which he has saved and sown, comes almost uniformly true to the type, the percentage reverting to the old type being so small as to be almost negligible.

Mr. Johnson, of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, and Mr. Earnshaw, of the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J., were visitors at the meeting. James McCarthy, Cor. Sec'y.

VEGETABLE PLANTS.

Don't fail to try Goetz's strain of Best Yet tomato advertised in Review Jan. 13, page 68. This is just as fine a tomato as was ever grown for the market; medium size, tough skin; few seeds, small core. I tried it last year with 10 varieties and have grown all the leading varieties in existence. I grew this in 1915 with Bolgiano's John Baer, both outdoors and inside, treated it exactly alike, and found it earlier, a more even growth and more productive. I have seed saved of the plants which I got from Mr. Goetz. Test this tomato this spring. I have the seed at 60c per 100; $5.00 per 1000, prepaid. Special price on large quantities. Cash. HYDRANGEAS IN OKLAHOMA.

Are the new French hydrangeas and Otaksa good for planting out in lawns, etc., and how hardy are they? If these are not suitable, what varieties would you recommend? I want varieties that make large bushes and have white flowers. Our lowest temperature is about 12 degrees above zero.

E. W.—Okla.

The French hydrangeas are too tender and would not succeed outdoors in your locality. H. Otaksa, if well covered with soil or other material, should winter satisfactorily. For a really hardy, pure white hydrangea, which makes a fine show on the lawn or in shrubbery, I would suggest trying Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora nivea, or the variety Hills of Snow. These bloom earlier and through a much longer season than the over-planted H. paniculata grandiflora.

C. W.

Iola, Kan.—J. W. Primmer says his business for all of 1915 was entirely satisfactory. Carnations have been slow in coming into bloom after the fall crop and all in the trade in this section had to buy an unusual quantity of stock for Christmas, New Year and later, most of the flowers coming from the Chicago market.

THE NEW BAND

Not the jingo brass band, nor the melodious string band, but the up-to-date RAMSBURG DIRT BAND.

The use of square dirt bands in growing plants is no longer a question of economy or advantage, it simply turns to the point, "where can I get the best band for the least money?" If time is valuable, buy our ready-use bands. If there is spare time for folding, buy our plain bands. They are made from special stock and are scientifically right. Note low prices and send for free samples.

Our ready-use bands are complete and ready to set up. The lap is glued down and each band opens up square. No folding required, nor time lost in setting them up.

Square dirt bands add greatly to the profit and pleasure of plant growing. Double the amount of soil to same bench space, and half the amount of water as clay pots require, are only two of many good points. Send for free samples today and get in touch with the newest and best SQUARE DIRT BAND. "The best band in the land," is the way one enthusiast puts it.

If you don't know the value of dirt bands begin by putting your carnation plants into size two or two and one-half inch. You will forever sing praises to the square band. They take care of all plants just as well, and anything that grows in a pot will grow better in a band.

PROGRESS OF A QUARTER CENTURY

The American Carnation Society, organized twenty-five years ago in Philadelphia, this week held its first convention and exhibition on the west bank of the Mississippi, where the quarter-century's wonderful improvement in the flower was brought home to many patrons of the florists of St. Louis.

THE convention of the American Carnation Society held at St. Louis this week was the twenty-fifth annual meeting, but the silver jubilee is not to be celebrated until March, when it is to be one of the features of the National Flower Show at Philadelphia, the city in which the society was born. No doubt the foreknowledge of this fact was in large part responsible for the small eastern representation, for this was the first time in the organization's quarter-century of active work that it has met so far west as the banks of the Mississippi.

Then, too, the state of the cut flower markets, in which for a month it has been impossible to procure all the carnations required, had the effect of somewhat reducing the size of the exhibition, but nothing could obscure the fact that since the society's birth its flower has advanced from the plebeian position of the "pink" to the place where some of us exalt it by calling it "divine." It certainly is a far cry from Heinze's White to Matchless, from Daybreak to Pink Sensation, from Portia to Jubilee and then to Champion.

Public Appreciative.

One of the chief benefits of the custom of moving the meeting from city to city is that in the course of time a large section of the public comes to know, and to demand, the carnation at its best. The admission of the public during certain hours of the exhibition seldom fails to produce a prompt effect on the character of the demand in that city and certainly this will be the case in St. Louis, as the exhibition has been thronged during each of its open hours. Show hall and meeting room were under one roof, the famous Planters hotel.

Of recent years quality rather than size has been the predominant feature of the shows of the American Carnation Society. As the quality of the exhibits has advanced the size of the show has come down a little, the general growers as a rule not caring to compete with the specialists. And certainly the St. Louis show was of high quality—if carnation blooms have been scarce thus far in 1916 they have at least been good.

Dominant Varieties.

Again this week the predominance of the flesh pink class was apparent. It seems that for some years the raisers of seedlings have been using Enchantress, with the result that, just as flesh pink is the most abundant on the market, so is that color most in evidence among the varieties on the exhibition table. But there is no one variety that stands head and shoulders above the rest. The average grower still uses Enchantress as his chief variety, but the specialists, the men who grow for quality, use something else, some one, some another, though many favor Pink Delight.

In whites Matchless stands out as the finest sort for the exhibition table and, therefore, for the quality trade, whatever the less painstaking growers may think of it as a money-maker. Mrs. C. W. Ward has a long lead in its color; there is no medium pink to touch it. Gorgeous is the quality dark pink, with Rosette the quantity growers' favorite. Champion is the finest red of the older sorts, with Beacon the most generally grown, but this year might be called the year of the reds and scarlets. There are three candidates for this year's orders and another in line for 1917. Of the reds coming out this year each has points that win friends: Belle Washburn, shown by Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, has been seen at many recent shows and at the Buffalo convention of a year ago was a medal winner. It grades as a fancy. Not so large in size, but excellent in color, was Aviator, shown by the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. Nebraska, from C. H. Frey Co., of Lincoln, is one of the few varieties from west of the Missouri that has successfully invaded the east. John Then, of Chicago, staged the unnamed red seedling that attracted so much favorable attention when exhibited at the Chicago show in November. Among several good things from Mt. Greenwood Cemetery, Morgan Park, Ill., was a red seedling, which won a first over Champion.

Other New Varieties.

Chief of the Cottage Gardens novelties was Cottage Maid, although the knowing ones who attended the Cleveland show asked first of all for Crystal White. The latter is an improved Matchless! But its dissemination is for the future. Cottage Maid is a clear shell pink sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward, identical, apparently, in all respects save color. This variety is to be disseminated next season and is so well liked in the New York market, where the blooms have been offered in increased quantities each season for several years, that the exhibitor anticipates for it an unusually large demand. It is the variety that won the award for best condition at the end of the Cleveland show.

F. Dorner & Sons Co., La Fayette, Ind., had three varieties that are to be figured with so soon that they attracted much attention. First of these was Nancy, a new claimant in the salmon pink class, a little darker than Pink Delight and notable for its evenness in color. The introducers state that their reason for putting this on the market this season, with a limited stock, is to make room for two others next winter, one a cerise pink, the other an improved yellow. In addition, the Dorner concern also showed a number of seedlings that are under test.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., staged Alice Coombs, a flesh pink a little deeper in color than Gloriosa. It was raised by Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, Mass., who showed it at Buffalo last year and sent a part of his stock to the Indiana grower to be propagated for joint dissemination.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., of New York, staged several vases for the growers whom it represents. Laura Weber, being disseminated this season, is quite well known, having been exhibited many times. It originated with and is being grown by Charles Weber, of Lynbrook, N. Y. It is in the salmon pink class. The flower is large, well formed and borne erect on strong stems. Another variety staged by this exhibitor was Peace, a white seedling raised by Frank Dinda, of Farmingdale, L. I. Both these varieties were in good shape considering their long journey.

The Awards.

Although the eastern representation was not numerous, each man brought some flowers and the way they cleaned up the prizes, after their blooms had traveled from 1,000 to 1,300 miles, made the western growers open their eyes. The Cottage Gardens Co., C. S. Strout, Ernest Saunders, S. J. Goddard and others from the east have reason to be proud of the showing their blooms made.

The following is the full list of the awards:

One hundred blooms any white—Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., first; E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., second; both on Matchless.

One hundred any light pink—Cottage Gardens Co., first, on Cottage Maid; E. G. Hill Co., second, on Alice Coombs.

Dorner memorial medal class, open only to those undisseminated varieties that have previously been exhibited before the society and scored more than eighty points—F. Dorner & Sons Co., first, on Nancy.

Preliminary competition for next year's Dorner medal class—Dorner & Sons Co., qualified No. 121; S. J. Goddard qualified No. 10-12, and J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, qualified Superb.

Certificate of merit—S. J. Goddard, on No. 12-12.

The judges were C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill.; Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Eugene Daille-douze, Flatbush, N. Y.; F. H. Meinhardt, St. Louis; Fred H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind.; Nick Zweifel, North Milwaukee, Wis., the three latter substituting for elected judges who were absent.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., brought a handsome display of Rainbow freesias.

For the Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., Guttman & Raynor, Inc., stage a vase of the rose Mme. Paul Euler, which has become well known on both coasts as Prima Donna.

August Jurgens, Chicago, sent a pink novelty tulip, Prosperity.

E. G. Hill Co. staged Tipperary and Baby Doll roses.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., staged a collection of orchids and new conservatory plants.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, showed Glory of Cincinnati and Mrs. J. A. Peterson begonias, also pandanus.

F. H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind., staged Primula malacoides rosea, a distinct novelty.

J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., showed a new sweet pea under number.

John Steidle, Olivette, Mo., showed, in addition to his Sunbeam carnation, a new antirrhinum.

A feature of the show was the decorating of a number of dinner tables by St. Louis retailers, Windler's Flowers, Mullanphy, the Ayres Floral Co., Vandervoort's, Grimm & Gorly, John Boerm and C. Young & Sons Co.

CARNATION YELLOWS.

[A paper by George L. Peltier, of the Department of Floriculture, University of Illinois, read before the American Carnation Society at its meeting at St. Louis, January 26, 1916.]

A study of carnation yellows was undertaken at the Illinois experiment station in 1912, when little or no attention was given to this disease by carnation growers. However, since that time it has become so serious that it has been called by a number of carnation growers one of the most serious diseases with which we must contend today. Although we have spent some time on this problem each season for the last four seasons, the cause of this disease remains unknown. However, at the present time we have several promising clues which may lead to its solution and control. It is not my intention, in presenting this paper today, to give anything new, but to bring this problem of yellows directly before you and, together, to go over the situation and discuss the problem from all standpoints.

Yellows starts in the young leaves and is first noticed as small pale green spots varying in size and shape. On holding an infected leaf up to the light the dots are more plainly detected. These spots become more distinct and turn yellow, while the tissue beneath collapses. The trouble is not confined entirely to the leaves, but in badly infected plants the branches and flower stems also may be covered with the yellow, elongated spots.

Three Forms of Yellows.

Apparently several distinct forms of yellows can be recognized, which differ in general appearance and subsequent behavior. The early stages of the first type consist of these small dots, scattered irregularly through the leaf. At first they are a paler green than the surrounding tissue, but distinctly delineated upon it. The spots increase more or less rapidly until they reach a diameter of one-thirty-second to one-fourth of an inch. Most of these spots are approximately circular, but may be irregular in outline, and rarely elongated. A single leaf may have from one to fifty or more spots, depending on the extent of infection. Another characteristic of this first type is that the spots do not tend to make the leaves brittle.

The development of the second form is similar to the one above, except that while still in the early stages the spots unite and become so elongated that a single spot may be one to two inches or more in length. On badly infected leaves these elongated areas run parallel to the midrib and have a sort of flaky appearance. The leaves become brittle and are easily snapped off. In the later stage the cells beneath the infected areas collapse, the spot becomes sunken and finally turns brown as the leaf dies.

Fred E. Dorner.

(Treasurer American Carnation Society.)

A third form may be mentioned here, which is found only on the colored varieties. Here the spots in the earlier stages are yellow, but as they grow older and larger the spots become colored, the intensity depending on the color of the flower. For example, old spots on the light pink or scarlet varieties are slightly colored, while in the dark red varieties the spots are deeply colored.

Yellows Difficult to Recognize.

Microscopical observations show no rupture of the leaf surface and with a lens the bloom on the leaf above the spots appears to be undisturbed. No bacteria or fungi are present except when the surface or epidermis of the leaf is broken down. No insect punctures, as have been described for stigmonose, have been observed in the true yellows; in fact, no collapsed tissue can be traced to the epidermis except in the later stages, when the epidermis has been broken down.

This trouble should not be confused with bacteriosis and stigmonose. Bacteriosis is caused by bacteria, while stigmonose is due to insect punctures. The spots produced are distinctly different from those of yellows.

After examining many plants of all the standard varieties on the market, I can safely say that all varieties grown today have yellows. The question of the amount of loss resulting from this disease is hard to solve. As all varieties are more or less subject to this disease, we can run no record tests to determine the actual amount of loss, so that we must resort to mere observations, which is not always satisfactory. The direct loss, as figured from the standpoint of flower production, is not great. However, the quality of the flower is lowered directly as the vitality of the plant from yellows is lowered.

The indirect loss from yellows is considerable. Observation shows that this disease lowers the vitality of the plant, and with lowered vitality fungi, especially branch-rot, attack the plant, causing a noticeable loss. Branch-rot, which is primarily a wound fungus, cannot attack a healthy plant, but is able to kill a weak plant in a short time.

Yellows on Cuttings.

During certain seasons of the year this disease appears to be more noticeable than at others. In the cutting bench, cuttings showing yellows as a rule do not take root easily, while apparently healthy cuttings taken from plants showing this disease root poorly. The disease is marked when the rooted cuttings are potted up and for several weeks the young plants show considerable yellows, which apparently disappears by the time they are planted in the field. During July and August the plants in the field again show this trouble more. During the winter months yellows increases on the plants in the house until spring, when the disease is at its height. At the time of making cuttings the disease is evident and so can be avoided to some extent in the selection of cuttings.

Cuttings have been selected now through three seasons, and the results show that by selecting cuttings from healthy plants only we can control the trouble to some extent. One objection to this method is that we are unable to tell whether a plant is entirely free from yellows. A variety once affected with yellows has not been known to entirely recover and there is always some of the stock so infected. The weeding out process is a slow one, but the returns should more than pay for the trouble.

It has been observed that seedlings rarely show yellows. However, after cuttings have been propagated from seedling plants for two years they invariably show this condition. This brings out the interesting fact that the disease may first originate in the cutting bench where cuttings are without any vitality until the roots form and that a breaking down of some sort occurs in the tissue, which later develops into yellows. This point is one of the leads we intend to follow out in our work. Another factor which lowers the vitality of the cutting and so may induce yellows is overpropagation.

Experiments in Grafting.

To determine whether yellows is in the "blood" of the plants a number of grafting experiments were carried out. Cuttings, layers and shoots were taken from seedlings which had not, up to the time of the experiment, shown any yellows. The shoots were grafted on stock badly diseased. The grafted stock today is badly yellowed, while the cuttings and layers from the same plant show little or no yellows. There seems to be no question whatever, that the disease can be communicated to healthy plants by grafting. A point which we hope to determine this year is whether this disease can be carried through the seed. We have made a number of crosses with plants showing different stages of this trouble and hope to obtain some clew. As can be seen, the solution of carnation yellows is a long task and is just as slow as producing good commercial varieties.

A Summary.

Carnation yellows is due to causes still unknown. It is increasing in seriousness rapidly and is found today on all the standard varieties on the market. Some varieties appear to be more susceptible to this disease than others. Cuttings from plants showing this disease, and overpropagation tend to increase the trouble. Selection of cuttings from entirely healthy plants will help decrease the trouble. Yellows does not spread from plant to plant, but can be communicated to healthy plants by grafting.

THE PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

As your presiding officer, I bid you welcome to this, our twenty-fifth annual meeting. Just a quarter of a century ago, in the good, old Quaker city of Philadelphia, a small body of earnest carnation enthusiasts saw the possibilities of the flower from which we derive our name and issued a call which was sent broadcast over the land. All who were interested in carnation growing were invited to join them in organizing a permanent society. With your permission I will read their call of 1891.

The Call to Organize.

"To American Carnation Growers: You are cordially invited to attend a meeting to be held at Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Pa., Thursday, October 15, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of organizing a society of American carnation growers. All those who are unable to attend, kindly send their names for enrollment. The object of this society will be to materially benefit carnation growers and to advance the popularity of the divine flower so that it shall stand second to none. Let us all step to the front and put our shoulders to the wheel."

The call was signed by C. W. Ward, George Creighton, C. E. Allen, William Swayne, R. T. Lombard, Fred Schneider, Charles T. Starr, C. J. Pennock, George Hancock, A. M. Herr, Edward Swayne, E. B. Jennings, John McGowan, George W. Love, Alexander McBride, H. E. Chitty, Isaac Larkin, Edwin Lonsdale and W. R. Shelmire.

From every section of the country, east, west, north and south, came applications for membership and at the close of that memorable meeting in Horticultural hall there were enrolled forty-nine stanch champions of our fair flower. And thus was conceived and ushered into existence the American Carnation Society.

Youthful Push.

It is fitting to mention at this time the name of Edwin Lonsdale, the first presiding officer of our body. During the last year he has answered the final call and leaves a place in the ranks that is difficult to close. It is with regret and sadness that we are compelled to note the dropping off, one by one, of the old guard of pioneer florists to whom we all owe so much.

The full text of the address of Joseph H. Hill, president of the American Carnation Society, delivered at the convention at St. Louis, January 26, 1916.

Now, gentlemen, are we, after a lapse of twenty-five years, putting the same amount of push and of strenuous effort into the work of our society as did the charter members? Are we carrying forward the work cut out for us with the same earnestness and unity of purpose that marked their early endeavors?

The Successful Man.

To accomplish our work and to keep up interest in the society it is necessary for us to attend its conventions and its meetings, even though to do so means a personal sacrifice. William Scott once said at a carnation meeting: "These conventions are productive of the greatest good; we learn to know each other better, and one of the greatest pleasures of life is an exchange of ideas with our intelligent fellow man."

It is a noticeable fact in our profession that the man who attends conventions, flower shows and meetings of associations of florists, is the man who is successful and progressive in his business.

Your president would suggest to the society that we adopt a badge of neat design to be worn at our conventions, upon which can be written the name of the wearer. In this way we can more readily identify one another and get acquainted. This method was used at the Cleveland flower show last fall with success and satisfaction to all.

Our secretary has suggested that we abolish the use of individual address placards on our exhibits after the judges are through with their work. It is true that in rearranging the vases the cards often are lost or misplaced on someone's exhibit. We invite the society's deliberations on this point.

Participation in Shows.

The cardinal principles of this society are to materially benefit carnation growers and to advance the popularity of the carnation. To do this it is absolutely essential that we co-operate, if so requested, with any well managed flower show, and towards this end the following are given by your presiding officer as suggestions:

First, that any flower show management desiring our support must give us a positive guarantee that the premium money in the carnation section will be paid to exhibitors.

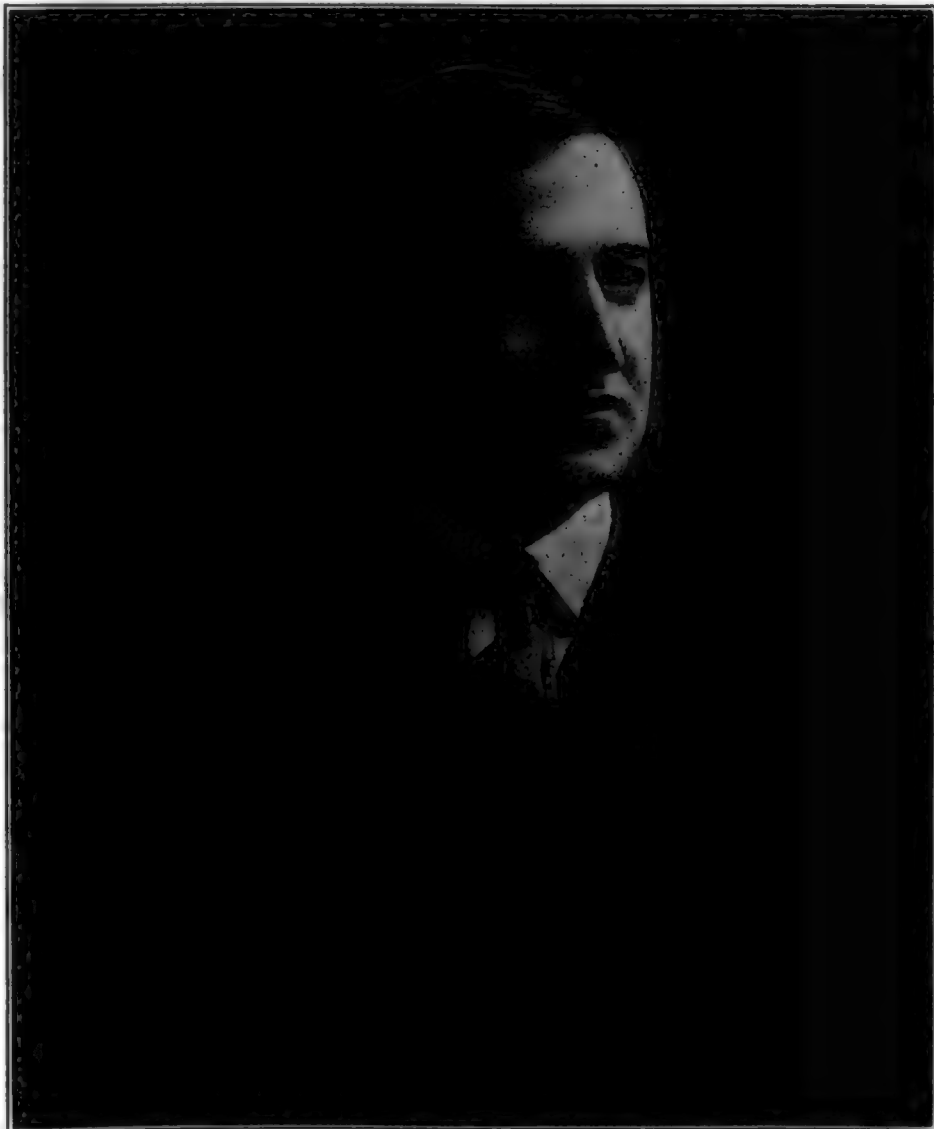

Second, that the exhibition management choose two from our list of duly elected judges to serve with the third, who may be selected by them without restriction. Poor judging by inexperienced men tends to make dissatisfied exhibitors and consequently reduces the number of entries at succeeding shows.

Third, that they be allowed the use of the society's vases with the understanding that they reimburse the society for all loss and breakage and pay all the expense for packing, carriage, etc.

To the Front.

These simple rulings will safeguard the Carnation Society. Let us resolve to lend a helping hand to all flower shows, no matter where held, and dismiss the idea of self-aggrandizement from our minds; let us exhibit with the definite idea of bringing the carnation out of the background and of putting it on the same high plane as the rose and the popular chrysanthemum.

It is an admitted fact

Joseph H. Hill.

(President American Carnation Society.)

that in most parts of the country the carnation is marketed in a crude way compared with the rose. The idea seems to prevail, in many quarters, that a carnation is a carnation, regardless of variety, but it is not so with the up-to-date commission merchant; he knows the different varieties by name and can explain to the buyer why one variety has a higher market value than another. So can the live retailer, and he in turn advises his customers to select the kinds that have texture and that last and give satisfaction.

It would seem that the grower is in a measure responsible for the fact that some of the largest retailers sell a comparatively small quantity of carnations, because the grower insists on holding to the idea of quantity instead of quality. Stock that will not hold up in the retailers' display case will surely hurt the cause of the carnation generally.

Frank A. Windler.

(Of the Local Executive Committee for the St. Louis Carnation Convention.)

To the grower who depends upon figures for facts, the apparently shy blooming varieties sometimes exceed in money returns the prolific kinds, with their serious shortcomings.

Let the varieties be known by their names, then their characteristics and their good qualities will eventually enhance their value and make regular buyers of intelligent customers.

The National Flower Show.

In closing I would like to say a few words regarding the National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia this spring. In addition to the generous cash premiums offered for carnations by the management, the society will award in a good many classes silver jubilee medals to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of our founding.

Let every grower here make up his mind to put up an exhibit at Philadelphia, so that the carnation section of that grand show may be a credit to our favorite flower and that our reputation of being the "live wire society" of all the affiliated societies of the S. A. F. will not be open to question.

We must, with renewed vigor, put our shoulders to that same wheel mentioned in the call of 1891, sent out to the American carnation growers by that honored band of enthusiastic men in Philadelphia who saw the hidden possibilities of our divine flower, the carnation.

THE LOCAL MANAGEMENT.

It is on the local management, at least as much as on anything else, that the success of a trade meeting depends and in the instance of the convention of the American Carnation Society this week the local matters were in the hands of an unusually competent executive committee. At the head of the committee, of course, was the vice-president of the society, J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, with J. J. Beneke, perennial secretary of the St. Louis Florists' Club, as secretary of the committee. The other members of this body of workers were Carl Beyer, Charles Young, Frank Windler, W. C. Smith, W. J. Pilcher, Jules Bourdet and F. J. Fillmore. There were several strong subcommittees.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Treasurer F. E. Dorner presented the usual completely itemized and audited report to the American Carnation Society at its meeting at St. Louis this week, the following being a summary of the year's receipts and disbursements for each of the society's three funds:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[The following is the report of A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society, presented at the St. Louis convention, January 26, 1916.]

While our membership has not shown so large an increase in the last year as in the previous twelve months, there have been added to the roster twenty-two new members and, besides these, six delinquents have been reinstated, so that our membership now stands at 325 annual members and twelve life members, a total of 337, an increase of seven over last report. No life members have been added during the last year.

Death has claimed one of our members, William Murphy, of Cincinnati, O., having passed away September 27. Edwin Lonsdale, who was our first president, also has passed away at his home in California. We ordered a floral wreath sent to the funeral at Philadelphia.

The Finances.

The books of your secretary and treasurer have been audited, as has been customary. We are pleased to state that the society's finances are in a sound condition. All bills are being met as they fall due and all accounts are being collected without loss. The secretary's books, up to January 17, when the audit was taken, show collections as follows:

Membership dues	$531.00
Advertising	326.72
Miscellaneous	98.18
Total.....	$955.90

All of which has been turned over to the treasurer and his receipts taken therefor.

We are pleased to report that twenty-four and one-half pages of advertising space in the premium schedule was taken by our members and friends. The schedule appeared a few days late, owing to the lateness of the meeting of the board of directors. The annual report also was printed and distributed among the members at the usual time.

Eleven new varieties were offered for registration by American growers and some twenty-three European varieties were added to the list. The name Peace was offered by both American and European growers. It having been offered first on this side, the European registration was withdrawn.

The Annual Exhibition.

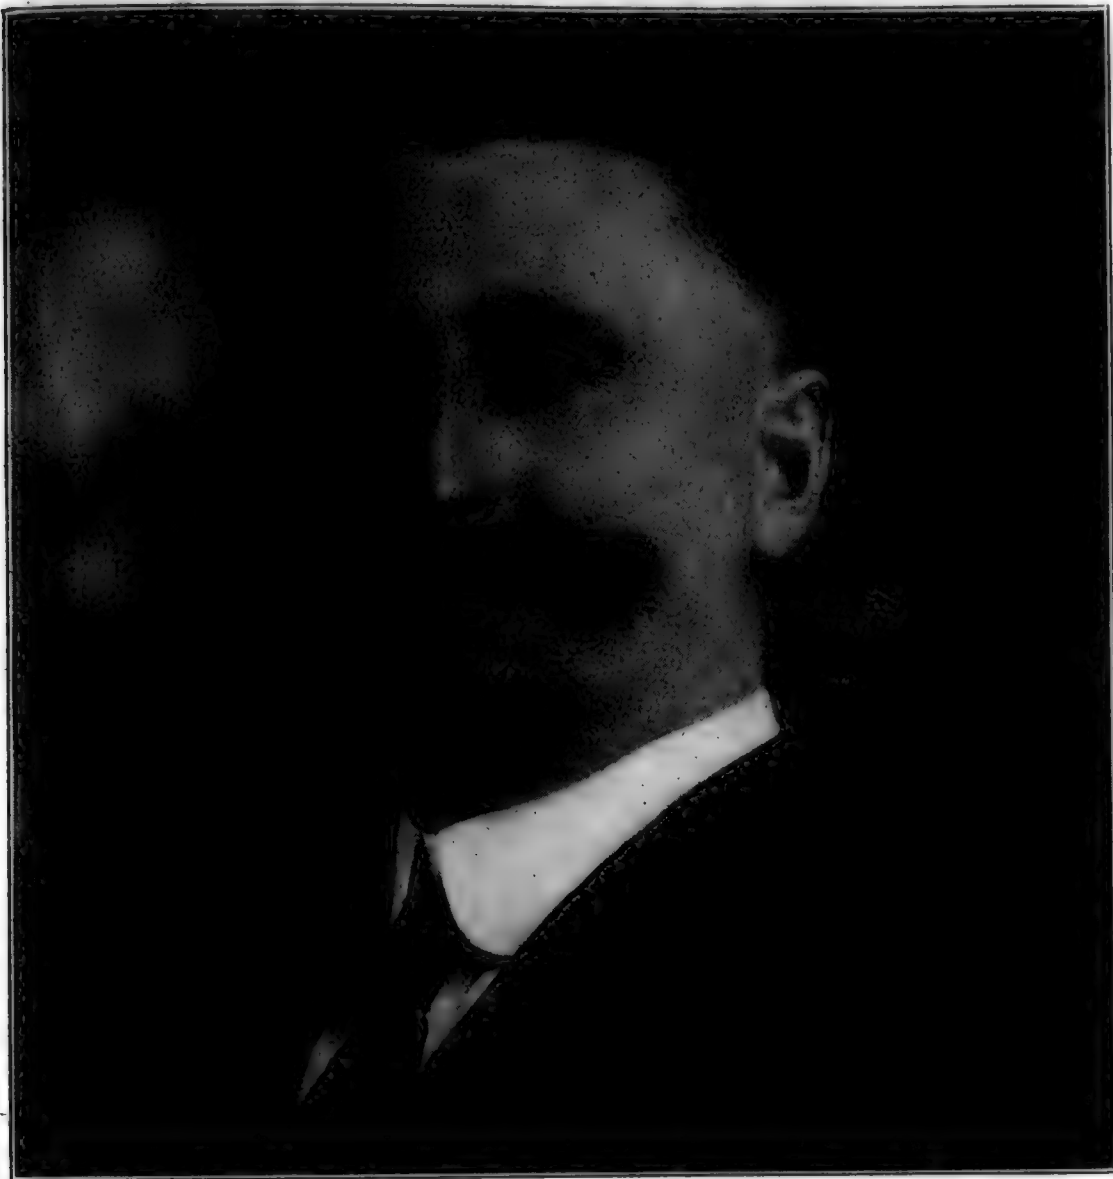

The arrangements for this meeting

Charles C. Young.

(Of the Local Executive Committee for the St. Louis Carnation Convention.)

were in the hands of our worthy vice-president, Mr. Ammann, who has worked diligently for the success of this convention. The entries for the exhibition are rather lighter than usual, due, no doubt, to the scarcity of flowers and the high prices realized on high grade stock in the cut flower markets. The society owes a debt of gratitude to those growers who were willing to sacrifice their personal interest to help make this exhibition a success. We suggest that, in the future, no display cards be permitted on vases entered in the competitive classes; that display cards on non-competitive exhibits be limited to 5x7 inches in size and that only one card be allowed to each exhibit, except by special permission.

Jules Bourdet.
(President St. Louis Florists' Club.)

Besides the arrangements for table displays, permission was granted for the display of other made-up work. The enterprise of the St. Louis retailers along this line is to be commended.

One hundred and eighty-four of our members are also members of the S. A. F. We, therefore, continue to be represented on the executive board of that organization.

Directors' Meeting.

The board of directors held the usual post-convention meeting at Buffalo last January. The midsummer meeting was postponed to November and was held at Cleveland, O., November 12.

Arrangements were made to hold the silver jubilee at Philadelphia at the same time as the National Flower Show. The $1,500 appropriated for carnation premiums by the National Flower Show committee was spread over a schedule of premiums, which was submitted to the above named committee and approved by them. It was decided to have a special silver jubilee medal struck and to award one of these medals to each winner of one or more first premiums on carnations. W. L.

Rock and F. C. W. Brown were invited to assist in judging the retail displays at the Philadelphia show and both have accepted.

The board recommends that this society coöperate with local organizations in promoting local flower shows and suggests the following conditions, i. e.: A flower show, which desires the coöperation of the American Carnation Society, shall agree to submit its schedule of premiums and the selection of its judges, for the approval of the president and secretary of the A. C. S. They shall further agree to satisfy the above named officers of the proper underwriting of the show.

The trade press has kindly given space for all matter sent in for publication. To them is due our thanks.

TENNESSEE FLORISTS MEET.

Officers Elected.

After pleasant preliminaries, the members of the Tennessee State Florists' Association settled down to their second annual meeting at Maxwell House, Nashville, January 24. Officers were elected as follows:

President—Charles L. Baum, of Knoxville.

Vice-president—Cleveland Johnson, of Memphis.

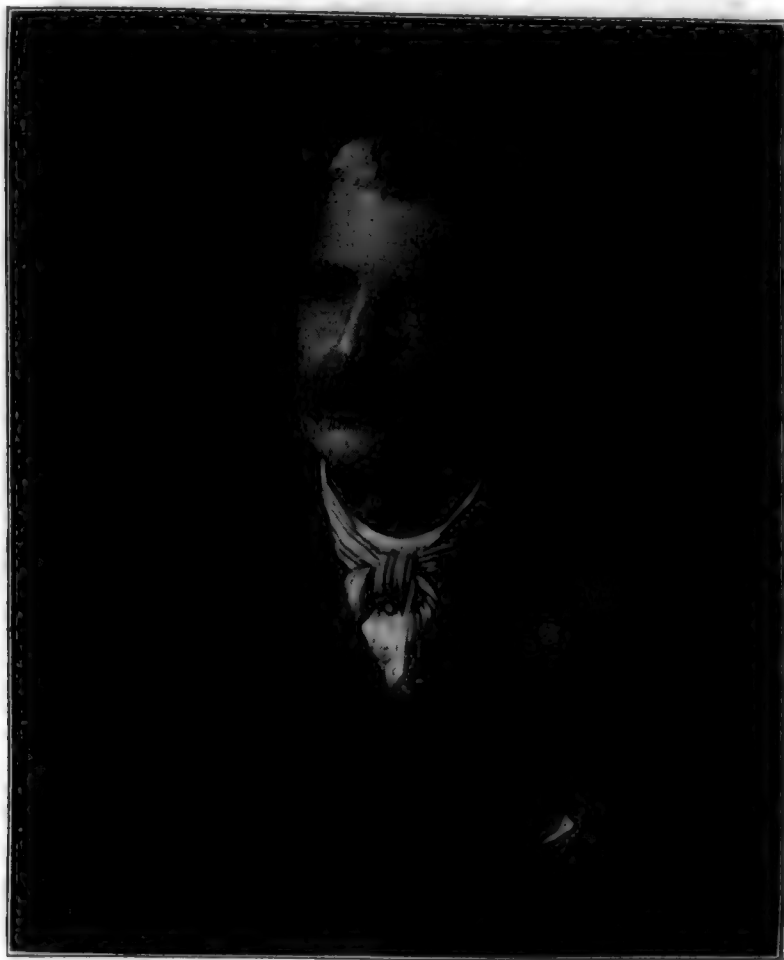

Secretary-treasurer—G. M. Bentley, of Knoxville.

The Proceedings.

The meeting was called to order by President T. C. Joy at 10 o'clock, before a good representation of the Tennessee florists. That the meeting was an exceptionally enthusiastic one is evidenced by the fact that fully a score of new members were taken into the association. The program for the day was unusually instructive, the discussions on several topics presented being free and complete. It was as follows:

Address of welcome, by Judge Robert Ewing, Mayor, Nashville.

President's annual address, by T. C. Joy, Nashville.

Report of the secretary-treasurer.

"See Who's Here, and Why?" by Chas. L. Baum, director of the S. A. F., Knoxville.

"Roses New and Old; How They are Originated," by E. G. Hill, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

"The Florist's Outlook," by Cleveland Johnson, Memphis.

"Efficient Heating," by Geo. A. Kimmell, Chattanooga.

"The Essentials of Hybridization," by Prof. Floyd Bralliar, Nashville.

"Some Things the Texas State Florists' Association Has Accomplished," by L. J. Tackett, Fort Worth, Tex.

"Greenhouse Construction," by Dan McIntyre, Nashville.

"Relation of the Grower of Ornamentals to the Florist," by Bruce Howell, Knoxville.

"What the Coming of the S. A. F. to the South Means to the Southern Florists," by R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., vice-president of the S. A. F.

"Possibilities of Floral Culture in Tennessee, and Cooperation," by Karl P. Baum, Knoxville.

"Office Methods Which I Have Found Helpful," by John G. Haury, Nashville.

"Public Parks," by Frank A. Butler, Nashville.

"Getting Acquainted With Nature," by W. F. Bohlender, of the Peter Bohlender Co., Tippecanoe City, O.

The following resolutions of gratitude were passed: To visitors from out of the state for their help on the program; to the Nashville florists for their entertainment of the association; to trade concerns which made exhibits before the association. It was further resolved that members of the association make an effort to secure every florist in the state as a member of the body before 1917. The officers of the association were requested to take under advisement the matter of holding a state flower show. On motion the following were elected honorary members of the association: R. Ewing, mayor of Nashville; L. J. Tackett, of Fort Worth, Tex.; R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex.; E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati; W. F. Bohlender, of Tippecanoe City, O.

The committee on legislation reported that a bill had been passed making the white rose the state flower; that Mothers' day had been made a legal holiday; that a law had been passed abolishing the license for agents acting for florists in small towns.

The New Committees.

The committees appointed for the year are as follows:

Legislation—T. H. Joy, Nashville; Leon Geny, Nashville.

Nominations—G. A. Kimmell, Chattanooga; A. J. McNutt, Knoxville; W. H. Lewis, Nashville.

Resolutions—Floyd Bralliar, Nashville; Carrie Chance, Nashville.

Auditing—Cleveland Johnson, Memphis; R. F. Smith, Nashville; B. Harrison, Nashville.

Constitution and by-laws—K. O. Baum, Knoxville; W. H. Lewis, Nashville; G. M. Bentley, Knoxville.

Meeting place—J. G. Haury, Nashville; T. H. Joy, Nashville; W. McIntyre, Nashville; Leon Geny, Nashville.

The Trade Exhibits.

The E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., exhibited Tipperary rose and Alice Coombs carnation. Tipperary is a rose with a flower somewhat like Radiance in type, but with a deep brimstone color. It is said to be a stronger grower and a better doer than its nearest rival, Lady Hillingdon. Alice Coombs is a fringed carnation of good size and color, being one of the best rose-pinks I have seen.

The Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, entered a large vase of Killarney Queen roses on 4-foot stems, and another vase of White Killarney of good quality. This company also showed some fine potted cyclamens.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, of Cincinnati, staged Begonia Melior, B. Glory of Cincinnati and B. Mrs. Peterson; and five vases of cut cyclamens. The feature of the entire exhibition was the Mrs. Peterson begonia, a true Christmas red.

Geny Bros., of Nashville, exhibited

J. J. Beneke.

(Secretary St. Louis Florists' Club and of the Executive Committee for the Carnation Convention.)

potted azaleas and Beacon and Ward carnations. These carnations were of excellent quality and of exceptional color.

Chas. L. Baum, of Knoxville, made an exhibit of orchids that would have done credit to a specialist. He also exhibited Enchantress carnations and a white seedling of his own, Dr. Sam.

McIntyre Bros., of Nashville, exhibited Pocahontas, Enchantress and Ward carnations, some good orchids in pots, primulas and cyclamens.

Wertheimer Bros., of New York, had a good exhibit of ribbons and chiffon. There were several exhibits of insecticides and other supplies.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, gave an exhibit of baskets, ribbons and florists' novelties.

Those In Attendance.

The following were noticed among those present:

Baum, Charles L., Knoxville.
Baum, Karl P., Knoxville.
Bentley, G. M., Knoxville.
Bohlender, W. F., Tippecanoe City, O.
Boyd, F. C., Nashville.
Bralliar, Floyd, Nashville.

EFFECTS OF NITRATE OF SODA.

Please tell me what are the effects of nitrate of soda on plant life. Does it affect all plants in the same way? I am sending you some diseased carnation plants. Will you please state the cause of the trouble, and the cure?

D. G.—Mo.

The specimens forwarded were too badly dried up to permit the forming of any opinion of what might be troubling your plants. Nitrate of soda supplies nitrogen, which is one of the three chief elements required by all plants as food. Nitrogen produces size and, unless used in connection with potash and phosphoric acid, will cause a rank, soft growth. It affects all plants in more or less the same way, but shows its effects most markedly on soft-growing plants.

A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS TOO DRY?

We are having some trouble with our carnations and would like to have A. F. J. B. help us. We have a house of carnations consisting of one bench of Champion, one bench of Enchantress and one bench of White Enchantress and Peerless Pink. The plants were benched August 20 in a sandy loam, which had been taken from a city lot and which had been piled all summer. We mixed this loam with about one-sixth of manure. The sod was well broken up and before we planted we put on a light coating of bone meal.

The plants took hold of the soil nicely, made a fine growth and produced good flowers all fall, but the buds seemed to be extremely slow in opening and we did not get the number of flowers we expected. Since December 1 about seventy-five per cent of the flowers have been splits. They split in a peculiar way. They do not push out of the calyx at all. The small buds are split and the flower pushes out through the split. This is something we have never seen before. The plants are clean and healthy, with a fine lot of shoots coming, but the buds do not seem to have the strength to bloom. The flowers that are not splits are not as large as they should be.

We gave the soil a top-dressing of slaked lime about November 15. We have kept the temperature between 50 and 55 degrees at night and between 60 and 75 degrees during the day. We have watered carefully and given plenty of fresh air, but no drafts. We have given the carnations the same treatment we always have, and we have always had fine carnations. We have a bench of White Perfection in another house that was planted about the same time, in the same soil. These carnations are fine and give many good blooms.

We are going to give all of them a top-dressing of dried blood, bone or tankage, but we thought we would have A. F. J. B. advise us first.

Also please inform us of the number of blooms we should receive from the following per week: 300 Champion; 500 Enchantress; 200 Peerless Pink; 300 White Enchantress; 300 White Perfection.

W. J. T.—S. D.

Your letter gives one the impression that your carnation beds were allowed to become dry at the bottom, at some time during early November. This would have caused the carnations to be severely checked. Then when you applied the lime and gave them a good soaking it started them up again and the splitting resulted. The lime released an excessive supply of food, which tended to aggravate the case instead of correcting matters. This drying out might have been caused by steady firing, without careful attention being paid to see that the water reached to the bottom of the soil.

Carnation Cottage Maid.

Carnation Miss Theo.

I would not apply that blood and bone for the present. Wait until conditions are normal again. Water and ventilate carefully, and see that the water reaches to the bottom of the soil. No harm is done if a little water runs through the bottom of the bench.

The number of blooms you should cut per week, from the number of plants you name, would vary according to a great number of things that have direct bearing on it. You should receive about fifteen blooms per plant during the season. Just how these would be distributed through the season would depend on how you handled the plants and on weather conditions. I would not hazard even a guess on this part of your letter.

A. F. J. B.

TO DESTROY ANGLEWORMS.

My carnations are not doing well and I find, on examining the soil, that it contains hundreds of angleworms. I think these are so excessively numerous that they injure the roots. Can you tell me how to get rid of them? The soil was put in new this season and should be all right in other respects, but it was not sterilized.

M. E. R.—Mich.

We have never found any difficulty in destroying angleworms with slaked lime. Apply a 3-inch potful to each row across a 3-foot bench and water it in well. A few days later, go over the beds and scratch the surface lightly.

A. F. J. B.

FAILED TO START GROWTH.

I am sending a sample of some carnations which I planted last October and which suddenly went into the condition shown by the sample. Can you tell me what to do to stop the trouble?

G. L. B.—N. Y.

The trouble with your carnation plants is that they never started growth in the new soil. Spraying them under those conditions caused the foliage and stems to decay, thus producing that moldy appearance. There is no help for plants in this condition at this time of the year. Better tear them out and replace them with some other spring crop. There is some root aphid on them, too; so do not plant anything in that soil.

A. F. J. B.

STEMS ARE UNUSUALLY WEAK.

I am enclosing some leaves of my carnations, which do not seem to be in a healthy condition. They are not all like these, however. Can you tell me what is wrong with them? The stems of my carnations have all seemed to be unusually weak this year. The flowers are of good size, but the stems are so weak that they flop over. Is there anything I can do to help them? I put some bone meal on one bench, to see whether it would be of any benefit. All my carnations are of the Enchantress varieties except the red ones, and they seem to be stronger, but I notice that they are becoming streaked with white. What causes this?

A. G.—Okla.

The specimens submitted were covered with red spider, which is partly responsible for the weakened condition of your carnations. All the Enchantress varieties and a few others become weak-stemmed in winter unless the cultural conditions are correct. If a cool temperature is carried and an abundance of ventilation is given, supplemented with a little stem-strengthening food, such as bone or wood ashes, no trouble should be experienced. Do not expect, however, to correct matters at once by liberal applications of these things, which should have been given in moderation right along. It is difficult enough to keep the plants right, even with a fair start, and it is almost impossible to get them into good condition under adverse weather conditions, when once they have gone wrong. Just carry them along the best you can until toward spring, when matters will right themselves.

You can clear out the red spider now, by using salt water. Get one of John Evans' salt sprayers and use it according to directions. There is no excuse for red spider these days, with such an efficient device at your service. Thrips-specks will show white on the scarlet varieties. That might be what you refer to, when you say they are streaked. For this, use any of the nicotine solutions as per directions on the containers.

A. F. J. B.

A WEAKNESS IN THE VARIETY.

I am having trouble with a bench of White Perfection and am coming to you for advice. The plants were benched August 15, when I benched my other plants, but they have not yielded me over 200 blooms up to this time. As soon as the buds begin to open, part of them turn brown and the rest are ragged and useless. The other plants, benched at the same time, are doing finely, bearing blooms of good substance, with few splits. The other varieties are Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress and Mrs. Ward. When I received the plants, I noticed that the roots were long and straggling and looked as though they had been grown in an extremely light soil, as black as coal dust. The plants look healthy now and are making fairly good growth. I had a little trouble some time ago with my heating system, but this is working well now, so I do not believe it had anything to do with the carnation trouble.

H. E. F.—W. Va.

Your heating troubles have nothing to do with the trouble on your White Perfection. It is caused by a weakness in the variety, which may be aggravated by a deterioration of its vitality. Ever since we first knew this variety, it produced a small percentage of this kind of bloom. With us the trouble never became serious, and our reason for discarding it was the superiority of White Wonder. We have heard other growers complain of it, however, just as you are doing. I know of nothing that can be done to correct the trouble. It will disappear completely as spring approaches. If you can afford to wait until that time for your returns, I would suggest that you treat the plants liberally, in order to insure flowers of good quality. Do not propagate from these plants, but buy new stock for next year. While you are buying, why not buy the newer and improved varieties? White Wonder or Matchless should give better satisfaction.

TWO QUERIES ON NEMATODES.

We are troubled with nematodes on our carnations in the greenhouses. What causes them and how may they be best controlled?
H. B.—Ala.

I am sending you a carnation plant taken from one of my beds. This is a fair sample of what they are. These plants were taken from the sand, put in flats and allowed to stay there eight or ten weeks. They were put in the benches June 1. The soil in the benches was soil in which roses were grown last year. The carnations were cultivated and were fed with bone meal and sheep manure, and they did well till about thirty days ago. Then they showed a tendency to wilt, and on examination I found the condition of the roots which you will observe. Can you tell me the cause and the remedy? Would cuttings taken from these plants be healthy?
J. F. C.—Tenn.

These nematodes are presumably the same as those which caused such havoc among the roses some years ago. I do not recall that any remedy was found except soil sterilization. There is no hope for the plants which have been attacked, but you may prevent trouble in the future by sterilizing your soil. I would not propagate from these plants, because they could not be otherwise than in a weakened condition. Buy new stock and be sure that your soil is right.

It is a mistake to plant carnations in old rose soil. Some twenty-five years ago, when carnations were still known as "pinks," almost any soil was considered good enough, until a few progressive specialists demonstrated that the best soil obtainable was none too good and that the carnation will repay any favors shown in the way of good soil, careful culture and proper food. "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear," and you can't doctor up old soil so as to make it as good as new soil.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

As soon as the carnation cuttings are well rooted they should be potted in 2¼-inch pots, using some care not to pot too deeply. We use about two inches of the top soil from an old chrysanthemum bed, passed through a half-inch sieve, as potting material, to which is added a little sheep manure. Place the young plants in a good, light house, running the night temperature as close to 50 degrees as possible. The plants will need a shading the first week until they are established. Water thoroughly after potting, thereafter using care not to get the plants water-soaked. These pots will carry the plants until after they are topped and putting out new breaks. Instead of potting them into larger pots, plant them out on a bench in about two and one-half inches of soil and set them rather close together. This is quicker than repotting and saves much space. At planting time you will find the plants have used all the soil and you only need to pass a trowel under them and divide them. Spray them every bright day and water them moderately. I need hardly say, watch out for aphids and keep the beds clean of weeds. The plants may require one or two light stirrings of the surface. L.

SPIRÆAS IN THE SOUTH.

It is a remarkable fact that in some sections of the south spiræas sell like the proverbial hot cakes, while in other sections, no matter how fine they are, they cannot be given away. The plants give satisfaction in a house or elsewhere if they only receive plenty of water. If this fact were impressed on a customer, perhaps spiræas would meet a readier sale. In most sections of the south, if the plants are wanted for Easter, it is imperative that they be held in cold storage until time to pot them, which is from eight to ten weeks before Easter. Let the soil be rich and give the plants plenty of water, especially after they are well started. They should have cool treatment the first two weeks and then be brought into a heat of 60 degrees at night. They can be hurried or held back as desired by raising or lowering the temperature. In those sections where frosts are frequent they can be potted as soon as received and plunged in an open frame. A light covering of soil over the tops is necessary, for alternate freezings and thawings may kill the flowers. L.

THE SOUTH IS GETTING READY.

[A synopsis of a paper entitled "What the Coming of the S. A. F. Means to Southern Florists," read by R. C. Kerr, vice-president of the S. A. F., at the convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, at Nashville, January 24.]

My subject was left to my own choosing and I selected "What the Coming of the S. A. F. Means to Southern Florists." I have chosen this subject for two reasons: First, because of my interest in and love for the S. A. F., and second, because I do not wish to miss an opportunity to offer a few suggestions leading up to our S. A. F. convention, which meets next summer in Houston.

We florists are a conservative people. We believe in holding on to the things that have been found valuable. Sometimes we hold on to some of those things until they have lost their real worth. The progress in usefulness and in influence of any trade or profession depends more on the vigor with which new ideas are developed and used than upon mere industry in following long established practice, and I believe, from the present spirit of our society, as shown at the Texas convention and flower show and at this convention, and the work that has been done and the action that has been taken, that we are on the right road and are broadening out.

An Awakening in the South.

I am glad to testify to the fact that the people of our entire southland are doing the best that is in them, according to the gifts that were given them. That the florists of the south are waking up to the importance of organization is demonstrated by the activities of this society, the New Orleans Horticultural Society, the Texas State Florists' Association and other groups of southern florists who are considering the matter of state and local organization at this time. And the florists of the south should be more strongly organized than in any other section of the country, on account of the many obstacles that we have to overcome. Our difficulties in our growing departments are many; our stores, especially in the lower southern states, are not up to the standard; many of our so-called large concerns show lack of good business management. These conditions are fast being remedied; modern stores, modern greenhouses and, best of all, modern business methods are coming in.

What is bringing about this change in conditions? Local and state organizations are being formed; florists are getting together, discussing these matters, exchanging ideas.

Progressives and Non-Progressives.

You walk into a poorly kept store or a rundown greenhouse, where everything appears to be ten years behind the times, and you say to the manager something about taking an interest in a local or state organization; his answer invariably will be that he never attends a convention. He does not believe in organization, never attends the flower shows or takes any interest in them. He cannot figure out in actual dollars and cents the good he will derive. That man is short-sighted. He thinks he is economical. He does not realize that he can bring back from a convention ideas that, if put into practice, will be money in his pocket.

Again, who are your progressive florists? I can pick them out. They are the men who take an interest in the local, state and national organizations. They belong to the Chamber of Commerce, the Ad Club, the Merchants' Association and other commercial organizations. All these are business getters, to say nothing of the good to be derived by coming in contact with business men of other lines.

Florists all over the country have been watching the work of the southern florists for the last two years. At the San Francisco convention we extended an invitation for the S. A. F. to meet in Houston in 1916. It was unanimously accepted and now, fellow florists, it is up to us to show our metal; to show them we appreciate being affiliated with them, and show them we are glad they are on their way to be with us.

South Must Fulfill Expectations.

We must rally to the support of the S. A. F., show the florists of the country that we do nothing by halves; that we will make the convention come up to the standard in every way. It will take only two things from you, which are not a great deal to put in, but if left out would mean failure. These two things are your membership in the S. A. F. and your presence in Houston. The Texas florists pledge the rest. To request your membership and your presence is asking little of you compared with the great good we shall derive from this great gathering of men of our profession.

We are going to have a record-breaking attendance, and I will tell you why. It is the one opportunity for the florists from the north, east, west and central states to see this grand old southern country, and—may I as a Texan add?—Texas, also. Houston, in my great state, has many attractions and never fails to meet her visitors more than halfway, so as to assure them a period of pleasant recreation.

Treats in Store for Visitors.

With the numerous points of historical interest within easy reach of our city, our entertainment committee is arranging a most attractive trip down our ship channel to the San Jacinto battle grounds; also other trips to our seashore attractions, which are likewise unusually accessible, being only twenty-five miles distant, with our continuous sea breezes blowing day and night, and to that famous summer resort, Galveston. These and many other attractions make the city an ideal one from the visitors' standpoint.

Right now we are planning the convention garden, which promises to be among the best. Mr. Kessler, the famous landscape artist of St. Louis, is acting in an advisory capacity with our own park superintendent, C. L. Brock, who has this work in charge, and you may rest assured that a great treat is in store for you.

Our convention hall is one of the largest in the south and present indications are that it will be packed to the limit with exhibits. Our three-million-dollar hotel, the Rice, will be the headquarters. So, you see, it will be worth while to attend this convention in Houston.

And in conclusion, fellow workers, let me repeat that the burden of my message to you today is to put your numerical and financial strength into your local and state organizations and into the mother organization of them all, the S. A. F., and you will get much in return.

LESSONS OF NINETEEN FIFTEEN.

Varieties for Nineteen Sixteen.

The chrysanthemum season of 1915, from a commercial standpoint, must be classed, throughout the country generally, as a most successful one. The individual markets seem to show a distinct slump in midseason, but this is a condition that almost always occurs. In reviewing our market, which is New York, the early flowers were easily disposed of at a good figure, though the usual glut ensued the first week in November. It has been shown conclusively that singles were more profitable than the pompons. This may possibly be accounted for by the fact that there were more pompons grown than single varieties, but the latter have several advantages over the pompons, one of which is that they come in, or at least a great many varieties do, earlier than the pompons; and another, where varieties are grown that have a good, stiff stem and clear color, they are much more graceful than the pompons, with their hard, woody stems, and can be arranged much more effectively.

The market did not develop this year any newer varieties of superlative excellence, and I give herewith a list of varieties it would be well to grow, with their colors and seasons.

Early Varieties.

The following is my selection of commercial early varieties:

White—Early Frost, White Gloria, Alice Salomon. Early Frost seems to have created a distinct place for itself, and Alice Salomon and White Gloria are two standard varieties that are well known in the early market.

Pink—Unaka and W. T. McNiece. Unaka is by no means the ideal pink, but it is better than Glory of Pacific and Pacific Supreme, so I give it first place.

Yellow—Monrovia and Marigold. I do not class Golden Glow in this selection, as it has been grown by everyone the last two years and is sometimes seen in the market as early as July, so I question if it is any longer a profitable variety to handle. Marigold is a fine color and, when grown well, should loom up as a most profitable mum.

Crimson—Mrs. Ernest Wild is the best variety of the early type.

The Outdoor Earlies.

While on the subject of early varieties, there is no question about the distinct place the types known as early flowering have created for themselves, flowering, as they do, a great many of them, outdoors the last week in September and first week in October, with a minimum of expense for culture. This type as yet is far from being well known, but the market for them is increasing rapidly. A good list of early flowering varieties would run as follows:

White — Dorothy, Debutante, La Cygne and Petite Jean.

Pink—Normandie, Hortense Malgat and Cranford Pink. Of these three Normandie is the earliest, being fully in flower in many places by September 15. The earliest flowers, however, are almost white, and it is not until the latter part of September that they come to their true delicate shade of pink, so attractive in this variety. Hortense Malgat is possibly the best variety of this lot.

Yellow—Etoile d'Or, Carrie and Cranfordia. The latter variety will carry as high as twenty flowers to a plant, on stems long enough for the average cut flower, and is one of the most profitable varieties we have ever handled.

Bronze—A. Barham, Evelyn Vesuve, Nellie Blake and H. H. Crane. The bronze varieties are extremely handsome.

There are many other varieties, but the above are perhaps the best. The varieties mentioned include none of this year's novelties.

Some of my customers in the middle west reported that the first heavy frost, about October 1, nips these varieties outdoors, but I am assured by good commercial growers who have handled them and given them slight protection, either with frames or canvas, for a few days during the heavy frosts, that they carry them through nicely and find them a profitable crop to grow.

Midseason Varieties.

The following is my selection of commercial midseason varieties:

White—White Chieftain and Antigone. White Chieftain is the sport of the well-known Chieftain and is a reliable variety. Antigone is a much larger flower and, with us, much more than paid its way.

Pink—Chieftain and Wells' Late Pink. The term Wells' "Late" Pink is somewhat of a misnomer, as in some cases this variety comes into flower the first week in November. In others it is quite late in the month, depending on when the plants were propagated.

Yellow—Ramapo, Chrysolora and A. S. Baldwin. The latter variety is one of the newer kinds, but can absolutely be depended on to give 100 per cent good buds, which is the acid test every variety has to be judged by.

Bronze and crimson—Pocketts' Crimson, C. H. Totty and Gertrude Peers.

Late Varieties.

The following is my selection of commercial late varieties:

White—Wm. Turner, W. H. Chadwick and Timothy Eaton.

Pink—Patty, Dr. Enguehard and Edwin Seidewitz. The latter variety was sent into the New York market, still in excellent shape, for Christmas. Personally, I think mums at Christmas a little out of place, since the people are tired of them, but where a market is available Seidewitz is the best variety I know of to grow for it.

Yellow—Bonnaffon, Nagoya and Yellow Chadwick. These are all well-known varieties. Another variety that brought a phenomenal price in the New York market was Gold Mine, but it is only grown by one or two growers in small quantities and staked when sent in; otherwise it would not hold erect.

Crimson and bronze—Brutus, Hortus Tolosanus and Antique. Hortus Tolosanus is another name for the variety catalogued as Greystone, and the former is the proper name of the variety. While the flowers of this variety are not large, it is most attractive in color and sells well in the market. Brutus is about as well known as any variety in this type, and Antique is the bronze sport of Dr. Enguehard.

This list embraces all the different sections and could be increased indefinitely, but the above is a list that can be relied on in almost any section.

The novelties this year in the commercial section show three splendid mid-season and late varieties in white, Autocrat, Elvia Seoville, a white sport of Wells' Late Pink, and White Patty. These will undoubtedly find their place. The early white in the novelty section, well worth looking into, is Alice Day.

Some Good Singles.

Singles, as before stated, are large factors in the market, and as an excellent list I would recommend the following:

White—Mensa, Dorothy Duggan and Gladys Duckham.

Yellow—Golden Mensa, Josephine and Marion Sutherland.

Pink—W. Buckingham, Stanley Ven and Mrs. E. D. Godfrey.

Bronze and crimson—Ceddie Mason, Mrs. Whitehorn, Yvonne and Mrs. Hogben.

With the shout of prosperity on every hand, it looks as though the mum growers should at least have a reasonable share of the success that is coming if they will grow varieties that will line up the market requirements.

SWEET PEAS DROPPING BUDS.

My sweet peas are making fine growth in solid beds, but are dropping their flower buds. The night temperature is 52 degrees. G. K.—Ill.

This trouble has been general this season, due to long spells of dark, sunless weather. It is the most aggravated if your soil is rich in nitrogen. With clearer skies and opportunities to air more freely, this trouble will pass away. Keep the night temperature for plants flowering as near 50 degrees as you can. C. W.

SWEET PEA FOLIAGE SCORCHED.

I am sending you two sweet pea leaves that are withered and of a light color. I have quite a few of these leaves on my plants and the vines are weak and spindly. Can you tell me the cause? W. G. F. G.—Mo.

The leaves forwarded had the appearance of having been scorched either by the sun or by fumigation. It is hard to express an opinion of the probable cause without knowing anything of your cultural conditions. Your temperature should be 45 to 48 degrees at night until the buds start to open; then run it as near 50 degrees for a minimum as you can, with a rise to 58 to 60 degrees on dull days and 65 degrees on clear days. Preserve a buoyant atmosphere, avoid cold drafts and, on the other hand, do not coddle. Plants should stand four to six inches apart in the rows for best results. Perhaps your plants are overcrowded and spoiling each other. Remedy these conditions if they exist. C. W.

MILDEW AND VENTILATION.

We are sending a few leaves of our sweet peas. Can you tell us what is the matter with them? Is it mildew? This showed on the leaves about three or four weeks ago in small spots, but now shows nearly all over the house. It begins on the lower branches, probably up as high as four feet. Our sweet peas seem to be quite thrifty and have given considerable bloom. They are planted on a solid bed on the ground in the center of the house, directly under the ventilators. For the last week or ten days, however, they seem not to have done their best, for they did not branch as we think they should, which in course of time should produce more blooms. V. H. & S.—Ohio.

The foliage when received was much dried up, but appeared affected with mildew. This trouble is usually caused by drafts, due to careless ventilation. When ventilating, put on a little air at a time. Do not wait until your temperature has run up much too high and then crowd on a foot or more of ventilation. This is a sure way to get mildew. Reduce the ventilation in the same way. Drop a little sulphur on your steam pipes, if you use steam. If hot water is used, paint the sulphur on one of the pipes. C. W.

DREER'S NEW WAREHOUSE.

The accompanying illustration shows the new warehouse recently completed at the Riverton nursery of Henry A. Dreer, Inc. The building is 40x140 feet, located in a central position and easy of access from the greenhouses. The construction is of hollow tile with slag roof, the floors being of hollow tile, steel and concrete. The outer walls are finished in rough concrete stucco upon the tile, giving the building a neat and substantial appearance.

The interior arrangements have been carefully planned. One end of the first floor, covering a space of 30x40 feet, has been made absolutely fireproof and will be used for storing the Dreer fleet of automobile trucks. The cellar and first floor are now being used for the storage of bulbs, while the upper floors will be used for the storage of packing materials. The building is heated by steam furnished from the central boiler plant of the greenhouses. The hollow tile has been found efficient in maintaining an even temperature. A hydraulic elevator and electric lights are being installed.

A new stable, replacing a frame barn, also is of hollow tile and stucco and presents a pleasing appearance in its location at that portion of the nursery in which the rock garden and lily ponds are located.

reaching us in good consignments and sell quickly. Paper Whites and yellow narcissi are good sellers. Stevia, which is scarce just now, moves quickly. Calla lilies are fairly good and sell well. Tulips in yellow and white, Roman hyacinths and yellow daisies are useful for basket work. Violets are plentiful, but they do not move as fast as could be desired. Valley is not plentiful, but meets the small demand. Orchids and cypripediums sell well. Greens of all kinds sell well and are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Visitors to the trade last week included W. H. Purdy, of Livonia, N. Y., and Henry C. Heilemann, of the W. B. Lake Co., Philadelphia.

Harry Merritt, of Irondequoit, N. Y., is cutting some fine Delight carnations with exceptionally strong stems. He also is cutting a good crop of these from about forty old roots and he finds their quality practically as good as that of the others. His White Wonder carnations are immense and full of fragrance. He has no trouble whatever in disposing of his stock.

We learn with much satisfaction that the park board is planning to erect two or three greenhouses quite soon.

Last week was automobile show week and a number of the flower stores made window displays in harmony with the occasion. Several of the stores fixed up small automobiles and filled them with flowers and other attractions. Yellow has been the chief color and jonquils have been prominent.

Fred Schlegel's Sons report good business for the season. They have been busy with funeral work of late.

The Aster Candy Store is doing a good business. Its window, though small, is always clean and the stock displayed is well cared for.

Miss Hattie Ellis and Malcolm White, both of the Wilson store, have been confined to their homes for a few days with the grip. Mrs. M. McNeil has been added to the store force.

The Lord & Burnham Co. reports unusually active business at its office here. Mr. Bates says inquiries are coming in fast, particularly in the line of boilers. This company received several good greenhouse orders and has several more on hand, but contracts are not yet signed. Mr. Bates anticipates a far better business this year than that of either of the two previous years. W. A. Elder expects to return to this office early in February. He now is at the Boston office.

Saturday was a busy day for funeral work. Nearly every store was cleaned up. There was nothing in flowers at the wholesalers' after 5:30 p. m.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Larkspurs.

The annual larkspurs, which are to be had in a variety of colors, including rosy red, pink, white and blue, are invaluable for cutting and make a useful flower for country florists to grow where there is a good retail trade. Seed sown now in a night temperature of 50 to 55 degrees will soon germinate. Pot the seedlings off singly, and before they become too much potbound plant them in a bench ten inches apart, with twelve inches between the rows. They succeed well in the same temperature as snapdragons and will give a surprising quantity of long-stemmed flower spikes for late spring or Memorial day trade. The rosy scarlet, pink and lavender colors are the most useful, but be sure to purchase the annual and not perennial varieties.

Tuberous Begonias and Gloxinias.

Start a batch each of tuberous begonias and gloxinias now. The gloxinias need a warmer growing house than the begonias and will stand less exposure to direct sunshine, but both can be started in a warm, moist house. Place the tubers in flats containing pure sand, water moderately and pot them before the roots become entangled. These begonias and gloxinias will flower for Memorial day. A couple of months from now is sufficiently early to start the main batch of each.

Canterbury Bells.

Start a batch of Canterbury bells now in a house kept at from 45 to 50 degrees at night. One point to remember is that this campanula will be ruined by hard forcing. To secure well developed plants with flowers of great substance they must be grown moderately cool all the time. If the crowns are extra large you must exercise some care in watering. If water is poured over the center of the crowns there is some danger of rot setting in. It is too early to sow seed of Canterbury bells for next year's crop. April and May are suitable months for this, and bear in mind that while double Canterbury bells are pretty and while the calycanthema, or hose in hose type, is beautiful, the singles are the only kind worth growing commercially. They require less supporting, as the flowers are lighter than those of the other two types.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Last week good, brisk business was transacted. With the temperature varying from zero to about 45 degrees above, the greenhouse men met with a hard proposition. Little sun has been seen for a month now and market reports show that stock is scarcer now than for several years. It is perhaps a little better than it was, but stock in general is quite scarce. There is a steady demand for roses, but American Beauties are scarce. Roses are undoubtedly becoming more popular and the public are educating themselves to the names and habits of the different varieties. Red varieties are selling splendidly now and the Francis Scott Key rose is enjoying much popularity. Milady and D'Arenberg sell nicely. Aaron Ward, Fireflame and Sunburst are used extensively for corsage work. Carnations are none too plentiful; in fact, good grades of pink and white are quite scarce. Red and the darker shades in pink are more plentiful, but there is no large demand for them. Jonquils are

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market began to lose snap January 22 and the inevitable January slump now is anticipated. Prices have held up wonderfully since the holidays, especially for roses, and even now many varieties hold at Christmas quotations. American Beauties have been in short supply and the best sold at 75 cents last week. The novelties continue to sell at about the average of the last four weeks, Hadley leading in popularity. Some selected stock of this variety was quoted last week by a leading wholesaler at 40 cents. Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia are much called for.

Carnations broke from 6 cents, which was the week's top, to 5 and even 4 cents. January 22 the quality of the carnation supply is exceptionally good and shipments are increasing rapidly.

The less said about orchids, perhaps, the better. Every wholesaler who handles them, and there are many, is at a loss for a satisfactory reason for the prices now prevailing. Hundreds of them were sold at $1 per dozen. All varieties, including even the cypripediums, are involved. The supply is far ahead of expectations.

Lilies and valley are scarce and strong. There is quite an abundance of the lower grades of each, however, that go slowly at large concessions. Single violets sold at almost double the prices of the double variety. All kinds of bulbous stock are abundant. There are tulips and jonquils in every wholesale window, the latter being especially abundant. Prices are falling. Of course the usual variety of other flowers of this season are to be had, but, apart from orchids, all stock still brings better prices than a year ago.

Various Notes.

A rose and carnation show will be held under the auspices of the Country Life Permanent Exposition at the Grand Central Terminal, February 10 to 12. If interested, write Robert Sexton, manager, for the prize schedule.

Several New Yorkers are planning to accompany Secretary John Young to Ithaca February 9, to attend the annual meeting of the State Federation of Floral Societies.

The death of Thomas Dixon, of Flatbush, is reported. For many years he was connected with Holy Cross cemetery, Brooklyn, and enjoyed the confidence of all who knew him.

The first annual banquet of the Associated Retail Florists, Inc., and the Greek-American Florists' Association, will be held at the Hotel Breslin, Monday evening, January 31.

H. Weiss has opened a wholesale store at 106 West Twenty-eighth street.

George J. Polykranas is the proud possessor of a delivery auto, gorgeous in olive green and gold, a decided addition to his already excellent facilities.

Thomas Martin, of Traendly & Schenck's, and Adam Trepel, with C. C. Trepel, were again in the wholesale district January 22, after a severe experience with the grip.

The exhibition of the Horticultural Society in the Museum of Natural History last week was a successful affair, the orchid displays by Clement Moore and Lager & Hurrell being especially good. A large attendance demonstrated a growing interest in these monthly shows. W. N. Craig, of Boston, gave an interesting lecture on "The Home Flower Garden" to a crowded house.

A. J. Guttman is at St. Louis this week, attending the carnation convention. He took along an exhibit of Carnation Peace.

W. E. Marshall has commenced his western trip, which will continue until March.

R. J. Irwin is away on a long business tour.

Maurice Fuld, while on his way home from the last meeting of the Florists' Club, was waylaid and knocked unconscious.

February 24 the annual ball and entertainment of the Greek-American Florists' Association will take place. The usual crowd of over 2,000 is anticipated.

B. Rosens' sales of Japanese red roping last year amounted to over 3,000,000 yards, he says.

Miss Conklin, bookkeeper for H. E. Froment, is seriously ill in a Brooklyn hospital.

Hugo Hoffman, formerly in the wholesale business in New York, then four years with J. K. Allen and afterwards for several years with Reed & Keller, died last week from a complication of diseases.

A. L. Brown, of Kearney, N. J., has been seriously ill for over a month.

Bowling.

January 20 a special bowling match for the dinner was completed, Messrs. Scott and Miesem against Messrs. Ford and Fenrich, resulting in a victory for the former, Miesem contributing the high score of 242. The regular games of the evening produced these scores:

Player.	1st.	2d.	Player	1st.	2d.
Holt	138	...	Smith	149	152
Miesem	163	...	Scott	175	154
Riedel	177	150	Ford	153	149

J. Austin Shaw.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Prices still are unusually high for this time of year, principally because of the scarcity of stock caused by the continued dark weather. Nevertheless, there is a steady call for all kinds of flowers and there are few objections made to the high prices.

During the week there was a good call for corsage bouquets. Nearly all the retailers had a share of the orders.

Various Notes.

William P. Pierce last week made a large horseshoe of carnations and roses for the new Au Bon Marche store.

During the recent cold snap an expansion tank at the range of Molanson, in the Mount Pleasant district, burst and entailed considerable damage.

The fire that partially destroyed the houses of William Pierce injured a number of palms, but caused no other damage to stock.

Ernest Chamberlain opened his new store January 24. He has an attractive place, much larger than his former store.

Post & Gray had a good call for violets during the week. They have been picking fine violets this winter.

W. H. Davenport now is settled in his new store. He has an attractive window on Purchase street and a long, narrow display window on Middle street. Besides cut flowers, Mr. Davenport will carry a full line of canaries, goldfish and supplies. W. M. P.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

While there is considerable funeral work, other business is a little quiet in Newark and vicinity. It is probable that the lull may be due to the continued high prices of flowers. The flower buyer hesitates in making a purchase unless it is a case of sickness, death or wedding. The retailer complains of the high prices because they cut down his profit. The growers have many fine plants in bud, but the cloudy weather has kept them from developing.

Paper Whites have been a boon to those who had them, for they flowered well and have been in great demand. Because of the glut in the market last year, many growers did not plant them this year, and those who did are making good money on them. Roses are arriving in sufficient quantities to supply the demand. Carnations remain scarce, but are improving in quality. Valley is extremely high, though slightly lower than it was two or three weeks ago. Orchids are plentiful and cheap, fine blooms bringing from 25 to 40 cents each. Gardenias are more moderate in price. Freesias, of excellent quality and fairly reasonable in price, are coming to the market in abundance. Sweet peas are more plentiful than they were and are of better quality. Violets are more numerous. Tulips, daffodils and other potted plants are more abundant than those of the previous week, but it still is early for this class of stock.

Florists' Club Election.

The annual banquet and meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club was held January 18 in the Krueger Auditorium. An excellent supper was served. The officers elected are: President, Henry Hornecker, of East Orange; vice-president, John H. Pfeufer, of Irvington; secretary, E. J. Jacobi, of Irvington; treasurer, Edward Pearson, of Irvington; trustee for three years, Jacob Hauck, of Orange. The secretary and treasurer were reelected. It was announced that the regular meeting in February would be observed as ladies' night. There will be an interesting program and refreshments. An effort will be made to secure as a speaker at the March meeting one of the men in charge of the New Jersey state experiment station, at New Brunswick.

Various Notes.

William Weismantel reports an unusually big demand for Paper Whites. He had a fine lot of them in his greenhouses in the rear of his store, and they helped out greatly when other flowers were high.

Kimmerle & Minder state that aside from the funeral work business has been quiet. Mrs. Minder has been ill with the grip.

The Ivy Flower Shop reports business as being good. This shop was opened last May and has done better than was expected.

Philips Bros., of 938 Broad street, report that the volume of business done is ahead of that of last year, but that because of the high prices of flowers it is not thought that the profits will be much ahead of those of January a year ago.

J. E. Crossley and George Penek have been elected members of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club.

George Penek, 637 Broad street, had a large display of baby primroses in his window last week. R. B. M.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

The market for roses and carnations is decidedly good; most likely it is due to the extreme shortage of stock. January has been a month of snow, wind and cold weather. The flowers welcome what little sunshine they get, but not many of the bright rays have been seen.

The roses suffer most, chiefly because of the heavy cropping for Christmas and the weather conditions. The growers of roses are so few that the market is affected to a great extent when the crop is off. Even the standing orders for roses have to be cut in two and other orders are filled according to the business done with the wholesaler. Small customers are cut off almost entirely. It does not do any good to specify the kind or grade desired, for the grower sends what he can. Most of the orders read: "Send all the roses possible." American Beauties are entirely off crop.

The supply of carnations is fairly good, but it hardly meets the demand. The price is not good for this time of the year, the best selling at only $4.00 per hundred. Sweet peas are beginning to come along nicely, but not nearly enough of them to meet the incessant demand. The orchid-flowering variety prevails; the flower and length of stem are good. Greens are scarce, with the exception of smilax. It is a hard matter to get the ferns in from the coast. Stevia is gone.

The cut of Easter lilies, Paper Whites and freesias sells quickly. Bulbous stock is beginning to appear on the market, with the potted tulips in the lead. Plants move slowly, due mostly to the lack of variety. Cinerarias, cyclamen and Primula obconica are in evidence. O. F.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The supply of stock is larger than it was at the last writing, but it still is barely sufficient for present needs. The shipping business is good. Roses still are scarce and, judging from reports from the growers, it will be some time before they are again plentiful. Fine American Beauties may be had. Carnations are more plentiful than they were. The cut of lilies, callas and rubrums was about the same as that of the week before. Jonquils and daffodils are coming into the market in fair-sized quantities and are proving to be good sellers. Lily of the valley is scarce. Violets and orchids are plentiful and the sweet pea cut is much better than it has been. Other offerings include freesias, narcissi, marguerites and primroses. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Louise Witterstaetter, mother of R. Witterstaetter, died last week at her son's home at Price Hill. She was 80 years of age. The burial took place January 17 at the mausoleum in St. Joseph's cemetery. Mr. Witterstaetter has the sympathy of his many friends in his bereavement.

C. E. Critchell is finding a good call for hanging baskets and green sheet moss this early in the year.

P. J. Olinger has been ill for a few days with the grip.

William Taylor, of Price Hill, has been sending some fine, large jonquils to L. H. Kyrk.

Recent visitors were I. Bayersdorfer and Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and H. F. Winters, of Charleston, W. Va. C. H. H.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Market conditions are gradually changing and assuming a more normal trend. The weather has moderated to a great extent and we have had several days of the kind of weather that helps to bring on the malady known as spring fever. It appears as though the extreme scarcity of stock is soon to be over and a return to normal conditions apparently is imminent.

Roses are beginning to pick up, but the supply shows no noticeable increase as yet. Carnations, however, have increased in quantity sufficiently to meet all demands, with a consequent drop in prices. The quality is good and sales show no falling off; that is, in the lump sum realized. Violets continue plentiful, but they are moving well. The quality is good and fair prices are being realized. Sweet peas are coming into their own and also are helping to ease up the market. Stevia is coming in quite heavily and is selling well. Valley is neither plentiful nor of good quality. There is a large demand for valley that can not be satisfied. There is no indication that this particular condition will be alleviated in the near future. The supply of orchids is about equal to the demand, which is not particularly strong at this time. Tulips, daffodils, freesias, Romans, etc., are beginning to arrive in quantity and are cleaning up well.

Various Notes.

Sunday evening, January 23, a party consisting of N. Zweifel, H. V. Hunkel, William R. Schroeder and Gustave Pohl left Milwaukee, bound for the American Carnation Society show at St. Louis. They will be away about a week and will visit Cincinnati, Richmond, La Fayette and other cities, to view establishments making specialties of various kinds of stock.

William Lubliner has returned from his honeymoon and wears a perpetual smile.

Archie MacDonald, with Gimbel Bros., spent January 18 at Chicago.

Walter Holton, who was operated on for intestinal trouble, at the Radium hospital January 18, is improving, although he still is in a precarious condition.

Sunday, January 23, the annual flower show at the Mitchell park conservatory was opened to the public. A fine collection of orchids is on exhibition and will remain as long as the flowers are in bloom. There are about thirty different varieties of orchids shown and among them are many specimens of the rarest varieties. H. J. S.

OBITUARY

Henry J. Huesman.

Henry J. Huesman, one of the oldest florists of Reading, Pa., died at his residence, 631 Schuylkill avenue, January 19. His death was due to asthma and heart disease. He was 71 years of age and for the last thirty-seven years conducted a florists' business, which now is known as H. J. Huesman & Son. Mr. Huesman was a native of Brooklyn, N. Y. When a young man he went to Reading and for a number of years worked for the late Michael Houser. Subsequently he managed the greenhouses of James Ritchie, of Philadelphia. In 1878 he entered the business for himself. The deceased was a member of the Reading Florists' Association. He is survived by his wife, one son, Harry C., and one daughter, Mary.

E. J. Gould.

E. J. Gould, founder of E. J. Gould & Sons, of London, O., died January 20, in his ninety-first year. He was born at Caldwell, N. J., January 6, 1825. When a boy he drove overland with his parents to Ohio, arriving at Columbus when the foundations of the state house were being laid. At London he became farmer, school teacher, lumber dealer and manufacturer of mill products. In 1874 he moved to Port Orford, Ore., where he established a large sawmill and marketed the fine timber of that state for five years. He subsequently was elected a member of the state legislature of Oregon. A few years after his return to London, O., fire destroyed his factory and lumberyards.

In 1899 Mr. Gould started to grow vegetables and fruits, and gradually established a general greenhouse business, in which he took active part until two weeks previous to his death. On his ninety-first birthday he worked several hours disbudding carnations and the second night before his death was spent in selecting garden and flower seeds.

The business will be continued by the surviving sons, who have been associated with Mr. Gould for the last ten years.

Max L. Pelletier.

The death of Max L. Pelletier, of St. Louis, Mo., came as a surprise to his many friends in the trade. Mr. Pelletier, with his wife, conducted a flower store at Eighteenth street and Geyer avenue, St. Louis. His death occurred January 19, after a short illness. He was 40 years of age. He was a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club and several fraternal orders. The funeral took place January 21 from his late residence to St. Peter's and St. Paul's cemetery. He leaves a wife, daughter and son. J. J. B.

Thomas John Dixon.

Thomas J. Dixon, who conducted a florists' business at Brooklyn, N. Y., for half a century, died January 19 at his home in Brooklyn. Mr. Dixon was 82 years of age. He is survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

If no one knew your name you would not have many friends, so until your business name is known, how can you expect many customers?

Not in years have Paper Whites returned the forcers so good profit as this season. Lucky, or astute, the man who did not cut down his order.

THERE are many reports that the fine looking Dutch bulbs, spoken of so enthusiastically last fall, so far are not giving the results expected.

JANUARY has been a month of extremely light crops in almost every part of the country, but February probably will see the other swing of the pendulum.

HIGH prices are not an advantage when one has nothing much to sell. Give us, rather, a liberal supply and fair prices; then everybody does business and makes money.

BEYOND question, many flower buyers have discontinued purchases because of the abnormally high prices since Christmas. It will be necessary to notify them promptly of the return to normal conditions, else prices soon will drop abnormally low. Supply and demand are like the swing of a pendulum.

BEFORE the sweet pea can be truthfully called winter-flowering, the growers will have to find a means of keeping the buds on the plants, during dark weather, until they open. Some sweet peas are winter-budding, all right, but it is a stretch of the imagination to call them winter-flowering; the buds have been falling before they opened.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

McFarlands, Florists, Akron, O.
Owen, F. D., Roseburg, Ore.
Page, Thomas, Great Barrington, Mass.
Berlier, Phillip, Cincinnati, O.
Washburn, A., & Sons, Bloomington, Pa.
Keller, J. P., Lexington, Pa.
Falconer Floral Co., Falconer, N. Y.
Wright, J. H., Waverly, Ia.
United States Nursery Co., Roseacres, Miss.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

HOOSIERS TO MEET.

The February meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held Tuesday, February 1, with F. Dorner & Sons Co., at La Fayette. Indianapolis florists will leave the traction terminal station on the 8:15 limited car. Remember the date, members, and join the party.

O. E. Steinkamp, Sec'y.

WORTH THE MONEY.

One of the not too numerous satisfying things about the newspaper business is that if one succeeds in attracting readers he at the same time attracts and pleases advertisers. Like this:

In sending $2 for another year of The Review (to Canada) I must say that if it cost $10 I still should subscribe. I consider I save at least $100 per year in buying from its advertisers and in its ads I have before me the largest assortment of offers.—W. W. Walker, St. Catharines, Ont., January 18, 1916.

And this is from the other party to the deal:

Although the ad appeared in the January 13 issue for the first time this season, we are already getting orders from it.—J. B. Goetz Sons, Saginaw, Mich., January 17, 1916.

AFFILIATED.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, the trade body at San Francisco, now has 105 members who also are members of the S. A. F., which will entitle its president for 1916, Eric James, to a seat on the S. A. F. board of directors, under the plan of affiliation adopted at the Boston convention.

CASH CHANGE FOR BAD CHECKS.

The bogus check swindler has turned up again; this time at Baltimore, where he perpetrated his iniquitous scheme on W. Muhly, of 1127 South Charles street. The man came to the store and said he had been commissioned by the Bartlett-Hayward Co. to purchase a funeral piece for an employee who had died the day before. After selecting his design the buyer pulled a check from his pocket with which to pay the bill, which amounted to $6. The check, which was for $10, had the name "Thomas Bartlett" affixed to it and was made payable to the bearer. Mr. Muhly gave the man $4 cash change, but later on, becoming suspicious, he telephoned the Bartlett-Hayward Co. His suspicions were confirmed; the check was a forgery. A good rule is not to cash checks without proper identification and few florists would except with the bait of a sale; then most of us give cash change to total strangers as guilelessly as though the fake had not been reported scores of times.

GLASS IS ADVANCING.

Both window and plate glass advanced last week. Since the first of the year changes amounting to twenty and twenty-five per cent have taken place in this community. The increase is due to the fact that America is supplying practically the entire world, Germany and England manufacturing only sufficient for their own needs and Belgium, formerly a large producer for export, being no longer a factor. There is a heavy South American trade, although the domestic movement is said to be mainly responsible for the heavier orders. The erection of munition factories covering large acreages and using tremendous quantities of window glass has forced an upward movement. Current New York quotations follow:

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

There is no use leading a horse to water if he does not wish to drink. And there is no use sending a man a paper he does not care about enough to pay for; one can not make him read. But, given subscribers who are interested, the results for advertisers are assured. Like this:

In sending my subscription for another year I will say I can not keep greenhouse without The Review. Trying to do business without it would be like sitting down to the table and no bread. Long may you prosper.—J. W. Primmer, Iola, Kan., January 7, 1916.

Please take out our little ad; the paper has done its duty, as usual.—Otto Sylvester & Sons, Oconomowoc, Wis., January 10, 1916.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The peak of the scarcity passed last week. To be sure, the market still is stiff on most items, but nothing to compare with the last few weeks. The milder weather has brought with it a gradual but steady increase in supply and, though the wholesalers are not yet courting new business with any degree of keenness, they are, in most instances, able to take care of all orders from regular customers.

Beauties are rapidly going off crop and many of those that find their way to the market are of decidedly inferior quality. There is a fair supply of other roses in the longer grades. Though there is as yet no pronounced increase in the supply of the short and medium grades, the end of this week will probably find a marked change in these conditions, as many large growers report crops nearly ready for cutting.

The large increase in the supply of carnations is the feature of this week's market. Whereas, a week ago wholesalers were declining orders for carnations, or filling them short, they now are able to fill in full practically all orders received. This, in spite of the fact that short roses are scarce, has a tendency to give the whole market an easier tone.

Miscellaneous stock is far more abundant than it was a week ago, but valley is again found far on the short side. As a result of the heavy funeral work, good lilies are not more than sufficient for the demand. Violets are moving well, as are sweet peas. Light receipts January 24 made it impossible to fill all orders for double violets. Of peas there is a splendid supply of most excellent quality. Bulbous stock has at last made its appearance on the market in sufficient quantities to become an important factor. Paper Whites are in liberal supply and move rapidly. Jonquils, too, find a ready sale. Several colors of tulips afford a fair range of selection to the buyer. Bulbous stock has always been accorded a warm reception in the Chicago market and this season is proving no exception. Cattleyas are not plentiful enough to meet the demand. Stevia is nearly all cut.

Greens, though not short in any particular, are yet moving in a most satisfactory manner.

Various Notes.

Everyone in the east is enthusiastic over the prospects for the coming season, according to Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., who has just returned from a hurry-up trip through that part of the country. Eastern supply manufacturers, he says, find it extremely difficult to get sufficient labor, with the result that many articles are bound to be scarce in the near future, and the question of the buyer must inevitably be, not "How much will it cost?" but "When can I get it?" A new telephone booth for the accommodation of customers has been placed near the Randall elevators.

The two stores of Arthur F. Keenan, on Sixty-third street, are said to have done, in the first three weeks of January this year, one-third more business than in the whole of January in 1915. But Mr. Keenan, in common with other retailers, asserts that the price of cut flowers has been so high good business has profited one little. Magnolia leaves have been the life-saver, he says.

This item may be just a bit premature, but readers of The Review are entitled now and then to be let in on the news before it happens. Note, then, that McKinley day, January 29, also is the anniversary of our popular fellow-townsmen, Otto W. Frese. If it were a wedding it would be golden, the celebration billed for Saturday.

Within a few days Henry M. Hirsch will open his new store in the basement at 37 East Van Buren street, which the Endorsing the view of Emil Buettner, N. J. Wiator says his firm has ceased to make special effort to grow long-stemmed roses. While some long-stemmed stock is necessary to take care of the trade, Mr. Wiator has found the maximum demand is for, and profit in, the medium lengths. He says it costs three times as much to grow long stems as short and the price is not often in that proportion.

"In the opinion of a carnation grower," says Guy W. French, "the Mrs. Russell rose has made good."

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., now drives a Moline-Knight.

Probably it is because the same people own the Rubel candy store on State street and the Fleischman flower store on Jackson boulevard that the latter has been featuring table centerpiece vases that have the bases filled with chocolates. Flowers and candy always make a good combination.

It takes 210,000 plants to stock the benches at Peter Reinberg's carnation range. It is expected to plant about 600,000 in the field this spring, which, with the rooted cuttings sold, means that close to a million cuttings must be taken, or from four to five from each plant on the benches.

The new rose Champ Weiland has found another champion in the person of A. H. Budlong, superintendent of the J. A. Budlong greenhouses. Mr. Budlong waxes quite enthusiastic over its delightful color and fragrance.

One of the handsomest cars in the auto show this week, a Packard Twin Six, bears the monogram "C. L. W." Mr. Washburn denies it soon will make its appearance in Hinsdale.

An improvement in demand has already been noted by Tony Pekarek, proprietor of the California Floral Co., 3402 West Twenty-sixth street, as a result of the easier market conditions. High prices, he says, have a tendency to paralyze business, as the general public cannot be made to understand the cause of the scarcity.

Safe arrival at his prune ranch at Red Bluff, Cal., is reported by Fritz Bahr. He left Chicago January 19.

If you meet A. Henderson at the auto show this week it does not mean he is buying a car, but simply that the bug has bitten deeply. Mr. Henderson recently acquired an Enger.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., left for St. Louis January 24, to attend the carnation convention.

The many friends of Fred Strail will be pleased to learn that he has fully recovered from the illness that compelled him to give up the flower business a couple of years ago. For the last nine months he has been employed by the company operating the Union Loop, but he is beginning to think of getting back into the trade.

At Winterson's Seed Store J. P. Degnan says the early call for catalogues has exceeded anything he ever has known in January. The last page of copy went to the printer January 24, fully three weeks earlier than usual.

The work of superintending the installation of ice machines in different down-state towns has been keeping Henry Koellner, of the Koellner Refrigerator & Ice Machine Co., out of the city the greater part of the last three weeks.

After a severe attack of grip, George

Weiland, of Evanston, is again able to be on the job.

As reported in last week's Review, J. C. Leonard, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, went to Rhinelander, Wis. As a result, he is now suffering with a frosted foot, though still on the job.

The sales force of George Reinberg is again short a man. Adam Kasper is on the sick list.

The next time anyone wants to accompany F. L. Otto, 2131 North Kedzie avenue, into his greenhouse after dark on the pretext of buying a plant, he will probably keep his eyes on the prospective customer. The evening of January 22 a man desired to see a plant, and when well into the greenhouse struck Mr. Otto on the head with a dull instrument. The man then fled, leaving his victim alone. Though not seriously injured, Mr. Otto was not able to be in his store or greenhouse until January 25. The report in the daily papers that he was shot by a former employee is untrue.

The many friends of John Poehlmann, president of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., will be glad to learn that he is able to walk about his room in the north side German hospital. According to the attending physicians, he may be taken to his home about the end of the week.

A new flower store to be known as the Eighteenth Street Florist will be opened at 659 West Eighteenth street, January 26, by J. S. Shermiot and A. Andryanskis.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. will begin work on two houses 36x150

Chicago was well represented at the St. Louis carnation convention this week.

Visitors.

Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., is in town this week, following the meeting of the Tennessee Florists' Association at Nashville, where he read a paper January 24.

One of last week's visitors was A. Herrington, of Madison, N. J., on his way home from a trip to Iowa.

Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, has returned to St. Louis after spending several days in this market.

Among the salesmen whose presence was noted last week were: Paul Berkowitz, member of the firm of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The Buffalo market continues exceedingly short of stock and the wholesalers experience much difficulty in filling their orders. The demand is rather irregular—brisk one day and dull the next.

Beauties are like other roses—they sell on sight at good prices. Anything like a rose sells at a good price, for that matter, from the shortest to the best. Of course, short roses are in extra heavy demand because of the great quantity of funeral work. Colors are entirely forgotten in this work and everybody is mighty glad to get anything. The carnation supply continues even shorter than that of the week previous, and with the continued absence of sunshine there is no immediate relief. The stems of the carnations are somewhat weak. Violets, both double and single, clear nicely. The singles cling to the scarce side. The supply of jonquils is about the same as that of the week before. Narcissi are extremely short, and tulips, freesias and Romans clean up daily. Easter lilies are like carnations and narcissi—unusually scarce. There is an exceptionally heavy demand for lilies on account of so much funeral work. White and yellow daisies, pansies, stevia and myosotis sell quickly. Asparagus Sprengerl and adiantum continue on the short side.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The January thaw has had its effect on the market, increasing the supply of flowers and moderating the prices. This moderation is noticed mostly in carnations and in daffodils. Other flowers are simply easier; that is, the poor and indifferent no longer go in with the good without question. Long-stemmed roses with inferior flowers, weak necks or poor foliage do not go with the first-class stock. Split carnations have dropped a point lower than the better grades. Daffodils have become plentiful. The best now are offered at $4 per 100; these are nearly all Golden Spurs and nearly all are of splendid quality. Sweet peas have improved with the bright sunshine; the orchid varieties are far in the lead. They are more plentiful than a week ago. Violets continue dull. Valley is active at $5. Easter lilies sell well, though most of them have far from large flowers and are inclined to be weak in the stems. Cattleyas—they are all Trianae now—are less plentiful and are in better demand at a shade higher prices. Snapdragon is getting into mid-winter form. Some really superb yellow and pink is offered that sells quickly. American Beauties are becoming exceedingly scarce. White roses no longer sell as quickly as during the last four weeks. The medium and short roses are increasing in number, but their increase is not nearly so marked as that of the carnations. Daisies, both yellow and white, are popular.

The Club's Carnation Night.

Tuesday evening, February 1, will be the annual carnation meeting of the Florists' Club. It will be held in the clubroom at Horticultural hall, Broad street, below Locust street, at 8 p. m. Growers of carnation novelties and standard varieties of merit are cordially invited to send exhibits in time for this meeting to the secretary, David Rust, Horticultural hall, Broad and Locust streets, Philadelphia. The carnations will be carefully staged, and passed upon by the exhibition commit-

Help to Advertise the Show.

The local committee in charge of the National Flower Show, to be held in Convention hall, Broad street and Allegheny avenue, Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2, earnestly asks all florists in the towns of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, who are within reach of the city, to help the committee in making the show successful by writing now to W. Current Events.

Some of the growers have been assuring the wholesalers in this city that if they had shipped their flowers to New York at the holidays they would have realized much better prices for their stock. These statements received a cruel blow last week, when one of the local growers chanced to accost a street merchant on Market street, who was offering some particularly scarce flowers on the curb. "Where did you get those flowers?" the grower asked. "I bought them over in New York," was the prompt reply.

Philip Freud, who knows a lot about bulbs and tells it clearly, explains the situation of the last few months in this way: "The Hollanders went around taking orders for Dutch and French bulbs. They delivered the Dutch bulbs all right, but fell down on the French. We were able to get quite a lot of French bulbs and so helped out many good people who needed them, but there were not nearly enough to go around. It has been a great bulb year."

THE GREATEST QUALITY WE'VE EVER SHOWN! THE GREATEST QUANTITY WE'VE EVER MADE! THE GREATEST VALUE WE'VE EVER GIVEN!

The tremendous growth of our basket business is due to just two things—the Quality and the Price.

When you buy your baskets from the Neidinger Co. you can feel satisfied that you have bought the best and paid the least.

If you have never bought any baskets from the Neidinger Co., let us convince you on our small cut flower baskets for St. Valentine's Day.

They range in price from $1.50 per dozen to $6.00 per dozen.

numbers. Paper Whites are more plentiful and are not moving as well as formerly. The lily and, in fact, anything suitable for funeral work was in good demand last week. Pot plants, such as azaleas, primulas and cyclamens, have been in good demand. Business in general is good and prices in the wholesale market are above the average for this time of the year.

Club Meeting.

A well attended meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore was held January 24. Many interesting topics came up for discussion and the meeting was late in adjourning. The transportation agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was present and invited the club to travel over this road to the National Flower Show, to be held in Philadelphia March 25 to April 2. The fare is $2.16 for a one-way ticket. For a party of forty or more a private car will be furnished.

A talk on landscape work was given by Richard Pratt, followed by a lengthy discussion. It was decided to hold a banquet in connection with the annual election of officers, which will occur in March. A committee, of which F. C. Bauer was made chairman, was appointed to make the necessary arrangements. Walter W. Erdman was elected a member of the club.

Various Notes.

Samuel Feast & Sons had the decorative work at the automobile show. Besides the usual palms and greenery, many dealers had individual decorations, some of which were furnished by this concern. They are offering fine

John Cook, Baltimore's famous rosarian, left last week for his winter sojourn at Miami, Fla. He was accompanied by Mrs. Cook and his daughter, Miss Belle Cook.

Matthew Richmond has been cutting a heavy crop of carnations, his Mrs. C. W. Ward being especially good.

James Glass had the first Dutch hyacinths last week. They were from bulbs grown in southern France and were good both in size and color.

Red Heart Boxes of Quality

FOR VALENTINE'S DAY

Valentine's Day has become a live-wire flower day for the live-wire florist who will put the effort into securing something appropriate for the occasion.

Here is a specialty that cannot fail to attract attention and create new business.

These special heart boxes are of strong, lasting construction, made of heavy, high-grade stock and covered with a special red cover paper. Each one is packed in a container of its own.

QUALITY is the big word in the SCHULTZ organization. SCHULTZ creations are widely imitated and sold by other manufacturers, but SCHULTZ QUALITY is rarely equaled and never surpassed.

SCHULTZ QUALITY is well known throughout the florists' trade, and can be compared with no other. The question of price is never considered where QUALITY is demanded.

Perry and Mack Richmond started for a trip to the growers near Washington, D. C., January 19, but after arriving at Washington a mishap to Mr. Bauer's machine prevented them from visiting any growers. After the car had been repaired it was too late in the day for sight-seeing.

Charles H. Cook disposed of his light delivery car and bought a new one of larger capacity at the automobile show.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The weather last week was quite spring-like. I saw a man plowing yesterday, which is unusual for western Pennsylvania in January. Stock of all kinds is scarce except carnations, which are coming in more plentifully. Tulips are more in evidence, but roses seem to be scarce. The retailers complain that sales of loose flowers have fallen off since prices have held so high. However, there has been a great deal of funeral work, which has cleaned up all the stock coming in. Violets do not seem to feel the effect of the high market.

Various Notes.

The Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania will hold its meeting this week in the Chamber of Commerce room, Keenan building. The speaker will be J. K. M. L. Farquhar, who will give his illustrated lecture, "Through the Gardens of Japan."

The Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club will meet Tuesday, February 1. At this meeting the secretary of the art commission of Pittsburgh will give a stereopticon lecture on "The City Beautiful," followed by discussions.

WE HAVE FOR SALE

On the 8th day of February, 1916, a splendid greenhouse with several acres of land in the town of Lapel, Ind., eight miles west of Anderson, and in one of the finest farming communities in the world. Lapel is a little town of probably 1500 people. The sale will be held on the place on the 8th of February, and the real estate will be sold either as a whole or in parcels, there being about 35 town lots in addition to the greenhouse. The terms of the sale are one-third cash, one-third in nine months, and one-third in eighteen months. Mr. Barnes, who founded this business, had worked up a magnificent business, but unfortunately he died and there is no one in his family that can take his place. It is a splendid opening for someone desiring to engage in the business.

Club Meeting.

Thursday, January 20, the Lancaster County Florists' Club held its monthly meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The meeting was called to order by President B. F. Barr. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Harry A. Schroyer; vice-president, Elmer J. Weaver; secretary, Frank L. Kohr; treasurer, Harry K. Rohrer. President-elect Schroyer took the chair and in a neat inaugural address thanked the club for the high honor conferred upon him. He suggested lines of work to be taken up by the club during the coming year. The committees for the year are: Program—Harry K. Rohrer, Thomas R. Fries, Willis B. Girvin, W. A. Hammond. Membership—B. F. Barr, J. P. Siebold. Visiting—Elmer J. Weaver, Charles B. Herr, Wm. Aherne, Ira H. Landis. Glad hand—J. H. Linkey, E. P. Hostetter, J. R. Shreiner, J. Ralph Hess. Sports—David F. Rose, Rudolph Nagel, C. S. Loeffler. Fall flower show—Albert M. Herr, Maurice J. Brinton, A. F. Strickler, W. R. Denlinger.

It was decided to pay the secretary for his duties each year. S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, was present, and showed a number of vases of the newer carnations. In the reds Aviator, Belle Washburn and Nebraska looked fine. In light pink Dorner's Nancy showed well and seemed to be an improved Pink Delight. Alice Coombs was there in all its glory and it certainly is a beautiful pink. In the Mrs. Ward shade of pink, Miss Theo was one of the most attractive shown. Rosalia also had many admirers. Old Gold, a beautiful yellow to be sent out in 1917, looked like a winner in its color. A. Roper's seedling, No. 360, a beautiful pink, the color of Gorgeous, will find buyers in Lancaster county when it is disseminated. Mr. Pennock urged upon the club the importance of the National Flower Show at Philadelphia and asked for a large attendance from this section. Steps are being taken to secure a special train for the club members and their friends.

Ernest Hoehl, of S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia, spoke of a recent trip to the A. Roper establishment, Tewksbury, Mass., where he saw Alice Coombs carnations, and gave his impressions of the variety's habit of growth, etc. The new members elected were H. S. Williamson, amateur, and B. H. Sterneman, grower for H. A. Schroyer. James Brown, of Coatesville, was a welcome visitor.

A Trip to Strasburg.

The meeting was preceded by a trip to Strasburg to inspect the carnations there. Amos N. Rohrer was first called upon. He grows the standard varieties of carnations and all were in the best possible condition. Mr. Rohrer is one of the best growers in the county. At the Chas. B. Herr range, Mrs. Ward and Mrs. Akehurst are grown as the pink varieties. The latter does well here. Matchless is grown for white and Mr. Herr's batch was a sight not easily forgotten. For red Mr. Herr still grows Beacon, and the beds of it look as robust and thrifty as the day it was disseminated, and, as far as profit is concerned, it may be placed close to the top of the column. A bed of Champion is in bloom, but I doubt its ability to displace old Beacon. Alice does well and is liked. A bench of Dagmar showed remarkable quality. Last, but not least, is the planting of Enchantress Supreme, which is much thought of by Mr. Herr. The establishment throughout is a model of order and cleanliness and reflects the ability of a master of the profession.

The next meeting of the club will be held February 17, and the Willis B. Girvin greenhouses, at Leola, Pa., will be visited on the same day.

Various Notes.

D. T. Connor, of the Lord & Burnham Co., Philadelphia, has secured an order for two large greenhouses from B. F. Barr.

Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel P. Hostetter, of Manheim, Pa., entertained at dinner January 23. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Weaver and H. K. Rohrer. Mr. Hostetter's greenhouses were inspected. There are immense plantings of orchid-flowering sweet peas of the highest quality in bloom, and many blooms with 24-inch stems were noted. Several shades selected and developed by Mr. Hostetter are good and will bear watching. Houses of yellow marguerites from 2-year-old plants are furnishing immense quantities of extra long-stemmed choice blooms. Beds of a white sport from Primula Forbesi are all in bloom.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market was in a poor condition last week because of the shortage of stock. The demand was steady and the volume of trade satisfactory. The cloudy weather is blamed for the extreme shortage of stock. The supply of carnations increased during the latter part of the week and orders for them are again being filled in full. A glut in carnations is predicted for the end of the month. Roses, too, have increased somewhat in supply, but still bring high prices. A drop in prices is looked for by the end of this week. Violets are coming in more plentifully and are of good quality. Sweet peas are fine, not yet plentiful, but sufficient to fill all orders. The dark weather has hurt the quality of these. Valley and lilies sell well and maintain their usual prices.

Various Notes.

The executive committee which had charge of the meeting and exhibition of the Carnation Society held a meeting at Windler's Wholesale Floral Co., January 20, and completed all arrangements for receiving and entertaining the visitors. The chairmen of the various committees reported all work completed and ready for the opening.

The attendance at the meeting of the Retail Florists' Association, held January 17, at the Mission Inn Garden, was large. A lecture with lantern slides, given by the National Cash Register Co., was much enjoyed by the members. The election of officers resulted in the renomination of the present officers. The members of this association play an important part in this week's carnation convention and they agree to do all in their power to assure its success.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its meeting February 2, at the Eleven Mile House. According to Secretary Deutschmann, the members will attend the carnation exhibition this week. A general discussion of the exhibition will take place at this meeting and a full attendance is expected.

W. C. Smith, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., commenting on the shortage of stock, says he never before saw so great a shortage at this time of the year on roses. All local growers are off crop at the same time, but the big cut is coming soon.

W. W. Ohlweiler, chairman of the spring flower show committee, says the committeemen are working hard on plans for the show and that a lengthy report will be given at the next meeting of the Florists' Club.

The St. Louis Seed Co. has a peculiar fish on exhibition this week. The National Aquarium Society of America will hold a meeting at this company's store, 411 Washington avenue, this week.

Hugo Gross, of Kirkwood, who consigns his cut to H. G. Berning, says the dark weather caused the sweet pea buds to drop badly. His cut of peas, violets and bulbous stock has been quite large this season and the quality has been excellent.

Carl Doerflinger, who has charge of Mr. Keller's private place at Overland, Mo., says he has a nice house of tomatoes and cucumbers. Mr. Keller expects to add more glass shortly.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club will hold their monthly conference at the home of W. W. Ohlweiler, 4116 Russell avenue, next week. A program will be made for the February meeting of the club.

David Geddis, manager of Vander voort's flower department, says he expects to take in the National Flower Show at Philadelphia in March. He is making efforts to induce others to make the trip with him and has hopes of quite a large representation from St. Louis.

Martin B. Lechner, of Lechner Bros., bulb importers, informs me that he will start next week on a two months' trip through Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Illinois. This firm is pleased with its new location in the Caxton building.

F. C. Weber, the Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., Sanders, the Young Bros. Floral Co. and F. H. Weber, all west end florists, report good orders for decorations. The scarcity of stock is the only complaint heard.

BOSTON.

The Market.

At last a break in prices has come. It is doubtful if Boston ever had so long a spell of high prices as the one which started a few days before Christmas and ended January 22. The cause of the drop, which had been expected, was a warm wave which sent the temperature up to 66 degrees January 22, the highest ever recorded in January in this city. Carnations were the first to decline, roses suffering January 24. There is no real slump, however, such as we had a year ago, and the prospects for a fine winter's trade are excellent.

Roses still are selling well, but lower than a week ago. All short-stemmed stock made $6 per hundred until January 24. Beauties are moving a little better, with lower prices. There is a shortage of short-stemmed stock, which keeps prices up on this grade. Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Richmond and D'Arenberg are all good and sell well. Sunburst is somewhat off color and in short supply. Russell, Shawyer and Stanley are all eagerly bought and, as yet, there is no surplus of either Killarney or White Killarney. Carnations are on the decline. Up to January 22 nothing had sold below $4. The quality is fine. Violets are lower. The habit of wearing these flowers on the streets died out a few years ago and they have not sold so well since that time.

Sweet peas are much more numerous and sell well, especially the Spencers. Dutch bulbous stock is arriving in much larger quantities and has dropped in price. Freesias are lower; so are callas and lilies. Yellow marguerites and bachelor's buttons sell well. Mignonette now is abundant. Of calendulas there is a heavy supply. Pansies continue to clean up well, as well as forget-me-not and English primroses.

Valley is more abundant and somewhat lower in price; so are cattleyas. Gardenias still bring $6 per dozen for

Various Notes.

On and after January 28 Penn's store at 43 Bromfield street will be closed and all business transacted from the new store at 124 Tremont street. The Robert Burns window at the Tremont street store, arranged by J. Eisman, has been attracting crowds of visitors and is the finest thing of the kind to be seen in Boston. It practically transports one to the land of Burns and one can almost smell the heather of the moorlands when viewing it.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, the well known violet specialist, had a narrow escape from drowning January 16, when skating with his children on the Charles river. It was getting somewhat dusk when he skated into a hole where the water was thirty to forty feet deep. Fortunately, he managed to support himself by the arms on the ice until he was pulled out. As the temperature was 14 degrees above zero, he was well chilled when he got home,
several miles distant.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, is cutting splendid La Reine tulips and Golden Spur narcissi. His cold storage lilies have a high reputation here.

been apologizing to his customers for some weeks for having to charge such high prices. He hopes soon to move large quantities at popular prices.

Dr. George F. Moore will deliver an illustrated lecture at Horticultural hall
January 29, on the Missouri Botanical Garden, of St. Louis.

Robert Montgomery, of Natick, has had a fine cut of roses since Christmas.
His leaders are Russell, Hadley, Ophelia,
Sunburst and the Killarneys.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, now has several houses of grandiflora and Spencer sweet peas in full crop. He cut 60,000 last week. His single violets are doing well.

The Budlong Rose Co. is growing gar-denias this season. The entire cut goes to The Rosery, on Clarendon street.
They are the finest gardenias arriving here. This company has a big cut of roses, with few short-stemmed ones.
Some of its finest now are Stanley, Russell, Shawyer, Maryland, Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, Hadley, D'Arenberg and the pretty little Evelyn Nesbit.

Thomas Roland, of Nahant, now is getting a splendid crop of Spencer sweet peas from one of his big houses at Revere. His roses also are in good crop.

The Halifax Garden Co. is strong this season on Mrs. Ward, Matchless, Enchantress Supreme, Benora, Beacon, Pink Delight and White Perfection carnations. In roses their finest are Ward, Ophelia, Hadley, Maryland, Taft and Sunburst. They also have excellent snapdragons and mignonette.

Lively & Bond, of Holbrook, are sending in fine lots of Campernelles, Golden Spurs, callas and carnations, and report a successful season.

and Florists' Club, January 15, will bring out a notable display of carnations, including the leading novelties. All flowers sent to Horticultural hall, Boston, will be promptly cared for.

Chatelaine begonias are becoming quite popular on the market here. A. F. Coolidge, of Cambridge, well known as a nephrolepis specialist, has a splendid lot of this begonia.

John Newman and J. Shannon & Son, of Woburn, each has splendid single violets this season. Mr. Newman is strong on calendulas, mignonette and Paper Whites.

A. R. Smith, of West Newton, has an excellent lot of calendulas, English primroses and Asparagus Sprengeri. Burgess & Cooney, of Maplewood, also have English primroses, in addition to their bulbous stock and carnations.

Cahill & Beasley, of East Milton, and W. E. Turner, of Woburn, are large shippers of pansies at present.

A. G. Lundquist is another of our calendula specialists who grows them well. He also has single violets, Paper Whites, Campernelles and Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri.

From H. Johnson, of Woburn, Paper Whites and calendulas now are of excellent quality.

The Mishawum Flower Co., of Woburn, is the largest shipper of cut longiflorum lilies to the wholesale market at present.

J. Streiferd & Son, of East Braintree, are having good success this season with Killarney and White Killarney roses, as well as with carnations and callas.

H. S. Rogers terminates sixteen years of continuous service with Penn's this week. A. L. Brock also leaves. Both have been in the Bromfield street store.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has a grand lot of giganteum lilies coming on for Easter. He is cutting heavily on valley now.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, is one of the few growers bringing in Mrs. Sander marguerite. His carnations are doing splendidly.

W. A. Riggs, of Auburndale, is marketing a splendid lot of tulips, daffodils and hyacinths in pans. The Suter-meister estate, of Readville, has fine batches of these.

The Boston members, who left for the St. Louis carnation convention January 24, were fewer than expected. A.
A. Pembroke did not make the trip. A.
Roper and others, however, took along exhibits.

Carnation Miss Theo, of Littlefield &
Wyman, is looking splendid now and sells on sight in the market here. It is an excellent rose-pink variety.

WACO, TEX.

The Mohan Floral Co. has opened a store in the Bankers Trust building, Sixth and Austin streets, the most popular corner in town, where an attractive window display is made. The business was too much for the old store.
There now are four good flower stores in Waco.

Wolfe the Florist expects to enlarge the greenhouses this season. Business is reported as being good.

The Waco Floral Co. reports business as being extra good. It had a slight loss from frost last week.

Cut flowers have been scarce for a week or so and the weather has been bad.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The cutting off of many small towns by flood naturally made business quiet last week, and express shipments were held up both ways, causing much inconvenience. The non-arrival of The Review was looked upon as one of the chief inconveniences to the trade last week, but as even first-class mail from the north and east did not arrive, The Review's delay was explained. From nearby towns the reports of flood damages make rather sad reading—acres of fine orange and other orchards were washed away. In Los Angeles and immediate vicinity we have been singularly fortunate and the good work done by the city and county authorities is bearing fruit. Possibly because people were driven indoors by the rain, cut flowers and plants were in good demand, while funeral work was brisk. Roses still are scarce and naturally all outdoor stock has suffered and is short. At the time of writing the weather is clearing and the water receding, but it is unsafe to prophesy anything. We have, however, had about three times as much rain to date as fell at this time last year, so we have hopes of fine weather soon.

Various Notes.

With three nurserymen directors on the board of the Montebello Land & Water Co., it appears as though the rest of the trade in that rapidly advancing section ought to be well looked after, especially when the directors are three live wires like Fred Howard, J. Dieterich and H. W. Turner. This is sure some combination on the water wagon—no!—board.

Friends who knew G. W. Newman, late of the S. Murata Co., were greatly shocked when a rumor reached the city that he had been shot in Mexico. So far no contradiction of the report has been received. If this is true, Mr. Newman leaves a wife and several children.

R. Garland, of the force of Wright's Flower Shop, is handing the cigars around, the occasion being the arrival of an 8-pound boy.

John Fincken has joined Paul Staiger. The partnership between them is settled. The business in the future will be known as Staiger & Fincken. Mr. Fincken is a skilled grower and clever decorator, and with two practical men like these there ought to be a good business done. Several changes are to be made at the salesyard at Washington street and a new lath house is to be built. The stock, both here and at the Lomita growing quarters, is in excellent shape.

One of the most beautiful roses ever grown at the H. W. Turner place undoubtedly is Willowmere. The soft pink with the golden yellow base is a superb color combination. This variety has the vigor necessary to a good forcing rose and plenty of petalage. Hoosier Beauty is extra fine here and a great favorite with retailers. A single or semi-double rose called Old Gold—something in the way of Irish Fireflame but larger—is unusually taking in the bud, while among the baby roses the pure white Schneewittchen is especially beautiful.

H. R. Richards.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business continues good, and while there is not quite such a scarcity of flowers as during the last two weeks there are none too many, which condition makes for better business for all concerned. Carnations have loosened up a little and more of them are coming to town, but not enough for the demand, which is a good thing. Paper Whites are plentiful, but sell well, and Romans are abundant. Not much other bulbous stock is on sale. A few pots of tulips and hyacinths are coming in. Roses are selling well and the supply of them seems to be adequate. There is plenty of valley, and orchids are in most of the stores. Of pot plants many good cyclamens are here and cinerarias are fairly plentiful. Azaleas come in slowly and good ones are hard to procure.

Various Notes.

Owing to alterations in the building lately occupied by the Crescent Flower Shop, Thomas Rhoades, the owner, has given up his store and has accepted the position of manager of the Flower Shop, on Pike street.

H. E. Rasmussen, who for a number of years has conducted a nursery on Broadway, combining this business with landscape gardening, has relinquished the ground occupied by him and has secured an important position near Tampa, Fla., where he is to be engaged in laying out an estate for Mrs. Potter Palmer. Mr. Rasmussen has had considerable experience, having been employed at this kind of work for a number of years in the north of England, prior to which he gained considerable knowledge on the continent. During his sojourn in Seattle Mr. Rasmussen was a strong advocate of the best in city improvements. He has laid out several places which bear witness to his taste and skill and he has always been a helper in anything that stood for betterment in matters connected with the trade. His friends here, while regretting his departure, wish him every success in his new line of endeavor.

Monte Christensen, who has been managing the Flower Shop, on Pike street, has had to go to California on account of Mrs. Christensen's poor health. It is hoped the change may prove beneficial.

Rosaia Bros. have rebuilt the boiler house at their greenhouses, which recently was destroyed by fire. The new structure is of corrugated iron and

F. T. Quillan, who has been principal grower at the Frank Bell greenhouses for a considerable time, has given up his position there. He has gone into partnership with A. E. The Market.

Counter trade has increased and the street venders are handling considerable stock, despite the high prices and bad weather. The trade really would be in poor shape were it not for the funeral trade, which continues active. Of course there is some social work, and the retailers are counting on the opera season, beginning January 30, for a good deal of business. It is hoped that stock will be easier by that time. It has rained almost constantly, with a low temperature that held everything back, and nothing is really plentiful. Carnations are coming in fairly well, but clean up early, and even fairly good stock sells at a good figure. The crop of freesias is under way, but the flowers are high, while daffodils and Chinese lilies remain scarce and bring extremely high prices. A few hyacinths are coming in. It seems that only a few growers undertook to bring in forced daffodils this year, and those that did are cleaning up well. The few forced tulips in pots are quite an attraction. Violets are about as scarce as those of the week previous. Only a few growers are bringing in roses to amount to anything. One or two are getting a fair cut of American Beauties and some nice stock is offered in other varieties. Easter lilies are high; valley is short. Cut cyclamen is fairly popular and quite a lot of it is used; the plants find no great demand. Gardenias are short, but of nice quality. Acacia is blooming nicely and comes in handy for decorations. Pussy willow is more plentiful. Many shops are making a fine orchid display. Aside from cattleyas and phalænopsis, there are many good lœlias, oncidiums and odontoglossums. The forced azaleas are less in evidence and rhododendrons still are scarce and rather poor. Camellias and heather do fairly well and a few first-class primulas are offered. Potted ferns find no great demand, but considerable quantities of smilax and cut adiantum are wanted.

Various Notes.

Most of the growers have been out of valley, but P. Ferrari still is bringing in a good cut and is not cleaned out yet.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has been receiving large shipments of galax leaves and has done a good business on this item. This company has a fine crop of smilax under lath, which is moving out in good shape, and its cut of roses is about the only really large offering, the Beauties being especially good.

J. A. Carbone, the Berkeley orchid grower, has been holding back a large crop of phalænopsis, which now is beginning to come in. He also has some good lœlias and other varieties, all of which are in good demand.

A. O. Stein reports considerable decorative business. He had the Prager wedding decoration at San Mateo January 16, for which the color scheme was yellow, and he took about all the daffodils he could find, besides oncidiums and acacia.

Emile Serveau, of Fillmore street, says sales have been good for this time of year, at which time he never looks for any rush.

The Sunset Nursery, of Oakland, recently received a large shipment of oriental plants.

Podesta & Baldocchi have installed an "orchid tree" in one of their windows and are using it effectively for displays of orchids, of which they now are keeping a considerable variety on hand.

The Jordan Park Floral Co., at 323 Clement street, reports a fair business ever since the holidays, though the scarcity of stock is found to be quite a handicap.

H. J. Kessel, of the Richmond Fernery, reports a strong demand for Adiantum California, keeping his plants close-

Trade brightened noticeably after the cold spell broke on the night of January 19. There was a general increase in orders for decorations and funeral work. Consequently, during the latter part of the week there was a most acute shortage of stock. Shipping orders could be filled only partly and it took close figuring to make the flowers cover the local demand.

Growers of bulbous stock complain that a high percentage of the bulbs are non-productive, or yield inferior blooms. In some cases there have been total losses and one large shipment was condemned and never taken out of the customhouse. It is claimed that the bulbs were heated in transit because of the careless stowing on steamers and delays en route.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Portland Floral Society, held January 18, plans of the floral center, a feature of the rose festival to be held here June 6 to 9, were presented. James O. Convill, the festival director in charge of the floral center, stated that the plans prepared by Julius Dossche had been officially accepted by the board of directors and that Mr. Dossche had been appointed his assistant to carry them out. He said the directors were depending on the floral center to form one of the most prominent features of the festival and had appropriated enough money to produce a larger and more perfect center than that of last year.

Mr. Dossche called attention to the expectations of the festival board and stated that it would require the best efforts of all the growers to furnish one of those who wrote promptly. This is the reply he received, under date of January 17, from Congressman Horace M. Towner:

"At once upon receipt of your letter with regard to H. R. 636, I took the matter up with Mr. Anderson, who introduced the bill. He did not seem to know anything about it, but after looking the matter up told me that the bill was introduced by mistake; that it had been drafted in the last Congress, and that when he told his secretary to re-introduce his bills this one was by mistake included among them. He says that he does not want it passed and will withdraw it, so there is no danger of the bill being passed.

"We are facing an unusual number of hard problems this session, and it seems as if matters are getting worse all the time. However, I suppose we will blunder through in some way or other, and sincerely hope that we will not do more harm than good."

"WHATEVER YOU THINK."

Congressmen are coming to recognize that a considerable percentage of the public does not approve of free seeds. The editor of The Review, who lives in the district represented by James R. Mann, found this circular letter in his home mail the other day:

I have requested the Agricultural Department to mail to you sometime later under my signature a small package of the flower seed which the government is distributing this year. These are good seeds and ought to be used. If you can not make use of them yourself, give them to someone who will. Whatever may be thought of the propriety of the government doing this kind of thing, these seeds if used will afford someone instruction and pleasure, if planted, and add beautiful flowers where otherwise there might be vacant space or ugly weeds. Help to make Chicago beautiful. The planting of seed by the children should be particularly encouraged.

IS "SHOWING" THEM.

The University of Missouri College of Agriculture is doing the trade a service in showing planters that it pays to patronize seedsmen of established reputation. "Cheap garden seed is often dear at any price," says its bulletin. "A high price is not necessarily a guarantee of high quality, but it does not pay to buy cheap seeds which may not grow, or may not produce vegetables of a good variety if they do grow. The loss of time and ground is so great that the slightly higher cost of seeds furnished by reliable firms saves the planter money in the long run.

"The buyer must depend entirely upon the reputation of the seedsman to insure his getting seed of the variety

No, you are all wrong if you think wearing skirts makes business a cinch. Oh, no, business is business on strictly business principles, that is, if you want to compete with the best competitors, and they are none too good at times; knocks and bumps all develop when you touch the other fellow's dollar; and I can tell a few confidential stories on the combination of business-girl, sweetheart and competitor in one little person. It takes some temperament, I know it from experience, but it's great to be in the swim, anyway; sometimes I think my nerve and confidence are made of cork, they can't sink; but I sure have had some battles.

May the Lord love the men! Most of the live ones like women, but some of them wouldn't trust their own mother, but bless their good hearts, most of them trust me as much as they do the other Bulb Peddlers. I know this, I can only fool them once and then be ancient history if I fail to please; a man is not so forgiving at times; I must deliver the goods, if I want a good come-back. The quality of lily bulbs differs more than the quality of most other bulbs and as growers' profits are regulated so largely by that quality, it is most necessary to get the best there is. Now, there are no better lily bulbs grown than Horseshoe Brand Giganteum. They cost more to grow than most other brands, and they are worth more to a grower than any brand we know of, considering the average results. You can rely upon this brand more than most brands because it is more uniform year after year. Price in some bulbs is a very important factor in the profit, but the fellow who buys lily bulbs by price, will get burnt forty-nine times out of fifty. Prices fluctuate in bulbs just as they do in wheat, potatoes, or any other commodity. Send for prices on lily bulbs before buying elsewhere, especially if you want quantities.

Burpee-Quality Seeds Help Solve the Market Problem

It is our pleasure to record a greatly improved market condition, and we confidently predict that 1916 will prove a most prosperous season for the Market Grower.

Many causes contributed to the unsatisfactory vegetable market of 1915, and it is also true that these same causes created a most profitable market for Staples, such as Wheat, Corn, Oats, etc.

During 1915 we attended many meetings where market growers gathered to formulate plans to overcome the then prevailing unfavorable conditions. Much good resulted from these conventions, as they have proved beyond question that inferior produce in large quantities, dumped without thought of quality or condition, has done more to demoralize the markets than any other factor.

The discussion at these meetings have brought the invariable conclusion that Quality Produce did sell—and sell well—at the highest price obtainable.

Quality Produce can no more be the harvest of inferior seed than high-bred cattle can be the produce of inferior or diseased stock Burpee's Seeds are known the world over as the American Standard of Excellence. When you buy Burpee's Seeds the element of doubt is removed so far as is possible by human care.

A careful canvass of our Market Grower friends has brought this answer: "Yes, we certainly grew first-class crops from Burpee's Seeds."

The conclusion is inevitable: Burpee's Seeds grow Quality Produce, and Quality Produce brought good prices. Burpee's Seeds help solve the market problem.

Did you use Burpee's Seeds in 1915? If not, we earnestly solicit your orders for 1916. The profit is mutual.

Burpee's Annual for 1916, our complete retail catalogue of 182 pages, has already been made. If you have failed to receive it, please write us at once and a duplicate copy will be forwarded.

Sincerely yours,

Agriculture has sent to Congress a detailed statement of the purchases, of which the above is a recapitulation. The place, quantity, price and date on each purchase is given, but not the name of the seller. For instance, February 4, 1914, 30,000 pounds of radish seed in five varieties at 8½ cents per pound was purchased on one order from someone at Chicago, Ill. Those who care for such information should ask their congressman to send a copy of Senate Document 234.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

The Holmes-Letherman Seed Co., of Canton, O., will celebrate its anniversary by moving into new quarters, a short distance from the old stand. Manager H. L. Holmes piloted me through the new building now almost completed, which will lack nothing to make it thoroughly up-to-the-minute in every respect. It is fire and vermin-proof. The ground floor is 32x103 and the basement is much larger. The upper floors will be used temporarily as offices.

The Botzum Bros. Co., of Akron, O., is busy packeting and filling early orders for its extensive counter trade.

The Van Gorder-Hapgood Co. and the Masters-Dougherty Co., of Warren, O., have their full complements of seed. The scarcity in some insecticides is causing anxiety. W. M.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Roman J. Irwin, New York, N. Y.—"Florists' Wholesale Catalogue of Plants, Cuttings, Bulbs, Choice Flower Seeds and Supplies"; thirty-two long, narrow pages, in pocket form; well illustrated.

Farmer Seed & Nursery Co., Faribault, Minn.—Two catalogues, both illustrated. One is a 24-page trade list, chiefly of vegetable seeds, "for market gardeners and truckers." The other is a 128-page general catalogue of vegetable, farm and flower seeds, bulbs, nursery stock, garden tools and sundries.

C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland—This is a combination of calendar and catalogue. The front cover is in the form of a calendar and bears a colored picture of Queen Wilhelmina. The four inside pages contain lists of bulbs, azaleas, araucarias, palms and other Belgian stock.

Axel Knudsen, Minneapolis, Minn., agent for L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, Denmark—Wholesale catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds. It is well printed, finely illustrated and bound in a substantial cover, on which is inscribed the motto, "Buy cabbage seed in the cabbage country." Contains eighteen extra large pages, besides two full-page colored plates and several pages of inserts.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.—A 36-page wholesale list of roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, greenhouse flowering plants, palms and other ornamentals, bedding plants, hardy perennials and nursery stock. A catalogue of excellent quality, as to typography, illustrations and general arrangement.

German Nurseries & Seed House, Beatrice, Neb.—Two editions of the "Garden Book," one of them printed in English, the other in German. The English edition contains 128 pages; the German, 136 pages. Both are illustrated. Besides comprehensive lists of both nursery stock and seeds, the books offer sprayers and spraying materials, tools and other requisites.

Wood, Stubbs & Co., Inc., Louisville, Ky.—Eighteenth annual catalogue of "Blue Ribbon" seeds, bulbs, plants, ornamental trees and shrubs, roses, fruit trees, small fruits, implements and sundries; ninety-six pages, well illustrated. Tobacco, cotton and other southern seeds are included. Considerable space is given to insecticides, spraying formulas, etc.

Martin Kohankie, Painesville, O.—Wholesale list of hardy perennials, pot plants, shrubs and roses; eight large pages. Included in the shrubbery is some small stock for transplanting.

Ochs Grain Co., Holsington, Kan.—Fourth annual catalogue of vegetable, flower and farm seeds, poultry foods, garden tools, etc.; ninety-six pages, illustrated. Is especially comprehensive in forage seeds and allied lines.

G. H. Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—An 80-page, illustrated general catalogue of seeds, bulbs, roots, fertilizers, insecticides, garden tools, poultry supplies, etc. All lines of seed are well represented in the book. Seed corn seems to be one of the specialties, but the warning is given that "seed corn is very scarce and should be ordered early."

This Time Try Sutton's Seeds

NONE ARE AS CAREFULLY TESTED

MANY a new thing that looked good in many a catalogue has proved a failure or an impossible freak when it came to growing it. Back of everything you buy of Sutton's is their known reputation for extreme care in testing out everything they put out.

You will find the catalogue tells, plainly and frankly, exactly what each item is. No wordy beauty flights.

It's one of the reasons why you can feel entirely safe in ordering any of the many new and unusual things in our catalogue this year.

You know full well that no one tests their productions as carefully or as constantly as we do.

Send 35 cents for our 190-page catalogue, which amount will be refunded on your first order for $5.00.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

HOW TO APPLY FORMALDEHYDE.

We are taking the liberty of writing you in regard to the use of formaldehyde in sterilizing lettuce soil. If you can advise us, we shall appreciate it greatly. S. B.—N. Y.

While formaldehyde is not so satisfactory as steam for sterilizing soil, it is more convenient. In my experiments with stem-rot of carnations, one part of formaldehyde to 150 parts of water, applied at the rate of one gallon per square foot of bench, gave fairly good results. After drenching the bench, newspapers were placed over the soil for forty-eight hours to retain the fumes of formaldehyde. Under normal conditions the soil will be dry enough to plant about three days after the solution is applied. It will cost in the neighborhood of 1½ cents per square foot to sterilize your soil with formaldehyde. G. L. P.

TOMATOES.

I want to grow tomatoes inside in the spring and would like some light on the subject. I will start them about March 1. I grew some Earliana last year and succeeded quite well, but I do not know how to trim them up. What I had grew all over the place. I have seen them trained up and would like some information about this. G. S.—N. J.

Train your tomatoes to a single stem. This simply means that you must let the main stem grow unpinched and rub off all side shoots, or laterals, as they appear. Grown to single stems, your plants can be set twenty to twenty-four inches apart in the row and they can be run up to any necessary height. Usually, however, it is best to pinch

You will likewise find it to your interest to place your orders now for Cyclamen, Seedlings and Plants; Begonias, Cincinnati and Lorraine, etc., for next season's delivery. And how about your Carnation Cuttings? For a list of varieties and prices, as well as other stock you may want, see our classified ads.

than usual. We have not suffered the shortage that other parts of the country have, however, but no one has had anything to throw away. It was hard to get stock from out of town that was fit to offer.

We have had much rain for January and a week of winter weather during which the thermometer registered nearly zero. It is warm again and snowdrops and winter aconite cheer up the lawns. We have had them in plenty the last three or four days. Daffodils are well up and, should it not turn cold again, there will be blooms in a fortnight. There is a good supply of everything, especially carnations and roses. Carnations are good in quality and the growers are making good wholesale shipments daily. Prices on carnations are better. Violets are scarce and most of those used are shipped in. This is unusual for this city at this season. Peas are scarce, few having been planted early. Those offered clean up quickly. Orchids have been slow in coming in and it is becoming a question whether they will be here in sufficient quantities to meet the demand for Valentine's day. Roses are of better quality and the assortment of varieties is good. Plant trade is opening nicely at wholesale and everyone is busy propagating as rapidly as he can, for a heavy plant business is expected this year.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Tanner, sister of Floyd Bralliar, was killed in an automobile accident near Macon, Ga., January 6, and Mr. Bralliar's father was severely injured in the same accident. Mr. Bralliar went to Macon at once and brought back his father to a Nashville sanitarium and took his sister's remains to Iowa for interment.

The Tennessee Florists' Association met here January 24 in conjunction with the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association.

The Joy Floral Co. is doing a good wholesale business, being sold out most of the time. The company is doing more business this January than it has ever done during any corresponding month.

Geny Bros. are cutting the best Radiance roses that I have seen this season. They also have good potted azaleas.

Haury & Sons have moved into their new quarters on Church street. The new store has more display room, better windows and a better location. This is a big step for this concern and should be the beginning of bigger business.

McIntyre Bros. had a good display of pot plants in their show room. They are cutting roses and carnations of good quality.

Joe Browne has his place in splendid shape for spring business. He is having good business this winter. F. B.

Fort Smith, Ark.—Probably the heaviest loser in Fort Smith during the recent cold wave was George Rye, "Some Florist," who sustained a damage of about $500 to plants and spring seedlings.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. J.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 28 to 30, 1916.

G. HOWARD FROST, proprietor of the Brae Burn Nursery, of West Newton, Mass., has been elected president of the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association.

JAMES M. FRYE, a widely known nurseryman of Winchester, Va., passed away last week after a lingering illness. During the Civil war, Mr. Frye was a member of the Eleventh Virginia Cavalry of the Confederate army and while in that service was severely wounded by a bullet passing through his body. He was about 80 years of age and is survived by a widow, three daughters and one son.

RECORD recently has been made at Chicago of the sale of forty-nine acres of the Peterson Nursery holdings for an expressed consideration of $83,600. The purchaser will subdivide. William A. Peterson states that he has five years in which to remove the nursery stock now on the tract. Last summer he added eighty acres on the other side of the nursery holding, which will be brought into use as required, so that the nursery still holds its record as the largest undivided tract of acre property in the city of Chicago.

IMPORTS OF 1914-15.

It is interesting to note that in the fiscal year of the government ending June 30, 1915, the imports of nursery stock were almost the same in quantity

PAPER POTS

ROCHELLE—See page 111

as in the year ending June 30, 1914, before the war. The imports for 1914 were 57,525 cases, as against 57,192 cases in 1915, a year of war.

The table compiled each year by the Federal Horticultural Board, showing the count of nursery stock imports, together with country of origin, presents

IMPORTATIONS OF NURSERY STOCK DURING THE YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1915.

Country of origin.	Fruit trees.	Fruit-tree stocks.	Grapevines.	Bush fruits.	Roses.	Rose stocks.	Forest and ornamental deciduous trees.	Ornamental deciduous shrubs.	Coniferous trees other than pines. San Diego and San Francisco Gold Medals (At Both Big Fairs) for Swas-teeka Cannas

When the two greatest exhibitions ever held on the Pacific Coast send their gold medals all this way east, it means something more than success at a local show. It means that, of all the world's greatest growers, not one could produce Cannas to equal Swas-teekas, let alone to beat them.

Here are some of the prize-winners and a few others. All these Swas-teekas deserve a medal.

20, including five each of the above, for $4.00, delivered; or 4, one of each of the above, for $1.50, delivered.

	Per 12	100
Conowingo, B. Red, 5 ft.....	$ 4.00
Golden Gate, Yellow, 4 ft.....	$3.50	25.00
Juanita, Chrome Yellow, 4 ft... 1.50	10.00
Kate F. Deemer, Yellow, 4 ft.	4.00

(B. indicates Bronze foliage)

You'll surely need some of them this season. Better order now, because the best ones have the habit of getting sold out pretty early.

WHITE PINE BLISTER RUST.

The Secretary of Agriculture deems it necessary, in order to effectively prevent the introduction into the United States of the white pine blister rust (Peridermium strobi Kleb.), to extend the provisions of Notice of Quarantine No. 7, issued May 21, 1913, to forbid the importation of all five-leaved pines from the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland.

Because the white pine blister rust exists in the states of New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania, the Federal Horticultural Board deems it necessary to quarantine said states, or such portions thereof as may be found to be essential, in accordance with Section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, to prevent the movement from said states to other states and territories of five-leaved pine nursery stock and black currant nursery stock.

Because of the rust the authorities the stem and root of young seedlings. The loss from this source is not generally appreciated, for the poor stand of seedlings is frequently laid to poor germination. While the loss in one year from this cause may amount to only ten per cent, yet in the next year damping off may cause a total failure of the stand. This uncertainty of crop has resulted in the high cost of coniferous trees for forest planting and has in the past caused American nurserymen to purchase their seedling stock in Europe. On account of the white pine blister rust and the pine shoot moth introduced on imported pines from Europe, an embargo has been placed on all pine nursery stock grown in Europe. This makes it doubly important that the damping off of seedlings be controlled.

A measure of control has been secured at some nurseries by the use of sterile subsoil, but this is not altogether practicable when considered on a large scale. Excessive moisture and shade in the seed bed should be avoided. Seeds should not be sown more thickly than necessary to secure a good stand, for a crowded stand makes it easier for the damping-off fungi to spread from one plant to another. Sowing in summer or late fall has resulted in decreased losses at some nurseries and is worthy of trial.

Soil disinfection, however, has proved the best method of combating the disease. Sulphuric acid, copper sulphate, zinc chloride and formaldehyde have given better results than a large number of other chemicals used, in experiments carried on in twenty-one different localities.

It is only possible to learn by trial just which chemical agent will best control damping off in any given locality or on a given soil, but any nurseryman who contemplates the use of soil disinfectants should write to the Department of Agriculture, for specific advice adapted to his particular location, and keep the department informed of his experience.

central feature will be some large beds of roses about a rose fountain. There are sixteen booths for community exhibits arranged along the sides of the plat. The plans were officially accepted by the society and Mr. Conwill was assured that the members would unite in an effort to make the floral center come fully up to expectations.

F. A. Van Kirk was added to the membership of the committee on exhibitions, which has the rose festival matters in charge. Complying with the provisions of the by-laws, the chair appointed a nominating committee consisting of the following: John Holden, chairman; E. H. White, F. A. Van Kirk, J. Feser, A. J. Clarke, Otto Lemke, H. A. Lewis. The committee will report at the May meeting and candidates will be elected at the June meeting.

H. A. Lewis, president of the Multnomah County Fair Association, stated that more money would be set aside for floral beds on the fair grounds at Gresham, and asked the assistance of the society in getting growers to make exhibits. A committee with power to act was authorized by motion and the president appointed Otto Griessel, R. R. Routledge and J. G. Bacher to look after the matter.

One new member was elected and one application for membership presented. A short discussion of fuels and experiences during the recent high winds and low temperatures occupied the time until luncheon was announced. Attending the meeting as visitors were: A. Appledorn, a florist from California, and E. Nyden, landscape architect for the school board.

E. T. Mische said he had a call to Eugene, Ore., to examine and criticize the plans for a rearrangement of the buildings and landscape features of the Oregon State University, which had been prepared by the students of the landscape department. Several growers told of the pleasures (?) they experienced in cutting off a crumpled smokestack or replacing lights of glass in the most exposed parts of their ranges, with the wind blowing a gale and the mercury in the "teens."

F. A. Van Kirk will act as secretary of the festival center managers. Applications should be made to him by growers who want to put in exhibits.

The society's new letterhead was much admired by the members. It is printed from a cut specially prepared under the supervision of Treasurer Forbes and Secretary Niklas, and was pronounced by all to be an artistic design.

Various Notes.

Mrs. G. Gooch, of San Francisco, called on the trade last week.

O. E. Panzer recently was pleasantly surprised to receive by parcel post a package of seeds from Germany. Being long overdue, he had about lost hope of getting the seeds. The package contained novelties which he is anxious to try.

During the recent storm heavy icicles formed on the copings of some of the tall buildings in the business district, and the sidewalks had to be closed to pedestrians in some places. The S. G. Lubliner store in the Portland hotel was one of the sufferers, having his sidewalk roped off for a couple of days, until the icicles could be removed.

E. J. Steele reports his pansy seedlings in fine shape, having been protected against the cold by the heavy snow.

R. C. Cook had to abandon his open stand on Fourth street and transact

The Wanamaker Boston has more than made good. Everyone who has received early shipments from us has been greatly pleased with the variety and repeat orders have been coming in daily. We have a very large stock. A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis. The following prices are for immediate and spring delivery:

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business is excellent and everybody is well satisfied with the sales made last week. Stock cleaned up without any trouble. There still is a scarcity of roses and even inferior stock sells at a good price. Bulbous stock is coming in more freely. Tulips and Golden Spurs have appeared in larger quantities. Carnations, violets and sweet peas have arrived in larger numbers than heretofore. Good pot plants have been a big help to the cut flower scarcity.

Various Notes.

The Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports an easier market in cut flowers. The supply of carnations, violets and sweet peas has increased. This concern reports a good out-of-town business.

Samuel Murray had a good window display of oncidiums and other orchids, which were attractively arranged in baskets. After being confined to his home for several weeks, Mr. Murray is again able to be about. He reports a good trade in table decorations.

A new store will be opened about February 1 on East Eleventh street under the name of Gilday & Kidmor.

Richard Jarrett is the proud father of a baby girl, born January 21. Nelson Jarrett now is a grandpa.

T. J. Noll had a vacation last week in the form of a term on the jury. He reports a larger supply of violets and sweet peas.

A. Elberfield left for New Orleans on a few weeks' vacation. He reports a heavy run of funeral work.

Edward Humfeld reports that he has made more blankets since the first of the year than during any two months he has been in business. He has a nice lot of azaleas that will be in good shape for St. Valentine's day.

A. F. Barbe is now cutting a bumper crop of carnations. Funeral work has been heavy.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting 3,000 to 4,000 carnations every week and their roses are the best this company has had this season.

Henry Kusik & Co. had a heavy run in wire work last week and report that they are now receiving a nice lot of bulbous stock.

W. R. Barnes, son of W. J. Barnes, is selected as a candidate for alderman of this city. If elected, he will be one of the youngest men to hold such a position.

DORNER'S NOVELTY FOR 1916 New Salmon Pink Carnation NANCY

Color, light salmon pink, a little darker than Pink Delight and a more even color. Blooms are good commercial size, three inches and over, nicely formed and have never shown a bursted calyx. Stems always hold the flower upright. The habit is a quick productive growth and as a producer it stands highest among commercial varieties. Color does not fade. Fragrance is very noticeable. Having an excellent cerise pink and an improved yellow to offer in 1917, we have decided to disseminate the variety NANCY this year (1916). For a light pink that will produce quantities of bloom and is commercially good in every respect, plant NANCY. The stock is limited and orders will be filled in rotation as received. Price, rooted cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

F. DORNER & SONS CO.,

LAFAYETTE, INDIANA

THE FREEPORT, ILL., DISASTER.

After an all-night fight to obviate the danger of freezing at the John Bauscher greenhouses, of Freeport, Ill., which was successfully accomplished, the range caught fire the following morning, January 18, entailing a damage estimated at not less than $40,000. The fire had its start in the packing house, which was in the center of the range of fifteen houses. No one knew how the fire started. Mr. Bauscher was of the opinion that the packing house may have caught fire from sparks of a passing engine or from sparks from his own heating plant. The fire was not discovered until it blazed as high as the roof of the packing house, from which it spread to the greenhouses. Seven of the fifteen houses were destroyed, as well as their contents.

The packing house was a 2-story frame structure and the damage to this building was estimated at from $3,000 to $5,000. The greenhouses destroyed included three large rose houses which contained from 30,000 to 40,000 rose plants; two houses with 100,000 geraniums; one house with about 750 palms. Another large loss was the damage to the heating plant. The gasoline plant, in close proximity to the packing house, was not damaged, but the garage was touched by the flames. There may have been additional losses from frozen stock in the remaining eight houses. The main pipe from the boiler room, supplying radiation to the entire range, was broken, and it was said that immediate repairs were out of the question.

Mr. Bauscher carried only a small amount of insurance on the greenhouses, which he estimated at not more than one-fiftieth of the total loss. The packing house, however, was insured, and on this Mr. Bauscher will realize. The absence of fire protection for Mr. Bauscher's extensive interests, after he has repeatedly petitioned the authorities, has caused him to consider bringing a suit against the city. Being a heavy taxpayer of Freeport, he feels that his property should have been protected by extended water mains and fire hydrants. The hydrant closest to the range, which was used during the fire, is more than 3,000 feet from the houses.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Market.

Since the holidays business has kept up remarkably well. Much funeral work has been done and the dealers have had a hard time to obtain enough flowers. Stock of all kinds is scarce and prices still hold high. Carnations sell from $1 to $2 per dozen. Roses are unusually scarce and are sold at $1.50 to $5 per dozen. Daffodils are arriving, but not enough of them to meet the demand. Sweet peas and violets are plentiful. There has been a big demand for sick-room flowers.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Scranton Florists' Club was held January 13, at the residence of William MacDonald, of Moosic. At 7 o'clock dinner was served, covers being laid for thirty. At 8:30 the meeting was called to order by President Ray MacDonald. The spring flower show, to be held March 30 to April 1, was the chief topic of the meeting. The following committees were appointed: Ways and means—C. W. Baldwin, William MacDonald, Anton Schultheis; to visit private growers—Miss A. L. Besancon and Mrs. T. B. McClintock; to visit wholesale growers—D. W. Evans, L. E. McClintock, W. R. MacDonald. The speakers of the evening were T. J. Nolan, of the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y.; Chas. A. Goudy, of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia. The next meeting will be held February 7, at the A. L. Besancon store.

Various Notes.

A. L. Besancon & Co. will move to their new quarters in the Life Insurance building about April 1.

Gottlieb Baumann, of Wilkes-Barre, is making extensive improvements in his store, including a new icebox and automobile delivery.

The marriage of M. S. Rusch and Miss Edith Samson, of Scranton, was solemnized January 25. Mr. Rusch is well known to the trade, being manager for Baldwin's.

William MacDonald, of Moosic, has completed a new storehouse and a large garage adjoining his greenhouses.

B. E. & J. T. Cokely report business good. Jack Cokely is traveling through New York state. T. J. Judge, after an absence of two years, is again traveling for this firm.

The New York Floral Co. last week had a great display of Beauties and orchids. This company has opened a branch store at Wilkes-Barre, which is said to be one of the finest in north-eastern Pennsylvania. An Overland car has been added to the Scranton store service.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO.

PAINESVILLE, OHIO

MOLINE, ILL.

Preparations for State Meeting.

On the call of Chairman John Staack, of the general committee of arrangements of the Tri-City Florists' Club, the various committees in charge of the arrangements for the coming convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association, to be held in Moline, March 7 and 8, met at the office of the Julius Staack & Sons greenhouses, Tuesday, January 18.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather there was a good attendance at this meeting, mainly due to the great interest taken by the members in the forthcoming convention. The Davenport, Bettendorf and Rock Island members are as unselfish and as enthusiastic in their efforts for the success of this meeting as are the Moline florists. Each of the cities named is represented on the various committees having charge of the arrangements for the convention.

The name, Tri-City, is somewhat misleading, as properly it should be Quad-City. Bettendorf, Ia., which contains several of our hardest working members, is directly across the Mississippi river from Moline. Rock Island, adjoining Moline on the west, sustains the same relation to Davenport, Ia., that Moline does to Bettendorf. These four cities have a population of about 125,000 intelligent, progressive and beauty-loving people. As an evidence of this it may be mentioned that during the recent holiday season one local concern disposed of an entire carload of holly at good prices and, at that, had to disappoint late buyers. These cities are all linked together by as fine a street car service as there is in the west. Moline is connected on the south in Illinois with Galesburg, Monmouth, Aledo, etc., by the interurban electric; with Clinton, Ia., on the north, and Muscatine, Ia., on the south, by another electric road.

At this meeting it was decided to hold weekly meetings of all committees in charge of the arrangements. The chairmen of the various committees are as follows: General chairman, John Staack, Moline; entertainment committee, C. O. E. Boehm, Davenport; hall committee, Wm. Knees, Sr., Moline; publicity committee, W. C. Wilson, Moline; privilege committee, A. Anderson, Moline; recording secretary, Wm. Knees, Jr., Moline. A. A.

MUMS - - FOUR WINNERS

Japanese Anemone C. L. HUTCHINSON

In this variety we have the ideal Anemone. The color of the petals is a pure white and the center a bright yellow, making a beautiful contrast. It is a good grower, splendid dark foliage, and, the best of all for pot work, needs no support.

Japanese Anemone MARIE POOLE

Very distinct and beautiful flower, which is very large, and the color is a combination of bronzy salmon, flushed with pink; the high center is bright orange yellow. One of the oddest and most novel flowers ever introduced. Good pot plant.

Single Anemone MRS. CARRIE RYERSON

Creamy white; very good habit; needs no support. An excellent variety for Thanksgiving. Makes good pot plant.

Single Anemone THOMAS DUNN

A very free bloomer, good foliage; ten to twelve flowers on spray, open at once. Color yellow, under petals bronzy yellow. Splendid keeper. Blooms for Thanksgiving and is good two weeks or more afterwards. Needs no support.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

The recent periods of cold weather, though sandwiched between mild spells, have had the effect of cleaning up the available supplies of coal and creating a condition that approaches a shortage. The supply of fuel in dealers' storage and in transit was almost exhausted, and the mines, it is said, "were down to the point where all they had to sell was a mortgage on their future output." Perhaps that is an exaggerated statement of the case, but it is evident, at least, that the coal market is strong and that full circular prices are maintained. "The market in the territory reached through Chicago," says the Black Diamond, "is stronger than it has been at any time since 1912." Smokeless coal is included in this estimate of the situation. Mine-run, though less called for than other grades, is barely sufficient for the demand and is firm at the circular price of $1.40, f. o. b. the mines.

It is especially worthy of note that the miners and operators have decided to hold their first joint conference February 1, at Mobile, with reference to the wage scale, as the present wage contract expires in April. Though it is hoped there will be no suspension of mining operations this year, the mere possibility of trouble in April is leading some large users of coal to put huge piles of it in storage.

USING ONLY 2-INCH PIPE.

Please give me a little information on greenhouse heating. I have a house 17½x50, with four feet of glass in the side walls, above one foot of concrete blocks. The rafters are ten feet long. The workroom is at the east end. I want a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. I shall use no benches. The house is new and is of Lord & Burnham construction. I have some 2-inch pipe on hand. Can I use that size of pipe for both flows and returns?

THE HEATING PROBLEM SOLVED

Judging strictly according to mechanical merits, it's the METROPOLITAN PATENTED BOILER you want.

Because of their proven scientifically perfect construction, Metropolitan Patented Boilers will heat a given amount of water quicker, with less fuel and less attention than any other boiler on the market.

The remarkable heating efficiency and quick steaming qualities of these boilers are due to their large and effective heating surface.

Just a few points of Metropolitan Patented Boiler merit:—Smooth, perfect finished castings. Push nipple connections. Large fire box, providing ample combustion chamber, and permitting a sufficient charge of fuel to require attention only at long intervals. Deep ash pit, making the removal of ashes a slight task. Large flues, making the boiler easy to clean. Grates that are made for hard usage and long service. And above all, they are Fuel Saving, not Fuel Wasting.

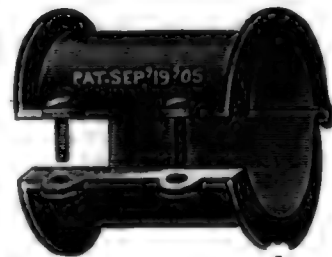

We also make soft coal boilers which are smokeless, and save 50 per cent in coal.

method of heating to be used, it is inferred, from the question about using 2-inch pipe, that the house is to be heated by means of hot water, especially as this is generally to be preferred for small houses. To heat the house described to 60 degrees, we would use three 2-inch flow pipes, placing one upon each plate and carrying the other about two feet below the ridge. Connect three 2-inch return pipes with each of the flow pipes on the plates and carry them back to the boiler underneath. The other flow pipe should be used to feed four 2-inch returns, two of which should be carried on the walls back to the boiler on each side of the house. The return coils may start directly under the end of the flow pipe, or the coils may be on the side walls only, and connected with the overhead flow pipe by means of 2-inch pipes.

Fort Dodge, Ia.—The Madsen brothers, formerly employees of the North Floral Co., have started a market gardening business of their own. They intend to erect greenhouses in the spring.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business was good last week. Flowers are in good supply, with the possible exception of roses, which are off crop. Carnations are more plentiful and about equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

J. C. Elspermann is enjoying a good business. All his stock is in excellent condition.

Miss Nellie Goodge is improving slowly from her attack of pneumonia.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having a nice cut of carnations. Business is excellent with them. The Florists' Club met January 18 at the C. L. Niednagel place. At this meeting it was decided not to attempt to hold a flower show in this city next fall. Ernest Lutz, of Boonville, and Otto Kuebler, of Newburg, were the out-of-town members at the meeting. The next meeting of the club will be held at the Karl Zeidler store, February 9.

Joseph Fritsch, father of Louis Fritsch, was killed by a train on the C. & E. I. railroad January 23. He was walking the tracks into the city, it being a short cut for him. He evidently became confused and stepped in front of the passenger train. He was 63 years of age. E. L. F.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market, for the first time since December 15, shows an inclination to ease up. Bulbous stock, including tulips, Golden Spurs, etc., is coming in quantity and helps out the roses and carnations, which still are scarce. No great change, however, is looked for before St. Valentine's day. The demand for that day, no doubt, will be enormous and will take up all the stock offered. Easter lilies are in good supply, as is valley.

Various Notes.

The entertainment committee, Frank Ritzenthaler, Walter E. Cook and Chas. J. Graham, is planning for a banner meeting of the Florists' Club February 7. They speak of organizing a glee Club. F. A. F.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The Newport Horticultural Society has started an active membership campaign under its new constitution, and at the last meeting six applications were received in the associate class. This class includes assistant gardeners, assistant florists, amateurs and non-residents. The fee is $1 per year. The dues for active membership have been changed to $3 per year, payable annually in advance instead of quarterly.

The meeting last week was an unusually busy one, a discussion being held regarding the nursery inspection laws. It was contended that Newport suffers more from the laws than it does from the gypsy or brown-tail moths. A committee of three was appointed to look into the matter.

The new classification of dahlias, as adopted by the American Dahlia Society, was discussed and referred to the executive committee. The final revision of the premiums for the June and August shows was made and a number of additional premiums were announced.

A large vase of Buddleia Asiatica was exhibited by Andrew J. Dorward, who was awarded a first-class certificate of merit. Mr. Dorward gave an instructive talk on the cultivation of this plant, which is one of the Wilson novelties recently introduced from China.

Various Notes.

A prompt response to the alarm of fire in the basement of the establishment of T. J. Gibson, on Washington square, a few days ago, probably averted a heavy loss.

Carl H. Jurgens began cutting his annual supply of ice from the Green End pond last week. W. H. M.

DIRT BANDS—Experience in Using Them

H. B. WEAVER
Carnations Mignonettes
Sweet Peas Cut Flowers United Phone.

Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, and STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

H. B. Weaver.

Mr. Weaver grows carnations, mignonette, sweet peas, asters, etc. He ordered 5,000 Dirt Bands the first year, 60,000 the second year, 70,000 last year and has just ordered 50,000 more. Send for Free Samples of both Pots and Bands

BLACKADAR & CO.

Dauphin Nursery and Greenhouses.

Dauphin, Manitoba, Can., Dec. 4, 1915.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons, Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: * * * We would say that we used all the Paper Pots we got from you to raise tomato plants.

Our weather is often very severe late in May, therefore we have to keep them inside and we were certainly very satisfied with the splendid results obtained from the Paper Pots.

In fact, WE DID NOT HAVE HALF ENOUGH TO FILL OUR ORDERS. WE CHARGED EXACTLY TWICE THE AMOUNT we did other years and yet our CUSTOMERS INSISTED ON HAVING THOSE IN PAPER POTS.

In our hot sun they never wilted. We reserved a few for Primulas and certainly have some fine ones.

It was easier to keep them watered and growing during the hot months.

Wishing you success.

Yours truly,

Blackadar & Co.

MRS. W. T. BARBER

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: I used some of your Paper Pots last spring, which were highly satisfactory.

I grew Roses, Salvias, Verbenas, Petunias and Geraniums in the Paper Pots for retail trade.

THEY NEARLY DOUBLED MY SALES.

I always had fine thrifty plants to send out and I delivered them in the pots, which insured them reaching my patrons in good condition.

I never had a complaint of flowers dying or wilting.

I buy some of my plants, which I set right in the pots.

They are ready for delivery within a few days. When plants are set out there is no collecting pots or watering to be done.

I intend to use them altogether next season.

Yours very truly,

Mrs. W. T. Barber.

ly cut. He has had several inquiries for the remaining stock, but he is not disposed to give it away.

E. Moechel is now operating the Geary Street Nursery, 5318 Geary street, formerly conducted by F. H. Buss, who now is on the Golden Gate park force. Mr. Moechel has as assistant John Martin, who was connected with the exposition plant propagating department last year.

The Misses Hannon, on Polk street, have persuaded their landlord to postpone rebuilding until spring, which will give them time to get suitable quarters during the rebuilding period.

Chas. C. Navlet, of San Jose, recently issued an attractive seed and plant catalogue and has been getting a heavy run of mail order business in these departments. He reports a good trade at his flower store.

Mr. Piccetti, manager of the C. C. Navlet branch in the Emporium, says nursery stock is the main thing at present, the flower section in that department store being at a disadvantage when stock is so high. He put on a special sale of rose bushes and fruit trees last week and moved a remarkably large amount of stock, notwithstanding that the weather was too wet to permit of planting.

State Forester G. M. Homans is preparing to publish an extensive bulletin dealing with ornamental trees suitable for planting in California. The book will be largely the work of A. W. Dodge, deputy forester, and will be free.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The heavy shortage of stock continues, while the demand has increased considerably. The capital is in the midst of a social season that bids fair to eclipse that of recent winters. This is making good sale for high-class stock and prices have gone up according to the supply and demand. American Beauties, which are none too plentiful, are bringing from $6 to $9 per dozen. These are exceptionally fine and move well. Valley has been a staple flower, which seldom varied in price, but last week the retailers were willing to pay any price for it and $5 instead of $4 per hundred prevailed, with some orders unfilled. There are few colored carnations on the market and these are much sought after. They clean up at $5 and $6 per hundred, with the price of white carnations at $4 and $5. There are only two flowers on the market that are really plentiful. Orchids have been offered in quantities at $35 per hundred, and there is more than enough white lilac to go around.

The wholesalers are meeting with considerable difficulty in securing enough Paper White narcissi to fill orders. Jonquils are to be had, but these are also in short supply and $5 per hundred is readily paid for good stock. Pussy willow is exceptionally fine and is used largely in spring flower decorations.

Various Notes.

What was perhaps the most elaborate decoration of the season was to be seen at the Pan-American Union building on the occasion of the Pan-American ball. The work was by J. H. Small & Sons.

David Fairchild, in charge of the foreign seed and plant introduction bureau of the Department of Agriculture, has gone for a month's trip to points in Georgia, Florida and Louisiana.

At the annual elections of the local banks J. Henry Small, Jr., was re-elected as a director of both the Union Trust and the Farmers and Mechanics bank. William F. Gude was re-elected to the directorate of the Lincoln National and the National Metropolitan banks; Frank W. Bolgiano to the Continental Trust, and Fred H. Kramer to the Union Savings bank. C. L. L.

The Market.

Trade last week was exceedingly active. Decorations and funeral pieces have been the principal demand. The supply of roses continues to be short and carnations are hardly to be had at all. We have had a few days of sunshine, but there has not been any substantial increase in the quantity of flowers at this writing. We are hoping that another week of sunshine will help to open the roses and do away with the extreme shortage. The spring flowers are coming to market in large quantities. Jonquils, daffodils and sweet peas are quite plentiful. Freesias and cut tulips are in good supply. Good potted freesias are being shown in the downtown stores. Snapdragon is of splendid quality, but is not plentiful. Lilies, both calla and Easter, are equal to the demand. Yellow narcissi are selling well. Russell, Shawyer and Killarney roses are making the best showing in the pink varieties, while Richmond leads the best of the reds. White roses are hardly to be had at any price. Violets are plentiful, but the demand for them last week was good. Potted plants continue to sell well. This is probably due to the extreme shortage of cut flowers. Green goods are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. last week had an order for a large blanket of Shawyer roses. Mrs. Aaron Shive, of the store, is planning to attend the National Flower Show at Philadelphia in March.

A. J. Lanternier & Son were the decorators of the rooms at the Commercial Club last week. Shawyer roses, palms, southern smilax, carnations and narcissi were effectively used.

Will J. Vesey, Jr., is recovering from a short illness.

F. J. Knecht is sending some fine Russell roses to the market. His Shawyer and Killarneys are few and far between at present.

The Auger Flower Shop was rushed with funeral work last week.

The decorations in the Anthony hotel ballroom for a musicale last week were executed by Miss C. B. Flick and Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo. Miss Helen Patten has returned to Toledo. She reported business as being good, especially funeral work. R. F.

Even the little "lean-to" greenhouses such as the one illustrated above, which we built at Plandome, Long Island, are planned and erected with the greatest care, as they require all the fine details that make for the successful operation of the professional growers' structures.

The reputation we have gained for fast work is only to be equaled by our reputation for fine work, and the particular feature of our service is, that we can give both at the same time.

We owe our success not only to the efficiency of our methods, but also to the quality of our work.

SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

Very soon every live florist will make free use of square dirt bands in plant growing. The advantages of square bands over round pots are so evident that none can afford to pass them by. Better plants, less trouble, less water, less space, more soil, are a few favorable points.

The next step is to get the best band. Our READY-USE is the "last thing" in square bands. It is ready for the plant. If you have spare time for folding, our plain bands will answer the same purpose. Send postal for free samples.

PRICES OF PLAIN SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1000	5000	10,000	20,000	50,000	100,000
2-in.....	$0.70	$2.20	$ 4.10	$ 7.70	$17.25	$30.00

4-in.....	1.10	5.40	10.20	21.00	48.00	92.00

Plain bands require folding, but our simplified instructions make it easy.

PRICE OF READY-USE SQUARE DIRT BANDS.

	1,000	5,000	10,000	50,000	100,000
2x2x2-in....	$1.00	$4.00	$ 7.50	$35.00	$60.00

3x3x2-in.	1.25	6.00	10.00	47.50	92.00

Our ready-use bands are complete and ready to set up. The lap is glued down and each band opens up square. No folding required, nor time lost in setting them up.

Square dirt bands add greatly to the profit and pleasure of plant growing. Double the amount of soil to same bench space, and half the amount of water as clay pots require, are only two of many good points. Send for free samples today and get in touch with the newest and best SQUARE DIRT BAND. "The best band in the land," is the way one enthusiast puts it.

If you don't know the value of dirt bands begin by putting your carnation plants into size two or two and one-half inch. You will forever sing praises to the square band. They take care of all plants just as well, and anything that grows in a pot will grow better in a band.

Stop Gambling on Field Carnation Results

USE

The Skinner Irrigation System

WATER—that's what you gamble on. Water in right quantities at the right time.

Your fertilizer problem can be solved in several ways.

Your labor problem is flexible.

But this depending entirely on nature to attend to your watering is taking a long gamble.

85% of those carnation plants you will set out in the field is water.

If that 85% falls down to 75%, your plants suffer. Your next winter's profits are hit.

The Skinner System cuts the gamble out of field growing. You can have water in right amounts at the right time, right under your entire control.

At planting time alone, it will pay for itself. At lifting time, you again get valuable service from it. All the season through it will be your surest insurance.

It's the kind of insurance policy that pays for itself the first year, and gives you protection and increased profits for years and years to come.

Let us tell you what so little as $125.00 will do in equipping your fields.

Send for latest catalogue. It fully describes those new nozzles you have heard about.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

There was a slight easement in the supply of cut flowers last week, the cut being larger than that of any of several previous weeks. The prices, however, were maintained at about the same scale that has ranged since Christmas. It has been a long time since the demand has been as active as that of last week. There was a heavy run of funeral work. The scarcity of flowers and the high prices have caused an increase in the use of galax, ivy and magnolia leaves for funeral pieces.

Society Meeting.

The seventy-first annual meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held January 19. The attendance was large. Reports of a satisfactory nature were submitted by the officers and committees, and following the business session an address was delivered by Dr. Burt L. Hartwell, director of the experiment station at the Rhode Island State College, at Kingston. Dr. Hartwell spoke on "The Chemistry of the Garden," pertaining to the feeding of plants and the best methods of adding plant food to the soil.

The election of officers for 1916 resulted as follows: President, Prof. Harlan H. York; first vice-president, Dr. Henry W. Heaton; second vice-president, Marcus Burdick; secretary, Edward K. Thomas; treasurer, Harold L. Madison; trustee, Frederick S. Peck; botanist, Prof. J. Franklin Collins; entomologist, Prof. A. E. Stene. The following committees were appointed: Exhibition committee—Eugene A. Appleton, chairman; Joshua Vose, Cornelius Hartstra, Arthur Sellev, Henry W. Heaton, Henry Chandler. Lecture committee—Thomas Hope and Prof. John E. Hill. Necrology committee—Joseph E. C. Farnham. Auditing committee—William Steele, Edward D. Brooke, Jr., Arthur C. Miller.

Various Notes.

Smith, the Florist, had several telegraph orders for large funeral designs last week.

Among the visitors last week were: S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia; Paul Berkowitz, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

NOT ASSEMBLERS BUT MANUFACTURERS

THERE are a lot of greenhouse, as well as automobile builders, who are assemblers. They do not make their parts; they buy them here, there and everywhere; and put them together.

We are not assemblers; we are manufacturers.

With but a few minor exceptions; we make everything we sell. Consequently, it is made particularly for the particular purpose for which it is to be used.

Take for example our boilers; we don't buy them, we make them. We make them so they will be made the way a greenhouse boiler should be made.

They are not the regular house heating boilers bought of some outside firm who cast our name on the door.

It's the same even with a somewhat minor thing like our Tell Tale Ventilating Apparatus.

We don't buy it of some recording machine company. It is made right in our own factory. A glance at the pointer will tell exactly how wide the ridge sash is opened.

And so we could go right through our house, and show you how practically everything in the construction and equipping of our houses is made by us, for our house.

That's one of the big reasons why you can depend on depending on Hitchings. And, remember, that we go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

AN ACRE OF GLASS

IN THE MONTANA MOUNTAINS

Up in the northwest corner of the state of Montana, among the mountains, is the establishment of W. E. Mills, at the county seat of Kalispell. Twenty acres of land produces all the outdoor flowers the surrounding territory can use, and 36,000 square feet of glass is used to furnish the neighboring markets with greenhouse flowers and vegetables. For next autumn, 5000 carnations and 3000 chrysanthemums have been planted. A wide variety of other flowers is grown. Lettuce in great quantities is marketed throughout the northwest.

For the greenhouses at Kalispell Gardens, Mr. Mills obtained the material from halfway across the continent. His choice came after a careful study of the most modern methods of construction.

The same painstaking care from the time we figured the estimate until the last shipment was made is yours for the asking.

If you intend to build, let us hear from you.

THE NEW HIGH PRESSURE KROESCHELL

FOR STEAM PLANTS, 100 HORSE POWER AND OVER

Our New Steam unit develops a much greater efficiency than is possible with the Horizontal Tubular Boiler on account of the many improvements embodied in this form of construction.

It will generate quickly high overload capacity at any time sudden requirements demand an increased supply of steam.

With this type of boiler, you will be able to heat your plant at a lower cost. The special furnace construction and setting insure smokeless operation and fuel economy.

KROESCHELL FIRE & WATER TUBE BOILER

PATENTED 1912

— A FEW POINTS OF MERIT —

1. Three (3) pass fire travel 50% longer than any tubular boiler.

2. A large storage capacity of water, affording abundant heat storage energy to respond to sudden demands for increased steam supply.

3. Large steam storage space, free steam liberating surface, and dry steam.

4. Thorough circulation to produce highest possible efficiency and rapid steam generating power.

5. Automatic self-cleaning, by which all scale forming material is deposited out of reach of the fire and where it can be readily removed. (Power plant owners who are forced to use bad water will appreciate the vital importance of this feature.)

6. Accessibility for inspection, cleaning, and repairs.

7. Perfect combustion under ordinary draft conditions.

8. Maximum heat absorption.

9. Absolute prevention of burnt or sagged plates.

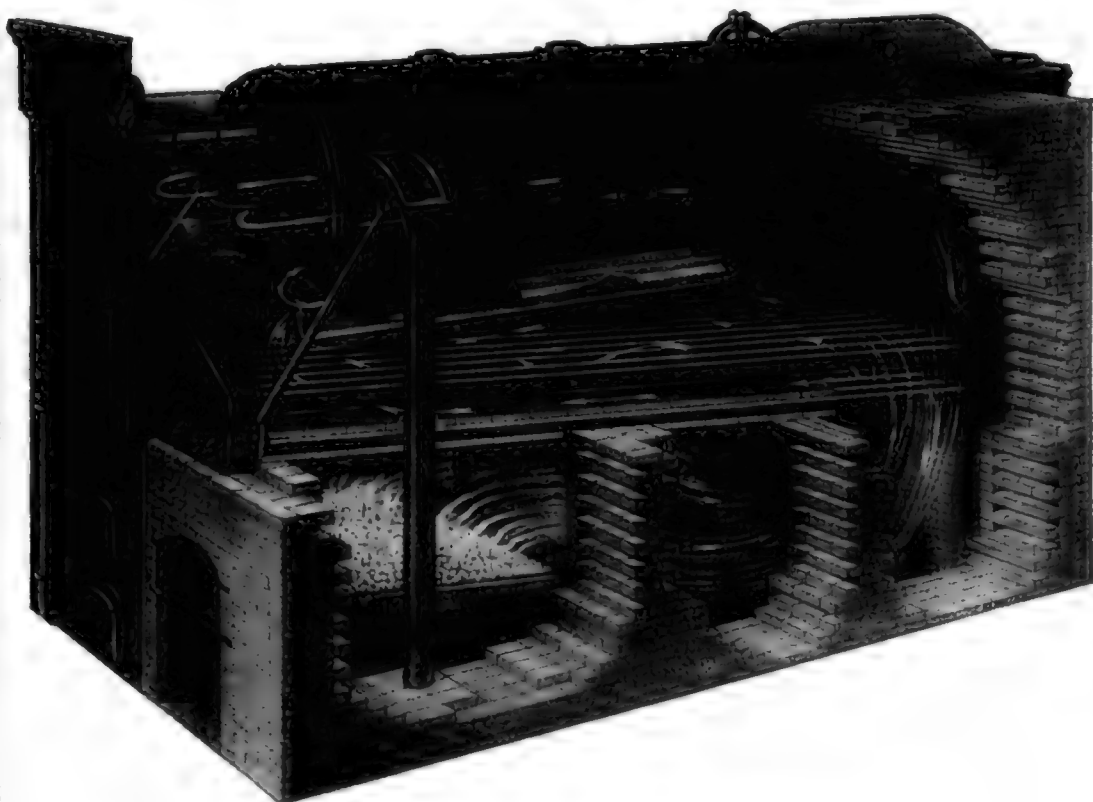

10. A setting independent of boiler walls.

11. Freedom for expansion of all parts and equal expansion between shell and tubes so that there can be no leakage at tube ends.

12. Removal of gases at the rear.

13. Greatest possible capacity for a minimum of floor space.

14. Setting may be arranged for hand firing or mechanical stokers.

A Railroad Instance With a Greenhouse Moral

BROWN is one of our office managers. That isn't his real name, but for present purposes we are calling him that. Yesterday morning a letter from him lay on the top of the pile on my desk. It started right off with a question. This was the question: "Did you happen to see that much talked of article of President Truesdale, of the Lackawanna Railroad, telling about their new Scranton cut off?"

One of the things he said in it was: "Railroads in the east today have passed the point of just construction. They are now striving to make their roads and equipment finished in every way."

Then Brown went on to say: "Did you ever hear anything that better illustrated the point of Lord & Burnham Greenhouse Construction as compared with others? Long since have they passed the stage of 'just construction,' and are now constantly striving to make their constructions finished in every way."

"It's easy enough to see in other constructions numerous mechanical defects, which in our houses have been worked down to the finest detail. They show the thoroughness with which all parts of the construction have been studied out in the years past."

"You know how some concerns have every once in a while tried to belittle this thoroughness by calling it 'fussy.'"

"If being 'fussy' means building our houses just the best that our half a century's experience tells us to, then let's keep right on being fussier and fussier."

I think Mr. Brown struck the nail square on the head. What do you think?

Aster, Carlson or Invincible

Early-flowering Branching Aster

No Aster has been esteemed more highly by the florist trade than this variety; it has good size and, by reason of excellent habit, long stems and blooms, it comes between our Queen of the Market and Hohenzollern Asters.

	Pkt.	$\frac{1}{4}$ -oz.	Oz.
White.....	$0.15	$0.40	$1.25
Pink.....	.15	.40	1.25

Aster, S. & W. Co.'s Late Branching

We cannot emphasize too strongly the merits of our strain of this grand Aster. It is much superior to Semple's Branching in vigor, size and profuse blooming qualities. Excellent for late cutting.

Lavender Gem

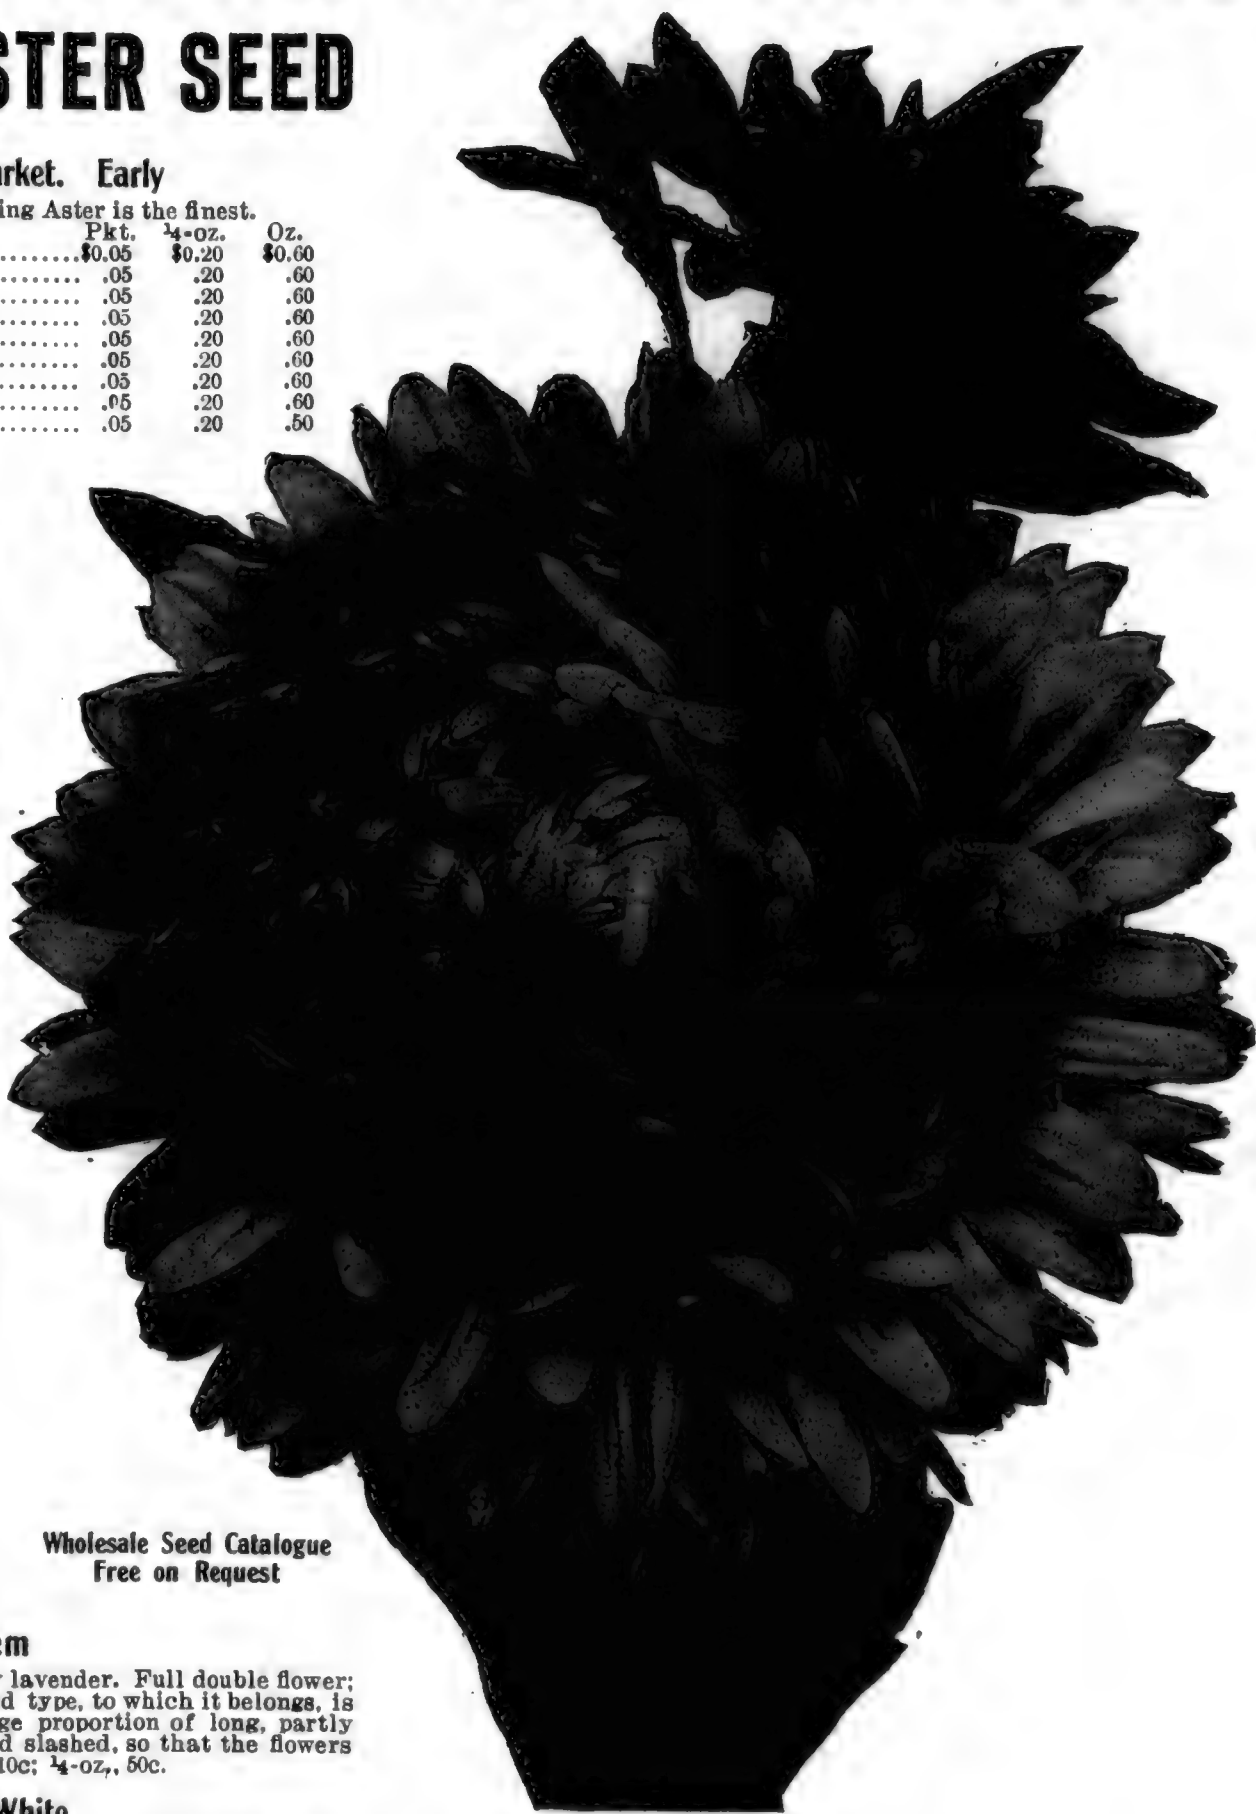

Truly a gem and easily the finest early lavender. Full double flower; the feathery effect of the ostrich-feathered type, to which it belongs, is enhanced by the fact that it bears a large proportion of long, partly tubular florets that are irregularly cut and slashed, so that the flowers resemble ragged chrysanthemums. Pkt., 10c; $\frac{1}{4}$ -oz., 50c.

Early Upright White

One of the best selling novelties of last season. Plants grow compactly, with long, erect flower-stems, which are quite free from side shoots. Plants yield eight to twelve flowers. For an early variety the flowers are unusually large and have a solid, compact, ball-shaped appearance, with petals of medium length. Pkt., 10c; $\frac{1}{4}$ -oz., 50c.

White Perfection

Finest midseason white Aster in cultivation. The flowers are four inches in diameter and exquisite in form, and the plants are taller than those of the late upright Asters. When first open the entire flower is whorled, producing a charming effect; the broad petals are slightly folded lengthwise, making them appear rather narrow. The plants are extremely vigorous; they carry about twelve large flowers on strong stems free from side branches. Pkt., 15c; $\frac{1}{4}$ -oz., 50c; $\frac{1}{2}$ -oz., \$1.00; oz., \$3.00.

PINK ENCHANTRESS

PINK ENCHANTRESS

Upright in habit, as distinguished from the Branching form. The plant is very vigorous, and produces long, strong stems for the support of numerous large exhibition blooms. The flower is always full double; petals are of medium length and very broad; those toward the center fold in very regularly, while gradually, toward the outer edge, the petals stand out more and more until those on the outside recede from the center, thus increasing the diameter of the flower, which compares very favorably in size with the largest-flowering kinds on our farm. Color similar to that of the Enchantress carnation; flowers late. Pkt., 15c; $\frac{1}{4}$ -oz., 50c; $\frac{1}{2}$ -oz., \$1.00; oz., \$3.00.

Do You See the Point? →

You'll not only want the Nebraska Carnation because it's a crackerjack grower; because it's a real scarlet that gives two blooms to one of Enchantress; because it has no disadvantages, no splits, no culls;—but also because Nebraska Carnation wins the "ahs" and "ohs" of the ultimate buyers in the stores. That's the point every wise buyer considers. The merchandising advantage of the Nebraska Carnation counts; it means easier profits for you. That's why we repeat, with emphasis:

Nebraska Carnation for You! ←

—the best scarlet in sight—bar none

Why Nebraska will Win for You

Strong, easy field grower.
Longest, stiffest stems.
Freest bloomer. Never splits, no culls.
Topnotch seller.

NEW CARNATION

Cottage Maid

—A Sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward

Did you go to the Carnation Show at St. Louis?

If so, did you see our beautiful new Cottage Maid, for it was Queen of the Novelties?

The public here in New York is crazy over the color of this beautiful new carnation. It is a clear shell-pink, deep in the center and lighter toward the edge. It is a color your trade demands.

Its plant is identical with its well known and widely grown parent, Mrs. C. W. Ward, and it has the same wonderful keeping and shipping qualities as this variety. In fact, at the Cleveland Show this fall, Cottage Maid, besides the first prize in its class, won the prize for the vase of carnations in the best condition at the end of the show. And these flowers were shipped from New York.

We have grown this variety for six years and tried it out thoroughly. It is not our policy to let buyers of our novelties do the experimenting.

We believe in Cottage Maid, and we are going to back up our belief by planting 50,000 of it next year for blooms, besides the stock plants.

It will be sent out next winter. Send in your order early.

And keep your eye on Crystal White, our sensational pure white, which is larger and more productive than Matchless. It will probably be disseminated in 1917-18.

The Lesson of Preparedness is one that we must all learn in Politics, Religion and Business.

It is with your business and our business for 1916 that we are particularly concerned, Mr. Grower.

You want a prosperous year for 1916. You must be prepared for it.

The wisest preparation is to have growing on your benches a new Pink Forcing Rose, that is easy to grow—prolific in bloom and one that has demonstrated its success—the

Champ Weiland

It is exquisite in color, remarkable in size, beauty and foliage.

A wholly desirable rose for the man who grows for profit—because IT IS EASY TO GROW AND PROLIFIC IN BLOOM

Belle Washburn

THE BEST RED CARNATION

Winner of the Silver Medal at the last exhibition of the American Carnation Society, Buffalo, N. Y., January 27 and 28; First prize at the Illinois State Fair, at Springfield, Ill., September 22 and 23. It has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower is $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts; and, best of all, it is a constant bloomer, giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a spicy odor, much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

During the present holiday season the Belle Washburn was shipped everywhere, from Texas to Winnipeg, and from Denver as far east as Pennsylvania. It sold at the highest price of any red Carnation and was the most in demand, being the premier red of any variety that was in the Chicago market.

The color is the most brilliant red of any Carnation now in the market. We have grown this variety for five years, it being one of our own seedlings, and we now have 30,000 plants benched in our greenhouses at Gregg's, of which 12,000 are for the cut flowers and 18,000 devoted to rooted cuttings. Rooted cuttings now ready for delivery.

Price of the rooted cuttings is $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. We will bill 500 at the 1000 rate price.

Every cutting guaranteed strong and well rooted.

We have 1500 plants growing in our greenhouses at Hollywood, Cal., devoted exclusively to rooted cuttings.

Orders for Pacific Coast States will please be sent to our Western Branch, care of E. B. Washburn, 252 South Orange Grove Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.

NEW COLEUS

Yellow Trailing Queen

In introducing this valuable plant to the trade, we feel confident that it will make a place for itself. A sport from TRAILING QUEEN, another grand plant for boxes, vases, hanging baskets and bordering beds. It droops or hangs down 2 feet or more, not one little vine, but a clump of them. Center of leaves bright yellow, bordered with olive green, with deeply serrated edges, intermingled with yellow. Has all the good qualities of TRAILING QUEEN except color, which makes it a fine trailing mate. This is a very attractive novelty. Order now to work up stock for spring sale.

Nice bushy plants, 2½-in., 15c, $1.25 per doz., $8.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate. By parcel post, 20c each, 3 for 50c, 7 for $1.00, $1.50 per doz.

Do you buy with the idea of selling?

WHEN you purchase new rose stock do you consider that intangible but important factor: The SALABILITY of the blooms at retail—prices considered? Where are your big profits on a magnificent grower if the blooms yielded take a back seat in the retailers' stores? Avoid hazards, invest your money in Totty's New Roses—roses produced only after a careful study of disease resistance, growing advantages and merchandising factors. Stock limited this year, so early orders will have the best attention.

CLEVELAND—

A seedling of Hugh Dickson, for whom we are sole distributors. A splendid rose that was named at the Cleveland Show. Color, deep, glowing pink, with copper base; magnificent in growth and should become very popular. Awarded two Silver Medals.

GORGEOUS—

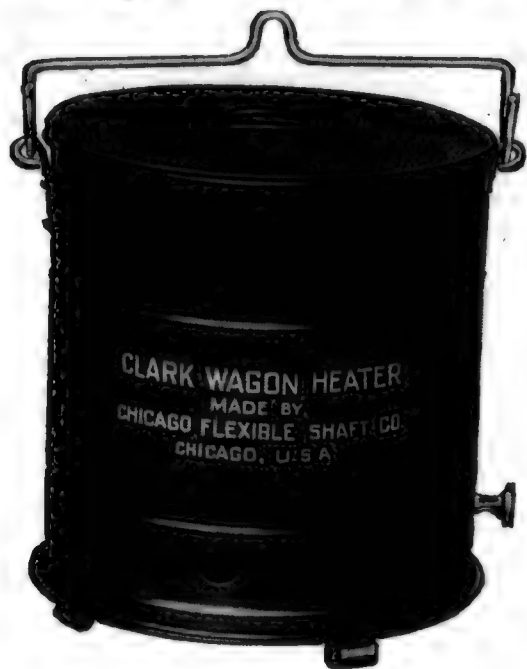

Another charming variety. This is a novelty that is sure to eclipse any other rose yet introduced. The color is coppery yellow, heavily veined and flushed salmon-rose, exquisite in growth. Watch Gorgeous this year!

The Clark Wagon Heater

Height 9 inches

Diameter 8 inches

Price $2.00

This indestructible steel wagon heater is admirably suited to the needs of all who operate delivery wagons for articles subject to freezing.

OPERATION: It burns our Carbon brick. Two or three of the bricks are sufficient in the coldest weather. They yield a strong, steady heat without flame, smoke or odor, and one filling is enough for ten hours' use.

Heater occupies very little space and can be hung in the top of wagon, if desired.

Adjustable ventilators permit perfect regulation of heat. Strong, safe, practical; in use by florists, bottlers, etc., everywhere.

FUEL: We supply our Clark or ABC bricks for this and our other heaters.

Every brick of our Clark Carbon is guaranteed to yield 25 per cent more heat than any other brick on the market.

Our ABC bricks are guaranteed to equal any brick made but our Clark.

September 14, 1915.

Gentlemen:-

In regard to our White cars, I would say that we are greatly pleased with them. Our Truck now has been running for two years and we have not had any breakdowns yet. The only expense so far has been tires and repainting the body of the Truck. It has not missed a day going to town since we have had it. The blizzard made no exception.

We also have a large White touring car which is just as satisfactory as the Truck. We do not regret the money we have invested in these cars, and the next car we get will be another White.

Yours truly,

Aug. Doemling

GLOEKLER FLOWER REFRIGERATORS

Gloekler Fixtures in Store of A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh

THE essential part of the preservation of cut flowers is a cold, dry circulation of air. That is the fundamental principle of Gloekler Flower Refrigerators. It keeps the refrigerator sweet, clean and sanitary, and at the same time results in a saving of ice consumption. It requires perfect insulation to produce this condition, and the Gloekler method of reinforced cork insulation has been proven by test the only practical way of producing such a result.

And then, the selling quality of the refrigerator—that is a big point for consideration. These refrigerators display flowers so attractively that they almost sell themselves. They are as valuable as an extra salesman in your store. They present an insistent argument to the customer to buy, but in an unobjectionable way. And, after all, the first aim of the florist is to sell.

Gloekler Refrigerators are made of selected materials, finished to exactly harmonize with your store interior, and completed with our own heavy, attractive hardware.

Many splendid styles and sizes in stock for quick shipment. We build any size or style to order. Any finish.

A NEW CATALOGUE of FLORISTS' REFRIGERATORS shows flower store interiors in full color. Send for your copy. It's free and it's worth while. Write TODAY.

“Give Her a Basket of Flowers for Valentine’s Day”

This will be the slogan of the retail florist just before February 14 (Valentine’s day). This occasion has become one of the most important money-making days of the year. Every live-wire retailer spends some of his hard earned cash to buy advertising space in his local newspaper, and the returns have never failed to justify the expenditure. Why don’t you do the same?

Begin now, Mr. Retailer, to plan your campaign for that day, and a good beginning is to send us an order for our assortment of “Kewpie” baskets for Valentine’s day. A novelty that will go down in history; has all that is to be desired as a real novelty for that day and which has proved the hit of the season. The success of Raedlein novelties is well known.

We quote four special offers herewith that are by far the best in the market today. Send us your order now, and be sure of the same RAEDLEIN quality that you have always been getting.

- Assortment No. 1-25 “KEWPIE” Baskets for Valentine’s Day.....$15.00
- Assortment No. 2-12 Art Baskets, with liners.....8.00
- Assortment No. 3-25 Tumbler Baskets, finished in two-tone colors or bronze.....7.50
- Assortment No. 4-25 Small Cut Flower Baskets, stained Violet, Red, Green or Brown.. 3.00

We have a large assortment of medium and long-handled cut flower baskets, with liners, that we now quote special at 40c, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50 each. Also a full line of plant and bulb baskets and hampers.

You ought to have that “KEWPIE” assortment

COLEUS.

NEW COLEUS.

YELLOW TRAILING QUEEN.

In introducing this valuable plant to the trade, we feel confident that it will make a place for itself. A sport from TRAILING QUEEN, another grand plant for boxes, vases, hanging baskets and bordering beds. It droops or hangs down 2 feet or more, not one little vine but a clump of them. Center of leaves bright yellow, bordered with olive green, with deeply serrated edges intermingled with yellow. Has all the good qualities of TRAILING QUEEN except color, which makes it a fine trailing mate. This is a very attractive novelty. Order now to work up stock for spring sale.

Nice bushy plants, 2½-in., 15c; $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate. By parcel post, 20c each; 8 for 50c; 7 for $1.00; $1.50 per doz. COLEUS XMAS RED BRILLIANCE has broad leaves that often measure eight inches across, marked with yellow and brightest crimson; very pretty foliage plants for Xmas, 2½-in., 50c doz.; $3.00 per 100; rooted cuttings, $1.50 per 100. Assorted coleus, leading varieties, 2½-in., $2.00 per 100. Oak Grove Greenhouse, Tuskegee, Ala.

TRY DAVIS' PINK SNAPDRAGON.

THE BEST OF ALL.

There is nothing on the market today that can compare with it in color, number of blooms per plant, stiffness of stem and lasting quality of its flowers. The second crop is almost as good as the first; it "saved the day" for us last Memorial. Now is the time to order, as our plants are at their best. PLEASE MENTION THE REVIEW WHEN WRITING ANY OF THESE ADVERTISERS

Quality Quality Quality!

ERE is where we shine. Every greenhouse that we build is a model by itself of quality and workmanship.

If you spend your money carefully, then we want to show you why our houses are the kind you ought to buy. Our prices are not high, but we charge enough so that we can give you a perfect job. You pay for it and you really get it. You get quality all the way through, down to the little things like bolts and screws.

Let us tell you about our houses one detail after another. We know our business from A to Z and both ways back to the middle. MAKE US SHOW YOU the proof—that's all we ask.

January Bargain No. 2

We will accept one more order for a steel house at the old price—$6.00 per ton less than the market today. Hurry in on this.

Having Any Trouble?

Tell us your greenhouse, heating or water supply troubles. No charge for expert advice and no obligation to buy anything.

How We Frame the Gables in Our Big "All-Steel" Greenhouses

Also a Few Other Important Points

NOTICE the heavy steel I beams extending from concrete foundations clear up to the angle gable rafter. Notice how many of these heavy steel I beams we use.

Then again, these I beams are tied together with 3-inch channel purlins and the whole framework double-riveted together.

Before these gables are shipped all of the separate parts are assembled on the floor in our factory. By doing this we insure accuracy and simplicity of erection.

Another point, and a very important one, about our steelwork is that all our steel members are painted at the points of contact before being riveted together. Afterwards we paint another coat before shipping. And don't forget, we paint with red lead—not any substitute. Red lead is the best steel paint to use on structural work. We neglect absolutely no detail in designing, manufacturing and building our "All-steel" houses. No "skyrocket effects," mind you, but good, substantial, careful workmanship.
